PREHISTORIC GAME FOUND.
Monsters With Which Antediluvian Man Contended.
The remains of the Dryopithecus or fossil man discovered on the Bengawan river, in Java, mixed as they were with fossil bones of reptiles of the Cretaceous age, and lying in the strata, clearly prove that man was contemporary with the later of the giant Saurians. Moreover, the discovery of the Narmite jaw, a piece of handwork found in the cretaceous strata in Ada county, Idaho, would imply that he had attained some slight degree of art. Assuming, then, that man was living in the Cretaceous age, the question is, how did he survive his acquaintance with the gigantic Saurians, anyone of which could blow his way through a suburban street today or trample a herd of elephants to death? How did he escape the shining horns of the Triceratops and Ceratosaurs or Plesiosaurs? The answer to these questions is that even then man possessed intelligence far in excess of that of the other animals. He could supply his lack of natural weapons by means of sharpened rocks and flints and could, by reason of his greater courage, take refuge on the sides of volcanoes and other dangerous places where his gigantic foes dare not follow him. At any rate he not only survived the huge creatures of the later reptilian era, but passed into the Tertiary era or Mammalian stage as the first and greatest of the Mammals.

Ireland To Have Forests.
Ireland has awakened to the value of her forests. A commission appointed by the Crown has just made public its report.
The commission urges the adoption of a scheme for the state to plant about 700,000 acres. This, with the 300,000 acres existing, would give Ireland 1,000,000 acres of forest land, an area which the commission considers as essential. About 20,000 acres would be purchased by the state in mountainous regions and managed as state forest, while 500,000 acres would be planted by the state, but managed by private owners or by county councils.
Denmark, an agricultural country half the size of Ireland, has since 1851 increased her forests by 175,000 acres. Belgium, in spite of her dense population, has added 70,000 acres to her forests in the last twenty-five years.
Ireland is particularly suited to soil and climate for the growth of forests, but only 1 1/2 per cent. of her total area is forested.

The Gulf Stream.
This great "River of the Sea" flows from the Gulf of Mexico (hence its name) through the Florida Strait along the eastern coast of the United States, and is then deflected near the banks of Newfoundland diagonally across the Atlantic. It is estimated to be 150 miles wide off Charleston, and 300 miles wide off Sandy Hook, where it spreads, fanlike, over the surface of the North Atlantic. Off Cape Hatteras its velocity is reckoned at about 3 miles an hour, off the banks of Newfoundland 1 1/2 miles an hour, then the rate slowly increases to that of the northwesterly drift of the Atlantic—4 or 5 miles a day. Its temperature is from 45 to 81 degrees, according to depth and latitude.

Grant's Peaceful End.
The peace that he had so often wished for others came to him at last in the truer and more enduring sense. It was the calm death he had hoped for, a gentle and gradual falling to sleep. The weary, anxious night had passed, the rays of the morning sun stole quietly into the death-chamber; but at last there was another morning for him, an other light, glorious, infinite, immortal.

We Poor Men!
Harry is six years old. "Pa," he asked one day, "if I get married will I have a wife like ma?"
"Very likely," replied his father.
"And if I don't get married will I be like an old bachelor like Ma's Tom?"
"Very likely."
"Well, pa," he said, after a moment of deep thought, "it's a mighty tough world for us men, ain't it?"

I Would Be Absolute.
And the first thing I would do in my government, I would have no party to control me. I would be absolute; and who but I. Now, he that is absolute; and can do what he likes, can take his pleasure; he that can take his pleasure, can be content; and he that can be content has no more to desire; so the matter's over.—Cervantes. "Don Quixote."

Adding to His Contentment.
The man who told us so is always probably offensive if he comes around after the arrival of our troubles and tries to look as if he had forgotten all about it.

That Sawing Motion.
"Some people do dislike work," remarked the Observer of Events and Things; "and yet it takes about the same number of motions to pick one of Schubert's sonatas on the B flat as it does to saw a card of wood."

Travel, the Teacher.
No young man can boast of a thorough education until he has been abroad and learned the ways and ideas of other nations. In superior schools traveling during the holidays should be made compulsory, or at least strongly encouraged.

Make Use of Rubbish.
In certain towns in Germany householders are compelled by law to sort out their house dust. They have to provide three receptacles—one for soaking refuse and one for rags and paper. The rubbish is utilized by the town authorities.

The Care of the Sewing Machine.
Sewing machines, like persons, need to be given personal attention every now and then. When a machine seems to "work hard" take the needle and shuttle out, and give every joint and bearing a generous bath of gasoline. Do this during the daytime in order not to have a lamp or fire anywhere near at the time of the using of this very inflammable fluid. Turn the wheels briskly to enable the gasoline to penetrate every part of the machinery and to loosen the old oil and the grime. Then wipe all parts perfectly clean and apply pure "sewing machine oil," running the machine for several minutes before reinserting the needle and shuttle. Be careful to wipe away all superfluous oil and you will find your machine in perfect temper and ready for any work you may bring to it. It will be an absolute pleasure to use it for some time thereafter, and the process will also save the dollar which the "wringing machine man" would certainly charge to repair it.

ONE TEST FOR PEARLS.

Berlin Hotel Porter's Experiment That Was Not a Success.

