Agricultural.

To Farmers and Potatoe Growers.

For some years past, the people of this country have sustained many serious losses in consequence of the riot, and general failure of the potatoe crops. We have felt this calamity in our own county very much, during the past twelve months.

Now, my friends, such having been the case, I will here suggest a mode which will prevent the rot, and produce the usual crop. I speak from experience in this matter. Let every farmer plant his potatoes above ground, in the following way. When your ground is well covered with manure, every 2 1-2 or three feet throw two light furrows together, within 2 or 3 inches, then lay your seed on the top 10 or 12 inches apart, and cover it lightly. Afterwards give them the ordinary plowing or dressing.—The seed remains near the surface; the ground becomes more mellow, the potatoes grow much larger, and in a wet season, the unnecessary water will run off and prevent the rot.

This experiment was tried by a gentleman, in a lot, one of which was put in the ordinary way, by plowing down, and the other, half put in as above. In the Fall, when taken up, not one could be found diseased, and more than double the quantity in bulk, as they had grown much larger than those planted on the other part of the lot.—Lancaster Examiner.

ASHES ON CORN.—A correspondent asks the editor of the Genessee Farmer, what is the best method of applying ashes on corn?—Should it be put in the hill when planting?—on top of it after planting?—or after it comes up? And what is the quantity to be applied either way, of unleached or leached?

To which he replies—The above are questions of considerable importance. Last season we injured a crop of corn, or rather saw it injured, by the application of ashes and salt, in contact with young tender plants. These were thrown with the hand on each hill. Had the application been made as soon as the corn was covered at planting, spreading the ashes and salt over considerable surface, no injury would have been done, while the fertilizers would have been extremely beneficial.

We shall use this season, on a five acre field, a compound of three bushels of unleached ashes, one of salt, one of gypsum, and a like quantity per acre. This we shall scatter over each hill as soon as planted.

RELIGION—WHAT IS IT?

Is it to go to church to-day,
To look devout and seem to pray,
And ere to-morrow's sun goes down,
Be dealing slander through the town?

Does every sanctimonious face,
Denote the certain reign of grace?
Does every phiz that scowls at sin,
Veil not hypocrisy within?

Is it to make our daily walk,
And of our own good deeds to talk?
Yet often practice secret crime,
And thus misspend our precious time?

Is it for sect or creed to fight,
To call our zeal the rule of right,
When what we wish is, at the best,
To see our Church excel the rest?

Is it to wear the Christian's dress,
And to mankind good will profess,
To treat with scorn the humble poor,
And bar against them every door?

Oh no! Religion means not this,
The fruit it bears much fairer is,—
Its precept is, to others do,
As you would have them do to you.

It grieves to learn an ill report,
And scorns with human woes to sport;
Of other deeds it speaks no ill,
But tells of good—or else keep still.

Ah! does religion this impart,
Then may its influence fill my heart!
Oh haste the blissful, joyful day,
When all the earth shall own its sway.

Burchard, the Revivalist.

In the Editor's Table of the Knickerbocker for the present month, we find the following from a correspondent.

"They tell an excellent story of Burchard the Revivalist; not of him exactly, either, but of what happened at the close of one of his meetings. He was in the habit of addressing his congregation in this wise:

'I am now going to pray, and I want all that desire to be prayed for, or to have any of their friends who were absent prayed for, to send up their names on a piece of paper.' On the occasion to which we refer, there was at once sent to the desk quite a pile of little slips of paper, with the names of the persons on whose behalf he was to 'wrestle,' as he said, 'with the ALMIGHTY.' A pause soon ensued, when he said, 'Send 'em up! send 'em up! I can pray for five thousand just as easy as I can pray for a dozen. Send 'em up!' If you hav'nt any paper, get up and name the friend you want prayed for.'

At this stage of the proceeding a man whom we shall call Oziel Briggs, a stalwart person of six feet and a half in his stockings, a notorious unbeliever and a confirmed wag to boot, rose in the midst of the congregation, a mark for all, and amidst the winks and smiles of the auditory, said: 'Mr. Burchard, I want you to pray for Jim Thompson!' The reverend petitioner saw, from the excitement in the audience, that Oziel was a 'hard case.' 'What is your name, sir?—and who is Mr. Thompson?' 'It's Jim Thompson;—he keeps a tavern down in Thompsonville, and I keep a public house a little below him. He is an infernal scoundrel, and I want you to give him a lift.'

