THE TEST

"Julia, said Walter" with trembling voice
As he looked down at her ring
"I came to release you
From your promise made in Spring.
Much as I love you I'll not blight
Your future. My wealth today
Has been by speculation lost—
Every dollar swept away.
I had thought when your fair hand
I obtained three months ago
I'd be a beggar, but perhaps
The good God willed it so.
But may his bliss be yours,"—Walter stopped,
He could say no more
But quickly turned; Julia stood
Dumb, dazed upon the floor.
His last words so honestly said
Sounded hollow, cold and bleak;
Julia's heart was wrenched to the core,
Her eyes could only speak
Rebuke to him. He knew her wealth
Had he thought her so untrue?
Was scorn worth his value then?
And before he knew—
She had fainted in his arms,
He chafed her hands so cold,
As he knelt beside her form
Insensible. He told
Her how he loved her. Julia smiled,
Her color slowly came,
Her first word as she looked about
Was her lost Walter's name.
Love is the strongest test of faith
"I was shown by Julia how
She clasped his hands, and nothing more
He merely smoothed her brow.
Then silence spoke a world of vows
Re-plighted; true love tells.
Rang out a torchlight from that day
The Cathedral's marriage bells.

NO WONDER SHE'S CROSS.

The woman who has a thousand petty cares and anxieties a while she smiles with her teeth or side she must not be blamed if she cannot always be angelically amiable. What she needs is thoughtful-ness from her family and such a simple and natural remedy as Lane's Family Medicine, the herb tea that makes weak women strong and well. Sold by druggists and dealers, etc.

Hair Apparent to Hairy Parent.

A Lindsay boy had been clothed with his father's cast-off wardrobe and was one day found crying behind the barn. "Pa's gone and shaved his face clean," he explained, "and I suppose I'll have to wear them red whiskers now."

Hearing Things.

She (sternly)—I heard a noise very late.
He (frantically)—Was it the night falling?
She—No it wasn't. It was the dawn breaking.

BELLS OF MEXICAN RANCH.

Date from the Sixteenth Century and Highly Prized by Indians.

The ranch of Jocotlan, belonging to the Indians of the district, comprises 50,000 hectares of very rich land. The price of the Indians is two old bells that hang in the tiny church-yard.

They date from the year 1550 and is rumored, are cast with gold and copper and silver. They bear the date and some words in Latin. Of their history nothing is known. It seems probable that they were cast up by the sea or taken from one of the old Spanish galleons, as Jocotlan is only a day from the coast.

This immense ranch has a history. After the war of independence it was handed to the Indians of Jocotlan, who now number 300. This gift was further ratified under the government of Comonfort in 1857.

Many have desired to get these bells, but the Indians will not part with them at any price.

At the Milliner's.

An Atchison woman who has a sincere desire to be economical, says the Kansas City Journal, took a blue feather, some velvet, and a rose to a milliner, asking the milliner to furnish the shape and trim it. The woman was proud of the feather, the velvet and the rose, as they were as good as new, but the milliner cast just one glance at them, and then the woman began to apologize, "Apologies are not necessary," said the milliner icily. "You surely don't expect me to use anything like that!" And the woman didn't. Another woman said to her milliner, bravely: "I want a hat that doesn't cost a cent over five dollars." "Oh, that's better," said the milliner.

Boats Towed by Autos.

The first successful towing of canal boats by automobile was accomplished one recent Sunday on the Lehigh canal. Owing to the liability of the low-line to snap in the effort to start, George B. Plummer, a Canadian automobile expert, equipped a seven-ton motor truck of 45 horsepower with spiral springs. Six barges with 500 tons of cargo were taken from Allentown to Bethlehem in an hour. Present lock capacity and speed limitations considered, it is estimated that automobiles equipped with mules will handle double the number of boats in half the time.—Philadelphia Record.

First Honeymoon in Air.

Even the honeymoon in the air is not a new idea. M. Flammarion, the distinguished French astronomer and aeronaut, took his bride for a honeymoon trip in a balloon on August 22, 1874. M. Flammarion relates that though she had never been in a balloon before, she felt no trepidation when she took her seat in the car along with her husband and his scientific instruments, at the gas works of La Villlette. They were accompanied by the aeronaut, M. Jules Godard.

"Hickites" vs. "Friends."

