THE FARMER'S COLUMN.

The Farmer.

The farmer's life is happiness ! For who does not admire His well-filled granary and barn, All to his heart's desire. The wide spread field, the yellow corn, The squashes, beans, and beet, All tell that he has labored well : His barvest is replete.

14 AThe farmer's life is happiness, "With fields well covered o'er; With wheat, that bends beneath its weight, And plenty at his door ; The cabbage head, the pumpkin vine, The oats and English hay, Proclaim that God has crowned his toils,

His labors to repay. The farmer's life is happiness, He has enough for all; He hears the orphans when they cry,

He answers to their call; And God will surely him reward,

An hundred thousand fold,

And turn his poorest tillage land, Into rich fields of gold.

In shill down and nave found it serviceable to mix up a little pulverized black pepper with the young chicken's food. We have found boiled millet seed an excellent food for the young while we have given it uncooked to the old with excellent effects. Hens, while laying, should have their food alternated, sometimes Indian meal dough, then corn or buckwheat and again oats.

In raising young chickons, care must be taken to keep them dry, feed them regularly, and give them fresh; water which should be renewed whenever it may be rendered dirty.

The nests of the laying as well as the setting hens, should be preserved from lice. This may be effected by making them of clean straw, placing a few tobacco stems at the bottom, dusting a little ashes through the nest, and greasing the under part of the wings of the hens where they join the body and also the back of their beads and necks. It may be done also Bees wax, Geese feathers, &c. &c. at the highof their bends and necks. It may be done due by using snuff and grease instead of grease alone—this last plan we do not approve, though not effective, as it is apt to sicken the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the hens for a time of the solution of the solution

Garlic, Chives, and Shallots, chopped up very fine and mixed in small quantities with the chicken's food opensionally, exert an excellent influence upon their health. Young Chickens, while feeding should always be protected from large fowls.
