English and American Gallon. The English gallon is ten pounds of water at a temperature of 62 degrees Fahrenheit. The American gallon weighs only 8.33 pounds. The difference therefore is 1.67 pounds. The American gallon is equivalent to 3.785 liters.

THE BEST WAY TO TREAT A CHAPERON.

If Only Slightly Married She May Be a Great Addition.

The custom of supporting a chaperon in comfort and even luxury in the incipient stages of love-making, while expensive, need not be considered to be the height of a civilized woman's taste.

Many parents think a chaperon may be dispensed with; others, that they are absolutely necessary. Sometimes the young man likes to have a chaperon along. With some girls it is a great deal safer.

If the chaperon is young and handsome and only slightly married herself, she may be a great addition. In case the girl goes back on you at a critical moment you can fall back on the chaperon. Chaperons of this description betray a world of sympathy during these periods.

If she is old and inevitable, do not ignore her too much. Remember that chaperons have feelings. Feed her up well and if possible give her a mild knockout-drop early in the evening.

Occasionally a chaperon will happen who has a New England conscience. A New England conscience, of the way, is the kind that never enjoys itself unless every one else is miserable. Just as you get a firm hold on the girl and begin to kiss her like a rapid-fire machine-gun, the chaperon will begin to push icebergs on your starboard bow and the lovely Aurora Borealis you have been looking at will get fringed. In this emergency devote yourself for a few moments to the chaperon herself. Kiss her, remembering that the only way you can achieve liberty is by risking death. She will either faint away or subside.

If she by any possibility offers to tell the girl's parents on you, insist upon her doing this at once, not omitting the details.

While she is doing this you can make your final arrangements, including the rope ladder, the cloudy night, the six-cylinder runabout, the usual press notices, and the judgment father's final forgiveness.

Cottonseed Meal and Butter.

It is the general experience that cottonseed meal produces a hard butter, and in some instances a small amount of this feed is given for that specific purpose. Trade cottonseed oil has been found to contain a quantity of so-called vegetable stearin, which is separated from the cottonseed oil of commerce in the process of refining. Its fatty acids have a high melting point, and its general composition is not unlike that of other oils which have been found to produce hard butter when fed to cows. Corn oil, on the other hand, contains practically no stearin, and its fatty acids, like those of linseed oil, are liquid at a temperature considerably below freezing point.

The Freshman's Compliment.

A certain college president was entertaining a freshman at dinner, when the conversation turned upon football. To the student's surprise, the president displayed a thorough familiarity with the game, and proceeded to discuss it as earnestly as though it had been Greek or mathematics. Indeed, his treatment of the topic brought out so many points that the freshman had overlooked, that the youth was moved to remark to his hostess:

"Well, this talk with President Blank has showed me how true it is we never meet any one from whom we can't learn something!"

Explaining It.

"Although my father is an invalid," said Miss Howell, "he takes a deep interest in my musical education. He always encourages me to practice my singing at home, even when he's in greatest pain."

"Well," replied Miss Cutting, "they do say that one may be made to forget a great pain by a greater one."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Nerve That Succeeded.

"The Peddler," in which Joe Welch is starring, has such a peculiar effect upon his temperament that he can not find it in his heart to turn down any street peddler who may accost him. However, he lost his temper one day when a Yiddish peddler bothered him. "Get away from here, now," said Joe, testily, "or I'll whistle for a policeman."

"Let me sell you a whistle," suggested the peddler. And Joe, lost in admiration at his nerve bought the whistle.

Balanced with Gold.

A section of the Canadian Northern Railway running northwest from Sudbury and crossing at Vermilion river, is unique in that it is ballasted with gold. Every yard of the gravel used for ballast has been found to contain from 50 cents worth to a dollar's worth of the precious metal, in the shape of fine dust.

WHAT TO WEAR AND HOW TO WEAR IT

Separate Jackets Promise to Be Popular—Graceful and Becoming Aprons—Plain Little Bishop Gown for a Nightdress.

Separate jackets made in empire style promise to be popular for spring and summer wear. They usually are made to match the dress but contrast, not too violent, are newer and, if carefully planned, very effective. If two shades of the same color are used

The effect is best of all. The illustration shows the jacket worn over a dress of pale mauve tulle. The material is a cloth of darker shade of mauve trimmed with silk braid and buttons. A scarf of soft black silk is sewed inside the neck and hangs below the opening of the jacket, weighted with jet tassels.

The style and fit of an apron is really worth considering and now-a-days many of these are really graceful and becoming. Some are made of brightly figured silks and satins, while the embroidered blouses are always adaptable to the smaller kinds.

Government Runs Bars.

In some parts of Russia the bar rooms are run by the government, according to a recent law. It is the rule for all males to remove their hats when in a government building, and it is ludicrous to see the patrons of the bar rooms standing, hat in hand, while waiting for the barkeepers to serve their toddy.

Helpful Beauty Hints

Treatment for Falling Hair—Massage, Vigorous Brushing and Applications of Strengthening Tonics Will Prove Helpful to Impoverished Scalps—Tonic Recipes

Falling hair, an indication of a diseased condition of the scalp, may be remedied in two ways. One is to take a tonic internally, to build up the general strength—the other, is to treat the scalp. The latter does not take much time or thought, and is not difficult. In point of fact any person can apply it herself, but the services of a member of the family make the treatment simpler.

