PAUPACK.

Robins and blue birds arrived the former part of last week.

A snow storm March 3rd, but the sleighing is very poor here. The wind next day swept the roads clean in places and piled up drifts five feet deep in others.

A. K. Killam, wife and daughter Ruth and W. N. Pearson and wife of Hawley were guests with the former mother Mrs. M. N. B. Killam March 2, the occasion being her 51st birthday.

H. Anness and wife of Brooklyn are spending a few days with the latter parents C. A. Pellett and wife.

C. A. Pellett fell last Tuesday and broke his knee cap. Dr. Simons was called and advised him to go to a Scranton hospital for treatment. He went but expects to be able to return in a few days and we hope he may not be disappointed.

F. M. Gilpin and family of Hawley spent Sunday with the family of C. E. Williams.

Rev. W. T. Schenk of Lakeville visited the family of Mr. Tyler part of last week.

Frank Killam left Paupack the 4th, and expects to return to Wisconsin in the near future.

We regret to add a sick list to our items this week and hope the names will disappear from it soon. They are Mrs. M. N. B. Killam, Mrs. L. T. Simons, George Anney and Leonard Anney who have been confined to their homes for the past week.

MOUNTAIN MAKING.

Illustration That is Furnished by Volcanic Islands Along Alaskan Coast. The making of mountains is illustrated by the Bogovol Islands off the coast of Alaska. They are volcanic islands which seem to afford an example of Dr. T. J. See's theory that coastal mountain ranges are first thrown up parallel to the coast line of a continent by the explosions which result when the ocean percolates through its bed to the heated rocks below.

Dr. See's suggestion is that successive percolations and the resultant explosions dig a trench in the sea bottom during the course of ages, one ridge of the excavated trench being thrown up seaward, there to wait perhaps for a million years till it is established as a submarine mountain range, and the sea drains out from between it and the existing continent.

The Bogovol volcanic islands confirm this suggestion, for they and the Aleutian Islands are part of a ridge which is being formed more or less parallel to the northern coast line of North America. The ridge suffers many vicissitudes and the islands are never safe from sinking.

The last of them, Perry Island, rose from the sea about the time of the San Francisco earthquake, 1906. Fire Island, its younger brother, rose in 1853. Castle Island, the oldest, had been known since 1796. The latest island was believed to have disappeared in 1897. It is now reported that Fire Island has vanished also. A party of explorers who had intended doing a little surveying about the islands could not at first find them at all. Later it reports that the biggest of the three islands has sunk to a reef.

Origin of the Club Sandwich. Alan Johnstone is said to have originated the famous club sandwich, and the story runs that on going to the club one night between midnight and daybreak he found the cafe closed, the cooks gone, and being nearly famished, he invaded the larder, toasted himself some thick slices of bread, sliced them through, buttered them while hot and laid thereon everything he found in the refrigerator, cold chicken, ham and lettuce, with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

The result was such an epicurean discovery as is not often made, but the story was too good to keep; he confided the recipe to his cronies and it straightway became one of the popular dishes of the club menu, and so the father of the club sandwich, so deservedly popular, is the present British Minister to Copenhagen.

Yearning for Light. "When it comes to consuming gas in large quantities blind people can best their seeing brethren all hollow," said an inspector of the gas company. "I know two families where both husband and wife are blind. Every jet is turned on full tilt in their homes at night, and is kept going at that rate clear up to 12 o'clock. Light and darkness are all the same to the afflicted ones, but they insist upon illumination brilliant enough for a reception. And that partially for light is not a whim peculiar to those two couples. Most blind people feel that way. They demand the light, and in all private homes and institutions where the blind are cared for the gas bills "suck for the strange fancy."

Rightness expresses of actions, what straightness does of lines; and there can no more be two kinds of right action than there can be two kinds of straight lines.—Herbert Spencer.

Take Your Choice. If you take advantage of your opportunities you will acquire a competence; if you take advantage of other people's you will become a millionaire.—I. T. J.

Steady. Historics make men wise; poets, witty; the mathematic, subtle; natural philosopher, deep; moral, grave; logic and rhetoric, able to contend.—Francis Bacon.

Sickness Seasons. It seems strange to the uninitiated that there should be a "season" for sickness and one for health, but such is the case, according to a trained nurse. "Everything is very quiet just now," said one the other day. "So many surges are out, the doctors have plenty of time and the druggists are complaining of slow business, but a little later it will be different. Our busy season begins usually when the opera does, though the two have no connection. Late November finds us all busy. February is one of our best months."

Sorrows of Childhood. "By George," said the expatriate, "the unfortunateness of living in an apartment never struck me so forcibly as when last night my two kids laid their letters to Santa Claus on the top of the steam radiator and went off to bed trying to figure how Santa Claus could come down the steam pipes and up through the coils. I went out to buy a cigar before they could ask me. Poor little kids, no stockings hung by the chimney for them."

PRESCRIPTIONS COMPOUNDED BY GRADUATE IN PHARMACY

After the Children Start Back to School. Look out for the old trouble with Vermin! Their buzz and children's cries avoid it. They are compelled to daily come in contact with these insects, and vermin spread with alarming rapidity. Anyone is liable at anytime when traveling or in any strange place to become infested, and the only safe way to be it to have on hand, ready for any emergency, some.

