BREAD ON THE WATERS.

Recompense, Just Like in the Stories and Plays.

A Cleveland paper tells of a tramp who came to the back door of a residence and begged for shoes. The mistress of the house gave him a good pair and said to him: "Take set these on, and if you want to show your gratitude, just happen around here some morning after a snowstorm and clean off our sidewalk."

Some time after the lady was awakened early one morning by some one scrapping the sidewalk in front of the house. Looking out, she found that there had been quite a heavy fall of snow, and there she beheld the tramp to whom she had given the shoes, clearing away the snow from the sidewalk with an old broken shovel.
When he caught sight of his benefactress at the window he raised his tattered hat to her, and his self-imposed task finished, went away without saying a word or even asking for anything to eat. Three times the same thing happened during the winter, but the man never asked for compensation or food.

A New York woman once invited a ragged, dirty beggar into her house, and after he had had a comfortable meal and some clean clothing she sent him away with words of encouragement, telling him that he was made for something better than tramping; that it was a shame for a man of his apparent intelligence and good health to be getting a living in such a disgraceful way.

This lady became embarrassed financially and was in some need of money. She asked a friend where she could borrow $200, but he could not accommodate her, nor did he know of any one who could not. Next day, to her great astonishment, a man, total stranger, as she thought, called at her house and told her that he had heard she was pressed for money, and that he had come to lend her the amount she needed. With growing surprise she asked how it was that a complete stranger, whom she had never seen, was willing to trust her. The man then explained that he was the tramp whom, a year before, she had taken to her home and treated like a brother; that her kindness on that occasion had been the turning point in his career, had made a man of him again; that he had prospered beyond his deserts, and that ever since he had gotten on his feet he had been wishing for an opportunity to show his appreciation of what she had done for him.

Birds That Can Talk.

Professor Scott of Princeton says that wild birds sometimes introduce variations into their songs and, again, more rarely, imitate not only the songs of other birds, but the barking of dogs, mechanical sounds like the creaking of wheels, the filing of a saw and even human speech. A writer in Bird Lore gives this well authenticated incident:

One morning while I was standing on my back steps I heard a cheerful voice say:
"You are a pretty bird. Where are you?"

I wondered how any parrot could talk loudly enough to be heard at that distance, for the houses on the street behind us are not near. Presently the voice came again, clear, musical and strong:

"You are a pretty bird. Where are you?"

For several days I endured the suspense of waiting for time to investigate. Then I chased him up. There he was in the top of a walnut tree, and his gorgeous attire told me immediately he was a rose breasted gro-beak.

At the end of a week he was saying, "Pretty, pretty bird. Where are you?" He and his mate stayed near us all last summer, and this spring they came again. He is making the same remark as plainly as ever a bird can speak.

PROFESSIONAL BY-PLAY.

Lawyer Got Paid Back in His Own Sarcastic Coin.

Most lawyers take a keen delight trying to confuse medical experts in the witness box in murder trials, and often they get paid back in their own coin. A case is recalled where the lawyer, after exercising all his tangling tactics without effect, looked quizzically at the doctor who was testifying and said:

"You will admit that doctors sometimes make mistakes, won't you?"

"Oh, yes, the same as lawyers," was the cool reply.

"And doctors' mistakes are buried six feet under ground," was the lawyer's triumphant reply.

"Yes," he replied, "and lawyers' mistakes often swing in the air."

BURGULARS' TOOLS.

Most of Them Made by Supposedly Respectable Mechanics.

Every little while, said a detective recently, the police arrest a man with a set of burglar's tools in his possession, and one naturally wonders where they all come from.

It is easy to buy a gun of any description, and the most reputable person would not be ashamed to be seen purchasing the most wicked-looking knife ever made. But who would know where to get a "jimmy" or a device for drilling into a safe or any of the many tools used by the professional burglar in the pursuit of his calling?

There are places in the large cities where these things are made and sold to the users, but such places are exceedingly scarce. It may seem a little strange to learn that most of the tools used in burglaries are made by mechanics who are looked upon as respectable men in the community.

When a burglar wants any particular tool made he goes to a mechanic who can do the job and pays him perhaps five times what it is actually worth for making the tool and keeping quiet about it. Many detectives can recall cases of this kind that have come to light.

One in particular occurred some years ago, when an escaped convict named Williams went to a blacksmith and got him to make a lot of drills to be used in safe cracking. He personally supervised the tempering of the steel, but when the job was nearly completed it leaked out, and Williams was arrested. In this instance the blacksmith knew nothing of the use to which the tools were to be put. Most of the tools used by burglars are secured in the same way.

ARTFUL BILL DROPS IN.

Calls to See His Friend Tom About a Small Money Matter.

Bystanders saw the derby-hatted, bushy-eyebrowed little man enter the office of his friend with the air of one who has something on his mind.

"Well, well! If there ain't Old Bill!" exclaimed the man sitting at his desk.
"What's on your mind, anyhow?"

"Oh, just dropped in, Tom," replied Bill. "Found myself on your door and just thought I'd see how everything was with you."

"Glad you did. Well, how're you makin' out?"

"First rate. How's things with

"Oh, I can't complain at all. How are all the folks?"

"Fine. Everything's coming all right with you, is it?"

Now, after the conversation had run along in that strain for a little while, the bystanders in the office decided that the caller had dropped in to make a touch.

Bill shifted from one foot to the other uneasily. He seemed to lack for a word. Evidently it was coming.

"Oh, by the way, Tom!" spoke up Bill suddenly, with much show of spontaneity, "I was just on my way down to pay my rent and it just struck me that I haven't quite enough on me. Could you let me have that temper I lent you down at the club last night?"

"There. He'd said it. The worst was over. And it wasn't a touch after all, but a man trying to collect a debt in an inoffensive way, which is twice as embarrassing."

Tom looked at his visitor. "Didn't I ever give that back to you?" he asked.
"Fisht! Why didn't you speak of it before?"

"Oh, I haven't needed it—wouldn't have thought of it now, in fact, if I hadn't been standing here and just happened to think about—not having enough to hand to the landlord."

"Sorry you had to ask for it," apologized Tom.

"Oh, that's all right, I guess I know you well enough to feel free to ask for what I want, hey? No need of formality or anything between us. Of course, I wouldn't have mentioned it at that if I hadn't just been here and happened to think—so on."

And having collected a debt that had been on his mind for months, while he wondered how to get it without giving offense, Bill went his way in a high state of inward glee.
