J. H. Van Etten, PUBLISHER.

Rev. Frank De W. Talmage, who at one time thumped the pulch in the Bushkill Church in this county, and was on such familiar terms with Old Testament characters that he spoke of the man Moses who tended his Midianitish herds four thousand years ago on the hills of Sinai and who Curly says wrote the Bible, as Moses, last Sunday in his pulpit in Philadelphia criticised women suffrage. He said women who wanted the ballot were monstrosities, over dressed, bediamonded ballot pleading females. He at last was successful in calling the attention of a number of prominent ladies in that city to his deliverance and some of them have gone back to him in a way which must make him proud.

They characterize him as amusing, having an excited imagination, speaking without facts, and showing great ignorance. Evidently his clerical chaste and Christian discourse had weight, whether it appealed to his congregation or not. A dignified and measured discussion of the great question might be edifying from the pulpit, if it gave equal prominence to the reasons for and against and ended with or without a deduction from the facts allowing each hearer to form his own opinion. But when a pulpit orator arraigns himself against a popular question and uses adjectives or ridicules as argument he gets to the level of the Cambridge friar who denounced the reading of the Bible by the vulgar; for the baker, he said, who found it written that a little leaven would corrupt the whole lump, would give us bad bread, and the plowman would be afraid to labor, when he learned that if he looked back from his plow he was unfit for the kingdom of heaven. Such logic would be as forcible as Dr. Franks argument against woman suffrage when he points it with half clothed billingsgate.

Beat the Jollying Students in a Clash of Wits.

It is told of ex-President Hayes, that while attending school at Kenyon College, he was in the habit of taking daily walks into the country. These trips were shared by two intimate companions who were of a fun-loving disposition which frequently got them into trouble. On one occasion they met their match at repartee in an old farmer whom they met on the highway. The long white beard of the farmer gave him a patriarchal appearance, and while he was approaching the students they arranged to give him a "jollying." One of them doffed his hat with great reverence and respect as he said, "Good Morning, Father Abraham." The second saluted the farmer and said, "Good Morning, Father Isaac." Mr. Hayes, not to be outdone in affability and politeness, extended his hand as he said, "Good Morning, Father Jacob." Ignoring the outstretched hand of Mr. Hayes, the farmer replied, "Gentlemen, you are mistaken in the man. I am neither Abraham, Isaac nor Jacob, but Saul, the son of Kish, who was sent out to find his father's asses, and lo! here I have found them.