Hickites are a numerous body of rationalistic Quakers in America, founded by Elias Hicks (1748-1839), who in 1827 succeeded from the Society of Friends and created a schism in that body by his promulgation of Unitarian doctrines. About one-half of the "Friends" in America adopted his views. The Hickites deny the miraculous conception, the divinity and the atonement of Christ, as well as the inspiration and authenticity of the Scriptures.

Theft of Cottages.

A curious story comes from Potteries of the theft of a whole block of small cottages which had become vacant. The process was by one, and the floors and other woodwork followed. Finally the walls were raised, and nothing now remains but the foundations.—Home Chat.

A GASTRONOMICAL COUP D'ETAT.

George Tried Fork Feeding and Found It All Right.

"So Spencer Eddy has resigned from the diplomatic service, eh? It will be interesting to see his wardrobe on his return home. He is considered, you know, the best-dressed American."

The speaker, a New York clubman, smiled and resumed.
"Eddy is as clever as he is elegant. Once, in London, he had to show a millionaire San Francisco about the town. Before discovering how very crude this San Franciscan was, Eddy got him an invitation to a dinner at a Park Lane promoter's. There's where you meet all the tipsters—at the Park Lane city men."

"Well, this dinner was a brilliant affair. There were dukes, marquises and baronets ad lib. Eddy and the San Franciscan sat side by side and Eddy saw with horror that his friend ate with his knife."

"Quick as a flash Eddy leapt forward and whispered before any of the aristocracy had time to notice the gawcher:
"Say, George, get on to all those things eating their peas with their forks!"
"George, whose peas hadn't been balancing as well as usual on his knife blade, watched his fellow diners for a minute curiously. Then he said:
"By Jingo, let's try it!"
"He tried it, and it was a success. "Eddy," he said, "it's a good wrinkle, this fork feeding. I'll introduce it in 'Frisco when I get back."

A STRONG ATTACHMENT.

Jinks called on your friend, Miss Sweetlips, last night and could hardly tear myself away.
Miss Charming—Was she so delightful as that?
Jinks—Oh, it wasn't she I had to tear myself away from, it was the big dog.

Not the Place for It.

He was writing the libretto for a comic opera. "Slightly he smiled.
"He was a student of jokes, a collector, a reviser, an adapter, a faddist. He subjected the joke to every known test.
Finally he gave it the third degree. There was no longer any doubt of its originality.
He read his manuscript over carefully and, sighing heavily, stared at the joke.
He realized there was no place for it in the libretto.
So he left it out and went on writing.

His Voice.

It was at a summer hotel, and the baby, being warm and fretful, cried.
"Tut! Tut! We can't disturb our neighbors this way," the fond father said, taking the child in his arms.
"Let me sing to him, if he won't go to sleep," he said, and straightaway came a knock at the door and these words: "There's a sick lady next door, and if it's all the same to you, would you mind letting the baby cry instead of singing to it?"

Knew His Zoology.

"Little boy," asks the well-meaning reformer, "is that your mamma over yonder with the beautiful set of furs?"
"Yes, sir," answers the bright lad.
"Well, do you know what poor animal it is that has had to suffer in order that your mamma might have the furs with which she adorns herself so proudly?"
"Yes, sir. My papa."

A Remnant of the Dark.

A colored man died without medical attendance, and the coroner went to investigate.
"Did Samuel Williams live here?" he asked the weeping woman who opened the door.
"Yaasuh," she replied between sobs.
"I want to see the remains."
"I is de remains," she answered proudly.

Dampening Their Spirits.

A little Scottish boy was reading in his history an account of the Battle of Bannockburn. He read as follows: "And when the English saw the new array on the hill behind, their spirits became dampened." The teacher asked the boy what was meant by "dampening their spirits." The boy, not comprehending the meaning, simply answered: "Pitch" water in their whiskey."

Died in Good Company.

A clergyman, who was not averse to an occasional glass, hired an Irishman to clean out his cellar. The Irishman began his work. He brought forth a lot of empty whiskey bottles, and as he lifted each one looked through it at the sun. The preacher, who was walking on the lawn, saw him and said: "They are all dead ones, Pat." "They are!" said Pat. "Well, there is one good thing about them—they all had the minister with them when they were dying"—Tit-Bits.

Serving His Sentence.

"I ain't seen de boss man fer de longest. What you reckon he done ter?" "I thought you knowed whar he gone. He want roun' de country talkin' ever' day an' Sunday, an' de fust thing he knowed dey give him fifty days in de legislature" an' he won't be back 'till he serves his time out."
