THE FADED HEATHER.

[It is recorded of the Highland emigrants to Canada, that they wept because the heather would not grow on their newly-adopted soil.] There may be some too brave to weep...

GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

One summer evening, when a primæval forest covered almost the entire surface of this now glorious Union, a young British officer, in rich uniform, stood on the shore of Lake Champlain, and looked off on that beautiful sheet of water...

non and a howitzer about forty rods from the walls, and opened his fire. Winter had now fairly come upon them—the ground was covered with snow, and Montgomery was compelled to place his guns on blocks of ice...

Two attacks, led by Majors Livingston and Brown, against the upper town, were to be only feints to attract the attention of the garrison, while Arnold and Montgomery should conduct the two real ones against the lower town...

ON BITS OF THE LADIES SEWING SOCIETY.

President.—Ladies! I believe we are all assembled, what shall be the subject of discussion this evening? Miss L.—Oh, you select one. Mithith G. I you are always so full of subjects.

President.—Go on with the subject, ladies. (Enters Miss D., quite flurriedly, who whispers to the ladies as she passes them.) Mrs. A.—Engaged to whom, my dear? Miss D.—Frank Forester! her parents are much opposed to it.

President.—Bless me, it's raining! Ladies you had better all go home at once. Miss L.—My new thick dress! Miss Q.—My new chip bonnet! who'll lend me a pair of gums? I'm so subject to cold.

PANTHER FIGHT.

From a letter dated Newton, Jasper county, Arkansas, July: "Mr. Samuel Hudson went into the woods about three miles from his house, accompanied by his son, ten or twelve years old, to cut a bee-tree, and as he expected to find 'lots' of honey, he did not take his shooting iron with him, believing that he could not carry it and the honey too."

They are a fierce, though handsome set of fellows. Next came the Tartars, upon their wild fleet little horses; all of them carrying their necks forward and their heads high up in the air, as if snuffing the breeze, so uniform was the line of heads, as if they were drawn up by pulleys.

White and Brown Bread.

Several years ago, we threw out the surmise that the separation of the white from the parts of wheat grain was baneful to the health. We proceeded upon theoretical grounds, believing that Providence must have contemplated our using the entire grain, and not a portion only, selected by means of a nicely arranged machinery.

After this, the whole body stationed themselves some distance opposite the Emperor, in close order; and at a given signal, half of a run and suddenly halted a few feet in advance of the Emperor, preserving as they halted, the same compactness and the same perfect front which they had before starting.

The Disabilities of the Jews.

Last evening, a crowded meeting of the members of the Jewish Association for the removal of Civil and Religious Disabilities, assembled at the Fishmongers Arms, St. James' Place, Aldgate. This Association has already held two preliminary meetings, and the object of the present one was to confirm the minutes of the preceding one, to hear an address, dedicated to the electors of the city of London, and composed by Dr. Raphael, of the Birmingham Jewish Congregation, and to discuss the resolutions detailed below.
