The deil has gone on a vacation. His hands and hoofs no longer direct or intimidate our people, and his persuasive power to evil has ceased. Sinners are crowding saints for front pews in the churches, and overworking their treasurers to pay pew rents and pastor's salaries. Morality, virtue and temperance walk our street with a firm tread and confident air. Satan would hardly dare return here now, but we hope many strangers will come.

Shows and tradesmen who seek gain in exhibiting or selling their wares still feel the necessity of advertising and are ready to put down their good money for it. They are quite willing to take extra pains to inform the people that they are doing business and desire patronage, and they know these methods are productive of results. They are not entirely content with the effect of their persuasive powers when people happen to enter their shops. They are planning how to get them and so urge them in a public manner to come. This is business. Readers of the PRESS will note that the church columns have been discontinued, and, as well all announcements of church services. Satan has been dismayed, and though the well known maxim with advertisers is to keep everlastingly at it, this does not appear applicable here in the realms of morality and religion. The PRESS is happy to think that it has been so effective and been able to demonstrate the value of its columns as an advertising medium. When the deil takes a hand again, if he ever dares, it will still be available to the churches at the former rates.

That village improvement society has not yet materialized. It cannot be possible that the ladies of Milford are indifferent to the natural beauties of the town or that they deprecate their ability to greatly enhance them by a little effort! Think of the satisfaction it would be to them to feel that they had added largely to the attractions of Milford in a material way. True, the ladies are beautiful to look on and are adorned with grace and style, but they should not desire to center all the admiration of guests on themselves. Cases may be supposed where success in such efforts might be provocative of difficulties. There are many ladies among the guests as well as a few men. If we were a woman we would start the movement assured that our beauty would not embarrass it or detract from the possible general effect.

Some papers assert that the Parker boom is sagging. Hearst is on it anyway and if his weight counts it will undoubtedly bend a little.

Cleveland is regarded at present by some eminent democrats as like Ajax, defying the (Presidential) lightning to strike him.

The Democrats are seeking a Moses and Gorman evidently thinks one might be found in the bulrushes of Maryland.

Mr. Heart is something like a map without a country. His own California has refused to give him an instructed "unit" Democratic delegation, evidently looking upon him as an Easterner, while New York, his present abode, certainly views him as decidedly Western.

Evangelistic Campaigns

Evangelistic campaigns have just been conducted in Chicago, Pittsburg, Columbus and some other Western cities by the Presbyterian evangelistic committee, and their results assure their conductors that "the mouthing over that particularly reckless and inconsiderable dictum heard of late in various quarters that 'revivalism is played out,' " ought to cease. Old-fashioned evangelism is still found effective, "even in the most modern and bustling and worldly of our cities," and is yet a force to be reckoned with. In summing up the work of the year the secretary of the committee says that the church is in the best spiritual condition for years. Evangelism is not dead within it, it is not a spent force, but a growing one, and the outlook for its continued usefulness was never brighter.

Gone for a Policeman

Judge Morgan J. O'Brien of the supreme court of New York state tells an amusing story of two boys who went to confession after having remained away for many years.

The one who went into the box first remained there for a long while. Finally the little door opened, and the priest came out. It was a sultry afternoon, and he walked down the aisle to the doorway to get a breath of fresh air.

As he did so, the boy in the confessional poked his head out, and with an alarming look, inquired of his friend who was in the pew: "where has he gone?"

"I don't know," replied the other "where do you think he's gone?"

"Well," was the now thoroughly frightened response; "from what I've told him I think he's gone to fetch a cop."

OBITUARY

EBENEZER WARNER

After a gradual decline of several weeks, induced by age and hastened by a cancerous affection on his hand, Ebenezer Warner, one of the best known citizens in this community, died at his home in Milford early this, Friday, morning.

He was born at Warner's Mills, Roxbury county, Connecticut, April 29, 1819, and had for his ancestors people distinguished in the annals of that state. He came of a hardy race, was early inured to toil and trained in habits of frugality, which traits dominated his whole long and active life. In 1850 he came to this county and purchased a farm in Dingman township on which he resided until a few years ago when he removed to town to enjoy a well earned retirement. His methods of farming were systematic and careful, marked by excellent judgment and brought him ample reward. In later years the neatness of his place and its general culture and appearance of thrift gave it the well deserved named of "Model Farm."