'But,' said Mr. Burchard, 'have you faith in the efficacy of prayer? Do you believe in the power of petition?'

'That's neither here nor there,' responded Oziel; 'I want you to try it on him.'"

A Lawyer Among the Cows.

Lawyers, it is generally conceded, are 'cute at pickin' clients pockets. Some of 'em, however, are not so all-killin'-cute at selectin' the best of stock—cows, horses, pigs, &c. I know of one, at least—a lawyer of some considerable celebrity,—in fact, I believe he has been honored with a seat on the Bench—who once made a most egregious bull in picin' out a herd; and as it is your vocation to record all "Bulls," whether of Yankee or Irish origin, I will "do" you this one, substitutin' fictitious names for the originals.

Squire Wick, who lives not a thousand miles from the Capital of the Pine-tree State, was a great favorite with the late Judge Cranch. Several years since, while visitin' the Judge, the latter invited the former to walk over his premises. Among other places, they visited the barn-yard, and the Squire was struck with admiration as he gazed upon the noble herd of cows, which had just been drove up for milkin.' He expatiated upon their beauty, their different good "points," &c., with as much freeness as would a first rate stock-breeder, but the fact was, he knew but precious little about stock, and some of the "good points" which he pointed out, caused the Jude to laugh some in his sleeve.

"Well, Squire," said the Judge, "which of the cows will you take?"

"Which will I take, your honor?" said the Squire, somewhat bewildered as to what the Judge meant.

"Yes—which will you take?" I'm going to make you a present of one of them—now choose ye which you'll have."

"Really, your honor, this is entirely unexpected. I have no objection to receiving the present, but really I choose not to make the selection. I had rather your honor would make the selection—receivers should not be choosers."

"If you accept the present, you must make the selection. That's the way the case stands—make your action accordingly. Being a good judge of stock, you'll not be likely to cheat yourself," and the eccentric judge smiled a knowin' smile.

The Squire donned his gold-bowed spectacles, and began to view the cows with a critic's scrutinizin' eye. After some fifteen minutes severest scrutinization, he turned to the Judge, and said—

"I apprehend, your honor, you wouldn't like to part with that very fat, short-horned, thick-necked cow?"

"I have no choice—make your selection," said the Judge, his risibles almost choking him.

"I don't want to rob you of your favorite cow, but if you have no choice, I should prefer the very fat one—she has many good points."

"No favorite—no robbery at all—the fat cow is yours. My man will drive her to your house before milking."

The 'Squire returned home highly pleased with his present, and made haste to inform his wife. In about an hour the cow was driven into the 'Squires yard, by John, the Judge's man. The 'Squire dispached his servant girl, a stout, healthy daughter of Africa, to milk the new cow,—"the fattest, best-pointed cow in the village." In a few minutes in came the ebony lass, gigglin' and sneezin' and laughin' and perhaps blushin' though no signs of it were perceived. 'Squire Wick knew something was to pay, by Dinah's extraordinary actions, but he didn't smell the rat, by a long chalk. There Dinah stood, 'rounded up' with laughter, the empty pail danglin' about every which way.

'What on earth is to pay, Dinah?' inquired the 'Squire.

'Oh, lor massa, nuffin, only—ki-hi-hi-i-i-i-he-he-he-e-e-e!'

The 'Squire looked to the wife—the wife looked to the 'Squire—then both looked to Dinah, who had 'conniptioned' with laughter, and settled down by the door, her face covered with an apron, and her laughin' machinery shakin' her sides at a tremendous rate.

The 'Squire's mad was up. 'Dinah!' said he at the top of his voice, 'tell me what's to pay, or I'll throw you out of the house!'

Dinah rose, and mastered herself long enough to say—

'Oh, lor massa, nuffin, only dat cow of yourn be a—a GEMMAN COW—ki-hi-i-i-i-he-he-e-e-e!'

If you know how a chop-fallen man looks, you have a pretty fair likeness of Squire Wick at the moment, and for a week after, Dinah made the denoument. The way that 'very fat, short-horned, thick-necked cow' walked back to Judge Cranch's, is no body's business; and the way the Judge laughed at his friend, is no particular consequence to the reader.—Yankee Blade.

A Witty Retort.

