After the very pleasant and instructive joint sessions of the Teachers and directors this week there can be no question of the desirability of holding these meetings at the same time. The lack of attendance on the part of directors is regrettable, only 31, or not half the number attended. What excuse the absentees may give is a question. The proposed new code lengthens the terms of directors to six years and if a director will not attend the Convention, unless he has a good reason, the people of the several districts should not annoy him with the office. The conventions are a means of becoming better informed as to the duties of a director and every one who was present went home with new views. Directors have the schools in charge and on their judgment and interest to a large extent depends the character and quality of the educational facilities afforded the children of their districts. If the new code becomes a law be careful next year when directors are elected that only men who are interested in schools are elected. Don't elect men who are indifferent to your school interests your children will suffer irreparable injury if you do.

What people are looking for in these days are men who can do things. The man who cannot and will not aid you to obtain your desires is of no use to you. He may have excellent intentions but if he does not make them effective either through lack of knowledge or indifference he is of no advantage to you. What is true of individuals is of communities. This county unfortunately is poor. The dollars you pay in taxes are hard to raise and improvements are not made without money. Is it preferable that you raise the money for them or that they should be made by the State, to which you do not pay taxes unless you have money at interest. Considerable state money has been spent in this county in the past two or three years, obtained through the efforts of your representative. The manner in which it has been spent may not meet your precise views, but over this your representative had no control. The work at Cave Bank may not, in your opinion, meet the requirements but it is a beginning. Why not send him back and give him opportunity to supplement the sum by obtaining another appropriation with which more work can be done. He has his hands on the free bridge wire, can another get there with the same effects. Give him opportunity to carry this project thru and after he has filled your needs then send some one who can without detriment to you, fall back into the old methods of getting nothing.

Winter is coming, coal and provisions are to buy, new clothing and shoes for the wife and children. Will the $5000 for Cave bank practically all spent here help the teamsters and laborers to buy these necessities, and will the merchants in town derive any benefit from it. Maybe not. Perhaps they would all prefer going back to the old way of getting along somehow without it, and having the merchants bring out their slaves again. They can by voting a change in representative.

Whether the work at Cave Bank will be permanent, or whether it is the best that could be desired one result has been that for several weeks the pay roll for Milford employees was $200 a week. That at least has done somebody good, and the beneficiaries may thank Mr. Marvin for securing the appropriation which put these dollars in their pockets.

DOES THIS MEAN YOU?

Indigestion, sour stomach, constipation—then bowditch, kumkum and a general miserable feeling. Do you know that the pleasantest and most reliable medicine will remove all these troubles almost immediately? GREENTOWN

As William Heberling, foreman, and Edward Hay, sawyer for Thos. Gilpin going out to work a train became loosened and the team started to run. He jumped to catch the colts and fall and broke his arm. Greentown has received another addition to its poor list. Estier King is the fifth in care of the town. A director of Green going to Milford Monday saw a bear in the road near Dingman spring.

Wednesday, October 19th, Mabel Heberling and Mr. Laclair of Tohanna, were married at the home of the bride, who is a daughter of Geo Heberling and wife.

WHAT A WOMAN WILL NOT DO

There is nothing a woman would not do to regain her lost beauty. She ought to be fully as zealous in preserving her good looks. The herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine or Lane's Tea is the most efficient aid in preserving a beautiful skin and will do more than anything else to restore the roses to faded cheeks. At all druggists and dealers.

MAST HOPE

Edward, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mackle died at his father's home at East Tosten Friday eve at 8 o'clock. He has been sick with rheumatism several years and was very ill all last winter, but was much better and went to work in the spring. Later he was obliged to give up work. He was a great sufferer during the last month of his life. He was 77 years of age. The funeral was held at the Lutheran church, Narrowsburg and buried at Lava, N. Y. He is survived by his father, mother, four brothers and two sisters.

Mrs. Leonard Book and daughter Ruth went to Lackawaxen last Monday. From there they were accompanied by her mother Mrs. Barnes to Michigan to visit a sister.

W. H. Hankins caught a bass Monday weighing 4 1/2 lbs. This is the largest bass ever caught in the Delaware at this place.

Mrs. Mary Mullery is improving. Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Hughes visited Mrs. Joseph Tigue at Rowlands on Tuesday.

Mrs. John Crouse is entertaining her sister Miss Rose Gherie. Nathaniel Hankins visited his parents on Sunday. Miss Maud Winter is visiting at Barryville, N. Y.

Sussex county will vote next election on the proposition to change from Chosen Freeholders to three Commissioners.

The early closing movement here is an experiment, but there seems no reason why it should not be agreeable to all. A large share of the business is done now by soliciting orders and making delivery of goods and people ordinarily can conform to the new custom, without inconvenience. Now get the barrooms in line and then open a public reading room and Milford will be far and away ahead of any town in this section.

Averaging the value of automobiles now in use in this country at $1000, it is estimated that their total value is six hundred million dollars. States having the largest number are New York 60,000, California 35,000, Illinois 27,500, Pennsylvania 26,000, Ohio 25,500, Massachusetts 25,000. All the states have more the smallest number being 200.

THE MAN WITH THE CONUNDRUM

Had Glistening Whiskers and a Problem Just Figured Out.

