

ings, we learn from the Buffalo Courier, was characterized by good feeling and mutual courtesy. True the elements of partisan strife were there—even it may be presumed that some of the Delegates were bending all their energies to make the important question under consideration have a bearing in the selection of a candidate for the next Presidency, yet the Report of their deliberations, which we publish below, was moderate, and was unanimously adopted. After the appointment of several committees to collect statistics, memorialize Congress, circulate petitions, &c., the Convention adjourned.

The following is the Report adopted by the Convention:

The Convention submit to their fellow citizens and to the Federal Government the following propositions as expressing their own sentiments and those of their constituents.

First, That the Constitution of the United States was framed by practical men, for purposes declared in its preamble:—"To provide for the common defence, to promote the general welfare, and to secure the blessings of liberty;" and was mainly designed to create a government whose functions should and would be adequate to the protection of the common interests of all the States, or of two or more of them, which could not be maintained by the action of the separated States. That in strict accordance with this object, the revenues derived from commerce were surrendered to the general government, with the express understanding that they should be applied to the promotion of those common interests.

2. That among these common interests and objects were—1st, Foreign Commerce, to the regulations of which, the powers of the State severally were confessedly inadequate, and 2d, internal trade and navigation, wherever the concurrence of the States was necessary in its preservation or where the expense of its maintenance should be equitably borne by two or more States, and where, of course, those States must necessarily have a voice in its regulation; and hence resulted the Constitutional grant of power to Congress, "To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations and among the States."

3. That being thus possessed both of the means and the power which were denied to the States respectively, Congress became obligated by every consideration of good faith and common justice to cherish and increase both the kinds of commerce thus committed to its care, by expanding and extending the means of conducting them and of affording them all those facilities and all that protection which the States individually would have afforded had the revenue and the authority been left to them.

4. That this obligation has ever been recognized from the foundation of the government, and has been fulfilled partially by erecting light-houses, building piers for harbors, break waters and sea walls, removing obstructions in rivers and providing other facilities for the commerce carried on from the ports of the Atlantic coast, and the same obligations have been fulfilled to a much less extent in providing similar facilities for "commerce among the States," and that the principle has been emphatically acknowledged to embrace the western lakes and rivers, by appropriations for numerous light houses upon them, which appropriations have never been questioned in Congress as wanting constitutional authority.

5. That thus by a series of acts which have received the sanction of the United States and of every department of the Federal Government, under all administrations, the common understanding of the framers of the Constitution in granting to Congress the power to regulate commerce has been manifested and has been confirmed by the People, and this understanding has become as much a part of that instrument as any one of its most explicit provisions.

6. That the power "to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the States and with the Indian tribes, is on its face so palpably applicable in its whole extent to each of the subjects enumerated equally and in the same manner, as to render any attempts to make it more explicit, idle and futile, and that those who admit the rightful application of the power to Foreign Commerce by facilitating and protecting its operations by improving Harbors and clearing out navigable rivers cannot consistently deny that it equally authorizes similar facilities to "Commerce among the States."

7. That "Foreign Commerce" is dependent upon internal trade for the distribution of its freights, and for the means of paying for them so that whatever improves the one advances the other, and they are inseparable that they should be regarded as one.—That an export from the American shore to a British port in Canada is as much foreign commerce as if it had been directly to Liverpool, and that an exportation to Liverpool neither gains nor loses any of the characteristics of foreign commerce, by the directness or circuitry of the route whether it passes through a custom-house on the British side of the St. Lawrence or descends through that river and its connecting canals to the ocean, or whether it passes along the artificial communications and natural streams of any of the States to the Atlantic.

8. That the general government, by extending its jurisdiction over lakes and navigable rivers, subjecting them to the same laws which prevail on the ocean, and on its bays and ports not only for purposes of revenue, but to give security to life and property, by the regulation of steamboats, has precluded itself from denying that jurisdiction for any other legitimate regulation of commerce. It has power to control and restrain, it must have the same power to protect, assist and facilitate; and if it denies the jurisdiction in the one mode of action, it should renounce it in the other.

9. That in consequence of the peculiar dangers of the lakes, arising from the want of harbours for shelter, and of the Western Rivers from snags and other obstructions, there are no parts of the United States more emphatically demanding the prompt and continued care of the Government to diminish those dangers, and to protect the property and life exposed to them; and that any one who can regard provisions for those purposes as sectional, local and not national, must be wanting in information to the extent of the commerce carried on upon those lakes and rivers, and of the amount of trading population occupied or interested in that navigation.

10. That having regard to the relative populations of the States, the appropriations heretofore made for the interior rivers and lakes, and the streams connecting them with the ocean, have not been in a just and fair proportion to those made for the benefit of the Atlantic coast; and that the time has arrived when this injustice should be corrected in the only mode in which it can be done by the united, determined and persevering efforts of those whose rights have been overlooked.

11. That independent of this right to protection of "Commerce among the States," the right of "common defence" guaranteed by the Constitution, entitles those citizens inhabiting the country bordering upon the interior lakes and rivers, to such safe and convenient harbors as may afford shelter to a navy, whenever it shall be rendered necessary by hostilities with our neighbors, and that the construction of such harbors cannot safely be delayed to the time which will demand their immediate use.