The porter of one of the leading Berlin hotels has just had a curious adventure. Some time ago a dealer in pearls who was stopping at the hotel told him an infallible way to distinguish real pearls from false, which was to put them on the ground and stamp on them. If real they would resist the test, if false they would be crushed.
The porter, however, never had a chance of putting this theory to the test until a few days ago. The director of a well known company in Berlin, while dining at the hotel, lost a valuable pearl pin. This was found by the waiter, who gave it to the porter to return to its owner.
The porter saw his opportunity had come at last to test the quality of a pearl. He put the pin on the ground, placed his heel on it and ground it to a powder. When the owner arrived to claim it there was a somewhat stormy scene, but he was good natured enough to consent to say no more about the affair on the porter refunding half the value of the pin, 500 marks. In future the porter will submit any jewelry he may find for expert opinion.

A Mere Detail.

"The common practice of lawyers in addressing the jury to single out one member who seems to them the most intelligent, and therefore the one most likely to be influenced by their appeals," observed a Chicago attorney, "does not always work out advantageously."
"All the testimony in a case recently tried in Ohio had been taken the lawyers for both sides had summed up and the judge had charged the jury, when up rose the intelligent juror against whom both counsel had thundered their impassioned appeals. He wanted the court to give him some information.
"I have been bothered a good deal by two words the lawyers use here all the time," said the intelligent juror.
"What are they?" asked the court expecting, no doubt, to be called upon to expound "res inter alios acta" or "a fortiori," or some other abstruse term.
"Plaintiff and defendant," said the juror. "I don't know just what they mean."

Flying Fish.

Interesting are the habits of the flying fish, that queer denizen of the sea, found principally in the region of the trade-winds. Does it rise from the sea like a bird? you ask. No; it shoots out of the waves like an arrow, and with outspread wings sails on the wind in graceful curves, rising sometimes, one might say, to the height of fifteen feet, but not often so high, and then lowering it again touches the crest of a wave and renews its flight. This operation may be repeated till it covers a distance, say, of five hundred yards, in the case of the stoutest of the wing, though very often not half that distance is covered. A whiff sailing through the trade-winds will often be visited, on dark nights, by flying fish which hit the sails or rigging and fall on deck, where, of course, they soon give up life.

Women Not as Strong as Men.

"Women are not on the average but half as strong as men," said Dr. Sargent, the director of athletics at Harvard, in a lecture recently given. "Their lung capacity averages but 160 cubic inches, while that of men is 240 cubic inches. In nearly every instance," he said, "where women excel in sports of the rougher or more masculine sort they have either inherited or acquired masculine characteristics."

For the Music Room.

No piano can possibly be heard to advantage in a room which is either heavily curtained or is overcrowded with furniture. A good plan to insure the correct temperature of the room in which the piano stands is to keep a growing plant there. So long as the plant thrives you can tell that any changes of heat and cold there may be are not sufficient to affect the instrument.

Some Odd Facts in Geography.

New York is usually thought of as being directly west from London. It is, however, despite its far more rigorous climate, nine hundred miles nearer the equator than is the British capital. The bleak coast of Labrador is directly west of London. The same line passes the southern part of Hudson Bay and Lake Winnipeg; on the other side of the continent it touches through the centre of the isthmus of Kamchatka, and Siberia and Russia to Hongkong. It is astonishing, likewise, to reflect on the fact that Montreal, with its waters of great severity, is three hundred and fifty miles nearer the equator than is London. Montreal, indeed, is on the same degree of latitude as Venice. Another illustration of the unexpected in contrasts is found in a comparison of St. John's, Newfoundland, with Paris. Paris has a winter of comparative mildness, while St. John's is a region of bitter cold and fogs, with drifting icebergs along its coast. Yet St. John's is one hundred miles nearer the equator.—Dunlap Advertiser.

Systematic Housework.
It should not take the women till noon to get their morning housework done. If they would systematically the work they would get an hour or two's rest before time to begin their dinner.
First, after breakfast, the dishes should be washed by stacking them in pan and pouring hot water over them; then take out and put in another pan to dry. The dishes, being hot, will be easy to dry.
Second, the beds should be made up, so if any straw or feathers are left they can be removed when sweeping.
Third comes sweeping.
Fourth, while the dust is settling, cleaning lamp chimneys, stacking books or any other little chores could be done.
Fifth, or last of all, would be dusting.
If there are two or three girls in the family each one should be given a task and by so doing the work would be done before you hardly know it.
Try the systematic way and see how much better you like it than the old way of forgetting what there is to do before you get anything done.

Biding Her Time.
A Boston child not yet in her teens and unusually precocious, with exceptional penetration, asked her mother the other day: "How long, mother, will it be before I get old enough for you to say that I am nervous and not naughty when I do so and so?"
She Grew.
A teacher, after patiently defining words in a spelling lesson, gave the word "growsome" from among them, to be put into a sentence, with this result from the brightest little girl in the class: "I cannot wear my last Summer's dresses, because I grew some."
Changed His Mind.
Once there was a bachelor man who said that talk was cheap, but one day he got married, and then he learned a lesson. For when his so-called betrothed forth speak of growsome and such he finds her talk different—it costs him mighty much.
Had Reached Her Limit.
"Mamma," exclaimed four-year-old Dorothy one day, "I'm so full of happiness that I couldn't be happier unless I was bigger."
The Latest.
Where did the flamingo? Why to see the sunfish.
Meteors of Various Sizes.
Meteors vary in size from mere grains of sand to several tons, and consist for the most part of iron and nickel, but no fewer than 24 terrestrial elements have been found in them.

Characteristics of Cities.
Every great city has its characteristics. Americans' most lasting impression of London are the "buses and the fog." Everyone who returns from Paris talks of the "life of the boulevards." Brussels has its lace, Rome its ruins and Moscow its—Beggars.
Sleighing All the Year.
Because of the lichens which grow abundantly on the stone paved streets in Madras, making them slippery, it is possible to use sleighs the year around.
