FOR REPRESENTATIVE
ALFRED MARVIN
Matamoras, Pa.

If the managers of Tener desired to crucify his chances of being elected Governor they could not have hit on a better plan than that of putting him on the stand it his suit for criminal libel against a Philadelphia news paper. No man of fair judgment and ordinary sense can deny that his testimony assuming his sincerity and truthfulness, convicts him of being either in knowing complicity with a lot of swindlers or else having been most woefully gulled by them. To over one hundred questions on cross-examination, almost every one of which might have been answered by Yes or No, he replied either that he "did not know" or "did not recall." And this with respect to his connection as president and director with a two million dollar corporation less than a year ago. He knew, or his counsel could have informed him, as to the probable line of questions on cross examination, and it would seem that if he had nothing to conceal and if his connection with the company had been honorable and if the company was sound, he could have informed himself so as to make his answers seem frank and open. It certainly was a pitiful exhibition for a man who professes keen business instincts and careful, honest methods in the conduct of his transactions with the public. If he states the whole truth the gullibility of a former Governor in connection with some large State enterprises looks like a split 30 cents, in comparison with Tener's simple belief in a gang of promotors of fraudulent schemes. If that be treason to a party we have always upheld and revered, and if Tener truly represents that party we plead guilty of high treason.

A paper styled "Farmer's Advocate" purporting to be published at Stroudsburg, but bearing no name of editor nor stating its local home, is being largely circulated in this, and presumably other counties of the 14th Senatorial district. It charges that Harvey Huffman, candidate for Senator, while serving as County Solicitor of Monroe charged $391.27 for legal services in connection with a bridge case, when his salary as solicitor should have covered all his services to the board. It makes a similar charge in reference to some fish tax cases and in tax appeal cases and further alleges that while solicitor he was retained by an ice company to have its assessment lowered, and it was done. It also charges that he made strenuous efforts to defeat Palmer for Congress at the last primary and elect J. Davis Brodhead. What effect these declarations may have on the voters in Monroe county we know not, but not one word has been spoken by any one against the integrity or ability of Winifred D. Lewis of Carbon the republican candidate and if voters wish to uphold the cause of political virtue they may cast their ballots for him.

We have been consistent in urging that if the district is to be represented in Congress by a Democrat it is wiser to select a man with experience and ability than to keep constantly changing so that the different counties comprising it may honor their favorite sons. A man gains weight and influence by experience and a district becomes more important by sending such a man as its representative. Mr Palmer, according to his speech here, don't want the rule to work both ways. He is urging his claims to reelection because he has learned the ropes and is in a better position to serve his constituents, has broader knowledge of men and methods of the law making business. But he reverses his argument when it comes to representation of this county. He urges the election of a democrat, without regard to his experience, knowledge or ability to do things. He does not say that he will be successful in obtaining appropriations, or influential in framing or passing laws beneficial to his constituents. He can give no satisfying reasons, only advises a change. If the rule is good to thus irrigate to defeat Mr. Marvin it is equally good in the case of Mr Palmer. Let the people vote a change. Will Mr Palmer agree to this construction of his argument?

Six inches of snow fell in the middle of the County which became less to within a couple of miles from town, where it disappeared. Last night the surrounding hills were whitened and some snow remained this morning.

SAFE AND SURE.

Among the medicines that are recommended and endorsed by physicians and nurses is Kemp's Balsam, the best cough cure. For many years it has been regarded by doctors as the medicine most likely to cure coughs, and it has a strong hold on the esteem of all well-informed people. When Kemp's Balsam cannot cure a cough we shall be at a loss to know what will. At druggists' and dealers'. 25c. 3.10

Useless Studies

At a meeting of teachers held in Philadelphia last week to consider the matter of eliminating certain branches of mathematics heretofore taught in the public schools it was agreed that such parts as finding the greatest common divisor, finding the least common multiple, certain fractions, mensuration, and in higher mathematics calculus, etc, should be dropped as useless. It was argued that equal mental discipline could be assured by the substitution of other branches which would be of practical value. If the new school code is adopted this winter, a course of study may be outlined by the board of education which will eliminate from High School courses several apparently useless studies. Not that any pupil can know too much but that a pupil who may have neither time or inclination to pursue all the branches may be taught only those from which he will derive the greatest practical benefit in the pursuit of his business. As the matter now stands no High School pupil can cover the prescribed course in a thoro manner. Nor should a pupil be allowed to select just the studies for which he has a taste. He must persist sometimes in some tasks but as far as possible all should be in harmony with the developing his mind along useful lines.

