TIN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Some Helpful Suggestions in Regard to Its Observance.
The tenth anniversary is the tin wedding—a happy occasion in the celebration usually chosen. The invitations may be written on cards smoothly bound with tin foil. The decorations for the occasion should be tinware and pink flowers. The date of the wedding and anniversary may be of large tin letters, or cut out of cardboard covered with tin foil, and placed conspicuously in the room where guests are received. On the table in the dining-room there may be, as a centerpiece, a tin pall filled with flowers and tied around with broad pink ribbon. Tin candlesticks with pink candles and shades, little tin dishes containing tin bonbons and cakes with pink icing are on the table. Tin plates, tin placers, tin spoons, tin forks and tin knives should be used. The guests help themselves and each other, as at any standing-up collation. Bouillon, dainty sandwiches of cream cheese, and chopped nuts, chicken salad, ices and coffee are plenty to serve, and less would do. Souvenirs may be little tinned cake-liners filled with wedding cake in tin foil and tied up with pink ribbons. Gifts for a tin wedding may be flowers in tin dipper stems or growing plants in tin pots, tin breadpan; a bouquet in a tin funnel; two or three long-stemmed roses in an apple-corer, or tied to half a dozen tin spoons; a book enclosed in a wire broiler through which ribbons are threaded; wire baskets lined with silk and filled with bouquets. Intimate and practical friends sometimes send canned fruits, the tin concealed in pink crepe paper; a very nice relative may send a tin savings-bank, well filled with savings.

NEW WOMEN IN TURKEY.

In the new woman about to capture Turkey? During the recent political agitation the unbecoming spectacle was to be seen at Salonica of a woman of rank, the wife of a young Turk, parading unveiled through the streets with a banner to the delight of her husband's partisans. At Constantinople many women, bent on political errands, traveled about alone.

If this is to be the result of a constitutional movement, what is to become of the prophet's strict command against women showing their faces in public? Gone will be the "poor's dream of the dark-wood beauty of Circassia leading lives of indolence behind the screens of the mysterious harem. If the daughters of the new era, like the daughters of Napoleon, go to adopt the fashions of Paris, go in for political economy, suffrage, socialism and small families like British fashionables, and start women's clubs, platform campaigns and summer college courses like their American sisters, a whole world of tradition and romance will soon disappear.

A Fair Offer.
"No," snapped the sharp faced woman at the door, "I ain't got no food for you, an' I ain't got no old clothes for you, git!"
"Lady," replied Harvard Hasben, "I could repay you well. Give me a square meal and I'll give you a few lessons in grammar."

The Object of Thanks.
There was a good deal of sound human nature in the unexpected reply of the dying old woman to her minister's leading question: "Here at the end of a long life, thank the Lord's mercies are you most thankful for?" Her eyes brightened as she answered: "My virtuous."

The Age and Primities Man.
Mr. S. P. Vermer points out that the recent discovery of the chimpanzee in a part of Africa where it had not been known to exist enable us to define a few regions where the gorilla, the chimpanzee and the pygmy exist in conditions suggestive of the possibility of discovering the fossils of their ancestry in good preservation. The pygmy is known to have existed practically in situ for 3,000 years, and it is probable, Mr. Vermer thinks, that the two great anthropoids may have been there for as great or a greater length of time. He is trying to indicate localities of limited area in which the likelihood is very great of covering the fossils mentioned in his next.