In politics Mr. Warner was a staunch republican and during the war served in the capacity of deputy provost marshal. In religion he was a Presbyterian. He united with the church here July 5, 1850, and March 4, 1872, was ordained a ruling elder, a position he has continuously held.

He was a man of shrewd instincts, positive opinions and with untiring industry. When the movement to start a bank here was originated he took a lively interest and became a director and one of the largest stockholders.

August 14, 1850, he married Emily Bowhanan, who died December 7, 1898. He is survived by two sons; George, who resides on the homestead farm in Dingman, John C., cashier of the First National Bank here, and Carrie, wife of S. G. Van der Beck of Hackensack, N. J., and by one grandson, Robert Warner Reid, of Milford.

The funeral will be held at the house next Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

HENRY SMITH

Henry, aged 30 years, a son of Frank Smith and wife of Lehman, died at his home last Sunday after a brief illness of dysentery. His wife, formerly Alice Bradshaw, four children and his parents survive him. The funeral was held Wednesday and interment in Sand Hill church cemetery.

BENJAMIN BRADSHAW

Benjamin Bradshaw, aged 16 years, died at the home of his step father, Moses Van Auken, in Lehman last Sunday of spinal meningitis. His mother, with two sisters and six brothers survive him. The funeral was held the same time and place as that of Henry Smith and interment in the same cemetery.

A number of applications are being received for positions as teachers in the Milford schools. There is a demand in the country for thoroughly qualified and competent teachers, and, in all fairness to the youth of the land who are spending the most valuable period of their lives in preparation for the activities to come and the keen competition they will meet in any avocation they may select for their future work, they should be fully equipped and have the best instruction attainable. Any other course is the perpetration of an irretrievable wrong and one always to be regretted.

One of the severest thunder storms ever known here passed over this section last evening. Roads were badly washed and many plowed fields destroyed. Hail broke windows over in Dingman and destroyed fruit and crops. Both the house and barn of Edward Shepherd in Delaware were struck and ignited but the deluge of rain put out the fire. Wednesday evening's storm washed out several hundred feet of track of the O. & W. and Monticello railroads. A large fire was seen last evening in the direction of Colsville, N. J., probably a building struck by lightning.

Wyckoff's New York Store Weekly News

A Good Advertisement

A store can have no better advertisement than a satisfied customer. A trade satisfaction is seldom kept secret; folks like to talk about the store where they have been squarely dealt with. They like to emphasize to others the value of their purchases, the attention and courtesy which have been extended to them. These things all redound to a store's credit. They make friends out of strangers. Need we add that it is one of our highest aims to in every way satisfy you in your money spending in this store.

The Summer Season and Summer Suits Here are some lots of dainty two piece suits. There's much comfort in the wearing of them, there's more economy in the buying of them. We have received our third shipment of shirt waist suits and another is on the road. This puts our stock in as good a shape as in season's beginning. The Voile suit we are offering at $5 will compare favorably with the usual $7 suit. Plenty at lower figures and some at higher price. White and in colors.

Tailor Made Suits and Jackets Reduced There is wearing time for these all season through. Dollars cut off now well below the cost line and you'll find economy in their purchase.

Cloth Shirt Clean Up A clean up sale by our favorite maker puts us in position to save you $1.50 to $2 on a shirt. Prices $3 to $6 instead of $5 to $7.

Summer Underwear This all important matter interests everybody and every one has their own peculiar notion of their wants. To satisfy these wants means an almost endless variety. This is one of the merits of our stock.—Another important merit is that of low price. Try us in this line if you have never done so. It'll pay.

Newest Laces and Allovers We thought the past year was the biggest lace season we ever had and it surely was, as history of our business shows. This season bids fair to outdo all its predecessors. We are stocked now in these departments as we've never been stocked before to supply your wants in these lines. Description and prices is an impossibility in our space but you'll find them, as in all lines, the best values for the money.

Dainty White Shirt Waists In spite of backwardness of the season we have managed to put out an usual number of our white lawn shirt waists. When you see the merits of the goods for the price asked you'll not wonder why. Constantly adding new lines at the popular prices.

Men's Things For Hot Days We're ready for our men friends to help them pass the hot days in comfort. Thin underwear, fancy, thin hose for low shoes, the famous Eclipse negligee shirts, an extra fine showing at the popular prices and right as to style. Neckwear to go with the negligee or dress shirt. A step inside brings you to counter.

Toilet Soaps and Bath Waters Standard brands of both. We shave rightful profits to largely increase the output. Isn't this your chance?
