our universities, and that its pursuit receives to so large an extent the countenance of our government. The National Observatory cannot be in better hands than those of Lieut. Maury, and we feel confident that there is nothing which research and scholarship can do, that shat gentleman will not accomplish .--- N. Y. Herald.

"IT ISN'T ANYTHING ELSE."-We have made sundry researches for the purpose of ascertaining the origin of such phrases as "I won't do anything clse," and "it isn't anything else," & c., which has become quite fashionable among the b'hoys, and we think it has been found in the following true story : A French Field Marshal who had attained that ranks by court favor, not by valor, going one evening to the opera, forcibly took possession of the box of a respectable Abbe, who for this outrage brought a suit in the court of honor, established for such cases under the old government. The Abbe thus addressed the court : "I came not here to complain of Admiral Suffrein, who took so many ships in the East Indies ; I came not to complain of the Count de Grasse, who fought so gallantly in the West; I came not to complain of the Duke of Crebillon, who took Minorca, but I came to complain of Marshal B——, who took my box at the opera, and never took any thing else." The court paid him the high compliment of refusing his suit, declaring that he had himself inflicted sufficient punishment.

A CURIOUS PREACHER. The favorite preacher in New Orleans, is Parson C-He belongs to no denomination, subscribes to no creed, but preaches the gospel on his own hook, with great talent and eloquence. Meet him in the St. Charles and he will take a julep with you, smoke a regalia, play you a string of billards, beat you a game of tenpins, and if not engaged to preach a sermon will accompany you to the theatre. Preaching, one Sunday, after the last hymn had been sung, and just before pronouncing the benediction, he said :

" My friends, I have the pleasure of giving notice that Mr. Booth, the tragedian, has arrived in town, and will perform in his great part of ' Richard the Third,' this evening over at the St. Charles theatre. Mr. Booth is considered a great man, and a very excellent actor, and those who wish to see a good performance, cannot do better than to see him. I shall, also, with the leave of Divine Providence, give a lecture in this house, at the same time, and such as prefer to come to the church, I shall be happy to see present?" He then concluded with the usual benediction.

No one, except a few strangers present, seemed surprised. The theatres are open always on Sundar nights, and we are not aware that even the preachers of the strictest sects make and opposition to an estab-lished custom. As an innovation, it would of course be a different affair. Strange place, New Orleans ! Some of our northern men wonder it has not been swallowed up long ago, especially as it is far below the level of the river.