"Here's one you can use any time you like," said the man with the glistening whiskers, bending over the desk of the pale, plodding slave with the recalcitrant fountain pen. "I figured this one out last night. What is the difference between an army officer who has been on a furlough for six weeks and has received an order to return to duty and a physical investigator who reads 'The Raven' to the spirit of his departed ancestor?"

"What is the difference between a man in an airship and a woman making mince meat? Because they both look for currents," mutters the pale, plodding slave.

"Oh, well, if you don't care for any suggestions I can take them elsewhere," thoughtfully declares the man with the glistening whiskers. "The answer to mine is that one reads his 'Go to the post' and the other reads his 'Go to the guest, but you can't see it now.'"

Lord Courtney's Will. Lord Courtney, who recently celebrated his 78th birthday, has a happy wit. During the time he was a member of the House of Commons he was asked at one of the meetings of his constituents whether he was in favor of a bill to legalize marriage with a deceased wife's sister. "May I inquire," he asked, "whether the question is married?" The gentleman replied that he was and that his wife had a sister. "Is your wife present?" asked the future peer. "She is not." "Well," said Mr. Courtney (as he then was), "my wife is present, and she, too, has a sister." The meeting saw the numbers point and the question was not pressed further.—Tit-Bits.

Woman as a Traveler. When a woman who is traveling is assigned to her room in a hotel she looks up the hotel rules on the door and carefully reads them. When she comes to one as follows: "No washing of clothes permitted in this room," she gives a satisfied sigh. Then she unpacks her trunk, rings for hot water and within an hour has the mirror covered with handkerchiefs pasted there to dry, and has nose, underwear, waists, etc., hanging over the back of every chair. Then she gets out her diary and notes in it how much money she has saved. "There are said to be some very historic places in this town," she notes after detaching her wash, "but I will not have time to see them."—Arlington Globe.

Fish That Carry Candles. Some of the fish found at a depth of about ten thousand feet by a German deep sea expedition resembled the fossil species in the rocks of the Mesozoic era, when the earth's atmosphere was dense with carbon. These fish in many cases had special means of collecting light. Some possessed enormous eyes occupying nearly the whole side of the head and some were supplied with telescopic organs. Others carried their light on their heads in a manner similar to that of the glow worm.—Montreal Standard.

Origin of "Three Balls" Sign. The origin of the three balls in front of a pawnbroker's office, says the New York World, was a corporation of Italian merchants, known as "Lombards," who established loan offices in France and England during the thirteenth century. Their "arms," or emblems, (or those of the Medic family, which was foremost in the corporation), were three golden balls. The present "three ball" sign is supposed to be derived from that.

Walnuts for Fighting Bulls. The United States Consul-General at the city of Mexico reports the arrival at Mexican ports of several Spanish ships, bringing in loads of English walnuts. The nuts are being distributed among ranches near Mexico city for use exclusively in feeding fighting bulls. The walnuts are supposed to put the animals on edge for ring encounters.—Washington Post.

Electricity in France. Official reports from Paris and Marseilles indicate the immense strides made by the movement to obtain electric power from waterfalls in that country. Many factories and trolley-lines are now operated by electric power brought over a distance of 100 miles. The effects of the new system are particularly felt in the hilly and mountainous district stretching from the Mediterranean Sea to the Alps, and along the western borders of the latter. It is believed that 2,000,000 horse-power may be economically obtained, and of this total about one fifth has already been utilized, or is in progress of utilization. The work now in progress on new plants in the French Alps will, it is believed, revolutionize manufacturing conditions in the whole Mediterranean region of France, and greatly stimulate and increase the industries of that country.

A Limited Collection. They tell in London a story of an elderly American lady, who, while sightseeing, visited Westminster Abbey. After going about for some time with an air of eager curiosity, she approached a verger. "I wonder if you can help me?" she asked hopefully. "I am looking for the grave of King Edward II."

"Sorry, ma'am," said the verger apologetically, "but we haven't got Edward II."

"But," protested the visitor, "I understood that the Abbey was the burial place of kings."

"So it is, ma'am, in a way," returned the verger; "but we don't have the old numbers 'ere."

A Suicide Signal. Stories in the New York parks are of such common occurrence that the small children with their nurses grow to look for them. "What do you think?" a lot of a girl said to her mother, coming home from her park outing. "Johnny heard a shot, but he couldn't find the body anywhere."

The Alleged Humorists. "You are concealing something from me!" blazed the villain. "Certainly I am," replied the leading lady. "I ain't no Salome!"—Houston Post.

Miss Wabash—How delightfully your sister plays! Miss Wabash—Why, my dear, that's the man in the back parlor tuning the piano.—Life.

"What is a chauffeur, Hans?" "A chauffeur is a man who is smart enough to run an auto, but too smart to own one!"—Kansas City Journal.

Her Blunder. "She realizes now what a mistake she made." "What's the matter?" "Her first husband has just made a great success, while her second is still waiting for a salary."—Detroit Free Press.

The Philosopher of Folly. "Happiness," says the Philosopher of Folly, "is a loss-up between a bachelor's advice and a married man's example."

Taking His Measure. "Your husband is something of a baseball fan, isn't he?" said the visitor. "Fan" doesn't begin to express it," replied young Mrs. Torkina. "Charles is a regular windmill."—Washington Star.
In Doubt. "Did you ever have appendicitis?" said the insurance man. "Well," answered the skeptic, "I was operated on. But I never felt sure whether it was a case of appendicitis or a case of professional curiosity."