DIFFERENT.

What He Prepared to Say and What He Really Said.

He had been told that he might "ask papa" and he had planned to do it in these words:

"I dare say that you know, Mr. Rocke, that I have been paying your daughter Madge marked attention of late, and now I have come to ask her hand in marriage. I know that I am a poor man, but I am an honorable one, and I am not afraid to work. We are willing to fight the battle of life as bride and bridegroom, pilgrims of life together. I love your daughter devotedly, and I have come to ask your consent to make her my wife."

That sounded all right when he read it for the fifteen time from the sheet of paper on which he had written it, but the girl's father finally said when he broke both to Mr Rocke, with his teeth chattering and beads of cold perspiration on his brow:

"I dare say that you, Mr. Rocke—I—your daughter Madge has been paying me marked attention—or, no, I have been paying her marked attention, and I—I we are willing to fight—or the battle of life—I mean that your daughter and I—my hand in marriage—or, no, I—I seek her hand, and—and—I love you—or no, your daughter—I mean she—she—that is I—I have come to ask your consent to be my wife—that is I—love you devotedly—your daughter I mean—she loves me devotedly—no, I mean that I love her—and she—she—I trust I make my meaning clear, sir."

Breaking the News Gently.

On a recent trip of the Mauretania, Captain Pritchard was asked for a sea tale. Here's the yarn he spun:

"Once upon a time an old lady was returning from abroad with a parrot, of which she was very fond. She intrusted the bird, with many admonitions, to a sailor for the voyage.

"Sadness or something killed the parrot the third day out. The sailor, knowing how grief the old lady would be, could not bring himself to tell her the sad tidings, but asked a companion, famous for his skill in such matters, to break the sad news to her very, very gently. The man agreed to do it.

"Approaching the old lady with a tragical face, the famous newsbreaker touched his cap and said:

"'I'm afraid that 'ere bird o' yours ain't goin' to live long, ma'am.'

"'Oh dear!' exclaimed the old lady in alarm. 'Why?'

"'Cause he's dead!' was the reply."

Marvelous Improvement.

He was very little. Learning to skate seemed to him difficult. On the first occasion that he trusted himself on the ice he fell down no less than forty-one times by actual count.

Next day he caused roars of laughter when he appeared at home dripping from head to foot and covered with snow, by announcing proudly, as soon as he was inside the front door:

"Fell down only thirty-seven times!"—The Wasp.

SOME REST.

"Henry, do you ever talk in my sleep?"

"No, thank goodness."—New York Telegram.

Bleeding Fish to Keep Them.

The Norway fisher cuts and bleeds fish the moment they are caught. He cuts the throat and bleeds them from the tail. Fish so finished keep far better. Fish are best just before spawning time. Thereafter they become poor, lean, watery and unfit. Some fish are scorched by cherrily and mackerel. No matter how fresh the fish the people vomit, purge and break out in boil sores. It is not uncommon to find dead oysters mixed up in the heap. Those dead ones are liable to poison the live ones.

The Acreage Problem.

The "acreage problem" is very simple. An acre measures 209 feet each way, containing 43,681 square feet. Now, if a plot of ground has a frontage of 254 feet, its depth must be as much as 264 to contained into 43,681 square feet, equalling 128.39 feet, which will be the depth. To prove it, multiply 254 by 128.39, which equals 43,681. Very simple, isn't it?—L. Gibbins in the New York World.

Bullocks and a Bull.

He was an Irish barrister; therefore he must perpetrate a bull. Addressing the jury in tones of deep emotion, he said: "It will be for you to say, gentlemen, if the defendant shall be allowed to come into court with unblushing footsteps, with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth, and draw those bullocks out of my client's pocket with impunity."