Unless the hair is coming out literally by handfuls, as after a severe illness, I believe brushing is most efficacious. The brush must have long bristles, rather far apart, in order that they will reach to the scalp, and the stroke is to stimulate quite as much as to polish the hair itself. If the scalp trouble is due to illness, and a new growth of hair is coming in with the old, brushing is not advisable, I think, simply because as long as there are two growths left in the head, as it were, it is possible to make a coiffure. The old hair, under those conditions, does not sap nourishment from the new, and the whole is far easier to manage. But when there is no apparent reason for the trouble and the shedding is not great, then I believe in the use of the brush.

Also there must be massage given every night, a tonic put on at the same time is likely to hasten improvement, and a mixture I like is made of a dram of alcoholic tincture of cantharides, half a dram of the tincture of capsicum, two drams of nuxvomica, three-quarters of an ounce of cocoa oil and two and a half ounces of cologne. If the hair happens to be heavy with natural grease one more likely to agree is made of half an ounce of alcoholic tincture of cantharides, three-quarters of an ounce each of spirits of rosemary, glycerine and aromatic vine-gar with an ounce and a half of rose-water.

Either of these is applied in the same way, and should be used every night. A portion of this treatment consists in combing the hair thoroughly and brushing it, not only flat to the head, but putting the brush under the scalp and drawing the hair loose and free, so that all parts are ventilated. Each stroke must begin on the scalp so the tips of the bristles are felt.

This done, the tresses should be divided in two sections, one-half pinned so it will not get in the way when the other portion is treated. Then some tonic should be poured into a saucer, and applied with a soft tooth brush or tiny sponge to the scalp. The hair is again parted no more than an inch from the middle and with the little brush or sponge the scalp line is wet. Another division not more than an inch away is made, that line wet, and the hair laid over, repeating the partings and applications until the entire scalp has been treated.

This done, massaging should begin. It consists merely in holding the fingers firmly on different portions of the scalp and bending the knuckles so that the scalp moves, but the fingers remain stationary. This is continued all over the head, the operation taking fifteen minutes or more. A final brushing is given and the hair loosely braided for the night.

To Lighten the Hair.
X. Y. Z.—Henna tea is not what you require. When light hair begins to get dark, nothing will lighten it but a bleach, and that I do not advise. You could use a tablespoon of peroxide of hydrogen in the water when you shampoo the hair. It would be well to accept the darker looks gracefully as bleaching is bad for the hair and constant trouble to keep up.

Wasps Capture Flies.

Wasps prey on flies—a fact which is well known in Italy. On any summer or early autumn day in the Tuscan country parts, when the luncheon table is blackened by flies, one may see a wasp sail in at the open window, select a fly, roll it over, curl it up and carry it out into the sunshine and soon return for another.

Not What He Wanted.
Brigadier-General E. J. Stuart Wortley, of the King's army, speaking at the mayor's banquet at Folkestone, England, said that many of the unemployed did not desire to be employed. One day, on his estate in Hampshire, a man asked him for work. He replied: "Yes; go to my ballist, and he will give you a spade, and I will pay you at least shilling a week."
"Thank God!" said the man. "I can not tell you how much obliged I am. The man then disappeared, and two weeks later he observed writing on his gate the following words:
"Do not apply for work here, because you will get it."

Prince Rupert's Drops.
Prince Rupert's drops are drops of molten glass, consolidated by falling to water. Their form is that of a tadpole. The thick end may be hammered pretty smartly without its breaking, but if the smallest portion of the thin end is nipped off the whole flies into the dust with explosive violence. These toys, if not invented by Prince Rupert, were introduced by him into England.

Talking on the 'Phone.
"Only about one person in every ten knows how to properly use the telephone," said a district manager of one of the Philadelphia companies. "Yes, sir, I'll stand by my guns on that assertion; and I think I can prove my point. Nine out of every ten persons talk entirely too loud over the telephone. They actually shout and make so much noise that they draw out all semblance of clearness. Then they can't hear, and the first thing you know there is a complaint about poor connection and faulty service. The correct way to talk over the telephone is to talk as you do in ordinary conversation, or even a trifle lower. People can't seem to realize that the telephone will carry a whisper even. No, they must talk loud enough to be heard from Teeth and Chestnut streets to Germantown, if those are the connected points. Just try it your self. Try the low, well modulated voice, and see if you do not get infinitely better service out of your telephone in the future."

Faith, the Light of the Soul.
Faith is truly a light in the soul, but it is a light which only shines upon duties, and not upon results or events. It tells us what is now to be done, but it does not tell us what is to follow, and accordingly it guides us but a single step at a time, and when we take that step under the guidance of faith, we advance directly into a land of surrounding shadows and darkness. Like the patriarch Abraham, we go, not knowing whether we go, but only that God is with us. In man's darkness, we nevertheless walk and live in God's light. A way of living blessed and glorious, however mysterious it may be to human vision.