Small LARKSPUR LOTION. It is the cleanest, most convenient, practical and effective remedy for the itching humors, itz and redness of the body. It is a clean, clear liquid—nothing greasy or oily about it and has none of the objectionable features of the ointments usually used. Besides, it's safe to use on any part of the body. A good sized bottle, sufficient for family use, sells for 25c.

F. J. HERBST, Graduate in Pharmacy.

Inquiry of Home.

It is only a little thing, but it makes a lasting impression, and that is the way some people make it a point always to ask after a certain member of the household. It may be the invalid mother, or father, or a convalescent child, or perhaps the baby. Just who is the subject of inquiry makes little difference, but the fact that a friend recognizes that your home life centers for the time, more or less around one member is pleasing.

There are some good friends who never think to make inquiries about any of the family. It is impossible not to contrast them with those who are quite the opposite in their thoughtfulness. One person never fails to ask how near relatives are, the realness how close the ties are. Does such an inquiry make the day brighter? Indeed, it does.

Glass Shelves. At very little cost one can have a neat glass bathroom shelf made with nickel or porcelain brackets to hold the collection of bottles, brushes and salve pots that the modern woman includes among her toilet requisites. These shelves are sold in an assortment of sizes and are made of thick plain glass with rounded corners. A few of the self-labeled drug and toilet bottles that are now offered at prices ranging from thirty-five cents up will be useful to hold toilet water, tooth wash and the other essential aids to cleanliness and daintiness.

The Odor of Paint. Every one knows that an onion has a distinct and unpleasant odor, whether cooked or raw. But every one does not know that this odor of an onion will draw to it every other disagreeable odor and clear the atmosphere in a day.

The onion can then be thrown away and with it goes the disagreeable smells that come about in a house that has been closed for the summer.

And this is also a good thing to know: That it will absorb all the odor from fresh paint and turpentine.

Housework Mittens. Kitchen mittens can be bought in several thicknesses and sizes for various branches of housework. There are thick ones with straps across the wrist to wear when polishing the range, then there are others to put on when scrubbing floors or stirs; and still thinner ones with chambray cloth linings to use for polishing silverware. These mittens are a great protection to the hands and fingers, and they really simplify the work more than those women who have not availed themselves of this convenience realize.

Towel Rack. We hang our dish towels on an ordinary wooden curtain pole, which is fastened with brackets at the top of the kitchen wainscoting and extends along one side of the room. There is length enough for several towels, and the whole extends only a couple of inches into the room.

The Imitative Ally. One of the present sensations of the trade is due to the importation of "Irish" linen goods from the land of the wily Jap. The detail an elaboration of the "Irish" are alike astonishing. The prices are ever more so.

Uncle Jerry. "What they call 'honor' is a mighty curious thing," observed Uncle Jerry Peabody. "I know a man who would cheerfully starve himself to pay a gambling debt, and he still owes the preacher that married him 17 years ago."

Why He Never Spoke. There was a man in our town, and he was wondrous wise; he never spoke unto his wife of his mother's cakes and pies. The secret of his wisdom—guess if you can; but if you can't behold it—he was a backside man.

Veneration for Land.

The possession of land is regarded with almost superstitious veneration by the peasants of Russia. A parallel to this feeling is found in the Eastern tale of Naahr Eddi; Hodja, who met a peasant one day with a donkey, over whose back hung two sacks, one filled with stones, the other with wheat, the stones having been added to balance the wheat. "Why not divide the wheat into two parts instead?" suggested Naahr Eddi. Hodja, delighted with the idea, the peasant did as he was advised, and hung the two sacks of wheat over the donkey's back. "And where are your lands, O wise stranger?" he asked, humbly. "I have no lands," answered the other. "You estates, then, and your palaces?" inquired the peasant. "I have none," said the other. "Then your Sowne's your gardens, your orchards?" peralated the man, amazed. "I have some of these," smiled the sage. "What?" cried the outraged peasant. "Do you who have no lands and no possessions presume to give advice to me?" And he unloaded the donkey, rearranged the wheat and stones as before, and proceeded on his way.

All Use Fans. No nation in the world uses such quantities of fans, which are employed by both sexes. With the Chinese gentleman it takes the place of a walling stick. There are special fans for the three seasons of spring, summer and autumn.

The characters in this case are called A. and B. A. has a frightful toothache. B. is playing the part of a doctor. "My dear A.," says B. "you must not succumb this way to the pain. You must not thrash around and bury your head in your pillow and indulge in such inellegant and thunderous language. Be a stoic, A., be a stoic!" A. sits up. "Hats!" he roars. "Stoicism leaves me where toothache beats." B. replies: "All the medicine you need," says an eminent doctor, "is right at your door, and can be had for nothing. Drink an ounce of salt water every fortnight and you will never have to telephone for a physician." Sore Throat Cure. Gargling for a sore throat every half hour with lemon juice and water will often give relief. If the trouble is from the stomach swallowing half a supful twice a day is helpful.
