J. H. VAN KITTEN, PUBLISHER.

The Milford correspondent of a near by paper says the crop of candidates in this county is getting ready to be picked. For sheriff there are several and a popular one from this borough, and a hustler for County Commissioner from Dingmans, also a republican from here and a candidate for treasurer from Matamoras and Milford. All this will sound encouraging to the boys and the inquisitive are already trying to find out whether the above prognostications are moonshine, hot air or feelers. No one doubts there will be a lively time next year and it may be wise for candidates to get out early, if they have the sand to hold out to the end. No use to remark that there is more or less—not much less—commercialism in politics and just how any aspirant can afford to hand out any considerable amount of persuasion, and substantial argument requisite to land him, when the perquisites attached to most of the offices in the county are so small is one of the mysteries, past solving. If a man intends to be honest in office he cannot afford to pay more to secure it than the salary he will receive. Yet it is said a man cannot be nominated without great outlay and if this is true who is to blame. If the people insist that men must buy their way to office can they complain with reason if those same men get even with the gamblers by ways that are devious. This may not be honest but where the temptation is great and a man feels that he has been forced to spend on indifferent or commercial voters large sums to get them to the polls he naturally gets in a don't care habit and looks out to recuperate his pocket book at the expense of his conscience. The remedy which might be offered is so perfectly Utopian as to be ridiculous in these days. It is let all candidates agree to stay at home and spend no money but use the newspapers as a medium to place their claims before the people. Voters will find out who and what you are and if you are elected you can afford to be honest, and if you are not, you can't get what you should not have, and you will not be out in much save your lacerated feelings, and time will heal them.

Discipline of Pupils
In Honesdale a man had the principal of the public schools arrested for correcting his boy while on the street. Under the Act of 1895 the State Superintendent decides as follows:
"The jurisdiction and authority of the teacher over the pupils are neither limited by the school house walls, nor to the time the school is actually in session. As a general rule, all matters legitimately connected with the schools and the manners and morals of the scholar, the teacher's jurisdiction, jointly with that of the parent, commences when pupils leave the parent's roof and control to go to school, and continue until their return from school. The teacher, however, is not responsible for the misconduct of pupils on the way to and from school, though he has the right to punish for such misconduct, when brought to his knowledge."