12. That the argument most commonly urged against appropriations to protect commerce among the States, and to defend the inhabitants of the frontiers, that they invite sectional combinations to insure success to many unworthy objects, is found on a practical distrust of the Republican principles of our Government, and of the capacity of the people to select competent and honest representatives. That it may be urged with equal force against legislation upon any other subject, involving various and extensive interests. That a just appreciation of the rights and interests of all our fellow-citizens, in every quarter of the Union disclaiming selfish and local purposes, will lead intelligent Representatives to such a distribution of the means in the Treasury upon a system of moderation and ultimate equality, as will in time meet the most urgent wants of all, and prevent those jealous and suspicious which threaten the most serious danger to our confederacy.

13. That we are utterly incapable of perceiving the difference between a harbor for shelter and a harbor for commerce, and suppose that a mole or pier which will afford safe anchorage and protection to a vessel against a storm, must necessarily improve such harbor, and adapt it to commercial purposes.

14. That the revenue derived from the imports on foreign goods belong to the whole people, and the public lands being the common heritage of all our citizens, so long as these resources continue, the imposition of any special burden on any portion of the people, to obtain the means of accomplishing objects equally within the duty and competency of the general Government, would be unjust and oppressive.

15. That we disavow all and every attempt to connect the cause of internal trade and "Commerce among the States" with the fortunes of any political party; but that we mean to place that cause upon such immutable principles of truth, justice and constitutional duty as shall commend the respect of all parties, and the defence of all candidates for public favor.

ASTHMA CURED BY JAYNE'S EXPECTORANT.
Lambertville, N. J., April 27, 1847.
Dr. Jayne—Dear Sir—By the blessing of God, your Expectorant has effected a cure in me of the most distressing complaint. In December last, I was seized with great severity by a paroxysm of ASTHMA, a disease with which I had been afflicted for many years past. It was attended with a hoarseness and soreness of the lungs and throat, together with a laborious cough, and complete prostration of strength, and worn out with suffocation when a bottle of your Expectorant was brought to my house. At first I thought it was nothing but quackery, but seeing it was so highly recommended by Dr. Going, with whom I was well acquainted, I was induced to try it, and in a few days it completely cured me, nor have I ever had any return of the disease since. I have now formed so high an opinion of your medicine, that if I had but a few bottles of it, and could obtain no more, I would not part with them for ten dollars each.
Yours respectfully,
JOHN SKERN,
Pastor of the Baptist Church at Lambertville, N. J.

NO EXCUSE FOR A BALD HEAD.
From the Somerville, N. J. Whig.
Sometimes since I called upon Mr. P. Mason, of Somerville, for Dr. Jayne's celebrated Hair Tonic, to restore my hair, which was then falling out daily. I procured one bottle, and applied its contents according to the directions. When the bottle was exhausted, I discovered to my great surprise and satisfaction, that the young hair was starting abundantly. I therefore purchased another, and so on till I had used three bottles, and now, as a compensation, my hair is as thick as ever.
And what is more surprising, my baldness was not occasioned by sickness, in which case there is greater hope of restoration—but was hereditary.

SUMMER WEATHER.—It should be remembered that during the heat of summer, the process of digestion is performed with such extreme languor that our food, instead of being speedily dissolved and converted into nutriment for the body, often becomes actually spoiled or putrid in the stomach. Hence bad breath, disagreeable taste in the mouth, cold pains, dysentery, cholera morbus and other disorders of the interior.
Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills are a certain cure for all the above complaints; because they cleanse the alimentary canal of all the bilious and putrid humors, which are the cause, not only of all the disorders of the bowels, but of every malady incident to man. They also aid and improve digestion, and purify the blood, and therefore give health and vigor to the whole frame, as well as drive every description of pain from the body.
Beware of medicine under any other name than Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills, and see that the signature is on the box. Office 160 Race St., Philadelphia.

They moreover possess facilities, in relation to the Tea Trade, in a very abundant degree, and doubtless superior to any other Tea Concern in America. Their scrupulous regard to all principles that tend to elevate the character of a large house, is well understood, and has already secured them a connection, probably larger than all other Tea Establishments united, and consequently they are determined to sell Teas purer, more fragrant, and perfect for the price, in the aggregate, than any house in the world—China excepted.

They respectfully invite the attention of the inhabitants of Susquehanna county to their Agency in Montrose, where the following assortments are always on hand; and they feel no hesitation in stating, that wherever a single trial is made, a very decided preference is given to the celebrated Teas of the CANTON TEA CO.

But such has been the growing and increasing demand for their TEAS of late, that they have been obliged to enlarge, to a great extent, their two principal establishments in New York, viz:

125 Chatham & 163 Greenwich Sts.

They moreover possess facilities, in relation to the Tea Trade, in a very abundant degree, and doubtless superior to any other Tea Concern in America. Their scrupulous regard to all principles that tend to elevate the character of a large house, is well understood, and has already secured them a connection, probably larger than all other Tea Establishments united, and consequently they are determined to sell Teas purer, more fragrant, and perfect for the price, in the aggregate, than any house in the world—China excepted.

They respectfully invite the attention of the inhabitants of Susquehanna county to their Agency in Montrose, where the following assortments are always on hand; and they feel no hesitation in stating, that wherever a single trial is made, a very decided preference is given to the celebrated Teas of the CANTON TEA CO.