Cried Celia to a reverend Dean,
"What reason can be given,
Since marriage is a holy thing,
That there is none in Heaven?"
"There are no women!" he replied;
She quick returned the jist—
"Women there are; but I'm afraid
They cannot find a Priest!"

Says Jack to Tom, "let's go and ship
On board the Mexicans to whip."
Says Tom "but first I want to know
If 'tis to Vera Cruz we go;
They say the castle's very strong,
The fight will be both hard and long."
Says Jack, "that is, for glory's sake,
The very cruise I wish to take."

Locke says, every sect, as far as Reason will help them, gladly use it; when it fails them, they cry out, it is a matter of faith, and above reason.

The Grape-Vine Cradle.

THE undersigned takes this method of informing the public that he is now engaged in manufacturing one of the most useful instruments for cutting grain, ever offered in market. The structure of this Cradle is such as to enable a man to cut his grain with much less labor than is usually required—thereby almost changing the task into pleasure. A number of citizens of this county, who have used the Cradle during the past season, (whose names can be given if reference is desired) hesitate not to pronounce it superior, by fifty per cent., to any instrument of the kind they ever used.

An opportunity of examining the structure and utility of the instrument will shortly be given. They will be offered for sale by the first of May, at all the principal stores and public places throughout the country.

HYER'S PILLS.

The American Improved
Hygeian Vegetable Medicine.

THESE Pills are one of the best Medical Compounds in use at the present day.—As a common family physic, for administration in all temporary complaints of the stomach and bowels, head ache, colds, &c., they may be fully depended upon, and a prompt use of them on the first appearance of indisposition will invariably save much sickness. They are peculiarly adapted to all cases of weakness and general debility—any derangement of the system, and especially with females—and a steady, uninterrupted use of them, in strict conformity with the directions will very soon restore the organs of the stomach to their natural tone and action, and regulate the bowels, and renovate the whole system.

There is no disposition to give extravagant commendations of them. What is here stated, is the result of actual experience with them, and that through a period of fifteen years. It is not supposed, or pretended, that they will raise the dead; neither are they designed to be used as freely as we use our food! Such is no the true purpose of medicine. Its only appropriate office is to assist nature in restoring the system to a proper tone and action, when unavoidably, or through carelessness or excess, it becomes deranged. Many are careless, and hence need this aid. And the most careful are liable to irregularities of the system. It is needless almost to say, that a prompt use of safe and effective remedies, on the first appearance of illness, is the part of wisdom. ☞ Such a Medicine the Proprietor knows these Pills to be. ☜ And he is certain that in forty nine cases out of fifty, where a fair trial is made according to the directions, they will be used again as a standard medicine. He has never known an instance, where they have been thus used, in which they have not met with UNQUALIFIED APPROVAL!

Numerous testimonials may be seen at the General Office of sale, and references will be given to substantial living witnesses of their valuable curative properties.

The Pills are purely vegetable, are of two kinds, stimulant and purgative, purifying the blood, and producing a healthy action through the entire system, are a valuable Anti Bilious Medicine, and eminently useful in all lingering complaints—Weakness, General Debility, Dyspepsy, Pulmonary Affections, Liver Complaints, Rheumatic and Spasmodic Affections, Female Complaints, Palpitations, &c.

No Family, after a fair trial, will be without them.

They are put up in FIFTY CENT and DOLLAR PACKAGES, each having a pamphlet embracing a valuable Treatise on Disease, with full directions for use. The Dollar packages are the cheapest to the purchaser. They may be ordered through Druggists, giving the Street and No. of the General Depot.

Sold, Wholesale and Retail, at
No. 140 Fulton street, Second Floor, N. Y.
Between Nassau-street and Broadway.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber offers for sale his Farm, containing one hundred acres, situate in that part of the township of New Milford, known as the Stanley settlement, Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania. About sixty acres of said farm are in a good state of cultivation,—the whole is well watered—good and convenient buildings thereon—and an orchard of 200 bearing which last year, when most orchards in the neighborhood were rendered worthless for the season by the frost, yielded upwards of 400 bushels!—also, a good variety of other fruits, among which are Pears, Peaches, Plums, &c. The portion not cleared is well timbered, and the farm as a whole, offers good inducements to any one who is desirous of purchasing a farm in this section of country. There are also attached to the premises, a Cider Mill and Cider Mill House. JOHN STANLEY.

APPLE TREES,
