

THE OLD HOME.

When I long for sainted memories, Like angel troops they come, If I fold my arms to ponder On the old, old home.

Where infancy was sheltered, Like rosebuds from the blast, Where boyhood's brief elysium In joyousness was passed; To that sweet spot forever, As to some hallowed dome, Life's pilgrim bends his vision— 'Tis his old, old home.

A father, and how proudly, By that hearthstone's rays, And told his children stories Of his early manhood's days; And one soft eye was brimming, From child to child would beam, Thus a mother counts her treasures In the old, old home.

The birth-day gifts and festivals, The blended vesper hymn, (One dear one who was swelling it 'Is with the seraphim.) The "good nights" at bed-time, How quiet sleep would come, And hold us all together, In the old, old home.

Like a wreath of scented flowers, Close intertwined each heart; But time and change in concert Have blown the wreath apart But sainted memories, Live on, ever come, If I fold my arms to ponder, On the old, old home.

Do You Read.

Did you ever think of the pleasure to be derived from reading? To hold communion with the minds of good men in all past ages—the purest and noblest, the most intelligent and far-seeing—is certainly very pleasant. Sweet as honey to the taste are the glowing thoughts and emotions stirred by a good book; and he who knows how to read has always at hand, when among books, a ready means for deriving the highest enjoyment. He may truly say,

"I need not go abroad for joys, Who have 'em least at home?"

Did you ever think of the profit of good reading? How much more select the choice of words, and the arrangement of the style, than in ordinary conversation! and then how much more rapidly can the mind take in ideas from running the eye over the printed page, than when it must await the slow utterance of the lagging tongue! Here is the choicest and most varied information collected by the best men of the ages, all brought together and preserved for us, how profitable, therefore, to read all this and do it at one's leisure! Besides, did you ever think how a good book to read, or rather, how reading diminishes temptations, both to evil thoughts and to bad deeds? Old Dr. Watts sang with as much truth as poetry, to say the least.

"For Satan finds some mischief still, For idle hands do."

With such greater force may it be said of that much industrious gad-about, that he finds some mischief for idle minds to think. But reading, while it employs the mind, will drive away all, or, at least, most of those tendencies to evil thought, and keep the mind occupied thoroughly with something good. And then, when you are reading a good book, how will that business drive away evil associates, and so fill up your own time, that you will find no opportunity to engage in wicked or in unprofitable deeds. Add together, then, the pleasures, the profits, and the securities of reading, and tell us, young man, tell us, young woman, if it will not pay to form a habit of reading? It will not cost much money, and will save a great deal. It will not cost much labor, and will make that labor very sweet. It will not demand a great deal of time, and will make all time pass away swiftly and agreeably. Learn to read, then, and follow up the practice.

An Important Disclosure.

Not long ago, in a pleasant little rustic village, across the Delaware, there lived an adoring youth, a young merchant of the place, who offered homage at the beauty's shrine of a comely demoiselle, also belonging thereabouts. On the occurrence of one of his weekly visits, after the entire vocabulary of "small talk," which none but lovers can appreciate, had become completely exhausted, he brought up the character of a young female friend of his—with whom he, being the betrothed of another, was on terms of intimacy not exactly according to Ginter. He spoke at some length, and with a warmth of feeling by no means pleasing to his companion, in laudation of the merits of his very particular friend, and in confusion observed:

"She is a noble, generous-hearted girl, and one who is right here."

The remark was accompanied by a gesture which brought his hand in close proximity with the heart.

"Fudge! fudge! Mr. Nonsense!" ejaculated the lady, springing from her seat in a fit of jealous indignation. "Pshaw! I'd have you know, sir, that that's half cotton."

KING CORN.—Eleven miles of corn-cribs are building along the line of the Illinois Central Railroad by the Company, some twelve miles south of Chicago. They will hold 3,000,000 bushels, which will be received in payment for lands, at the full Chicago price.

Old horses should be driven by old people. 'Till you have the rheumatics yourself you cannot properly sympathize with the spavins of other people.

Quaint old Fuller says, "Let him who expects one class of society to prosper in the highest degree, while the other is in distress, try whether one side of his face can smile while the other is pinched."

A plenty of fresh, sweet butter, and a good appetite, will keep bread from moulding.

A reasonable gathering, and a reasonable spending, make good house keeping.

Ingratitude is a homeless dog, which lives upon all and defiles none.

WAYNESBORO

FOUNDRY

AND MACHINE SHOP!

IMPORTANT TO WHEAT GROWERS.

GEISER'S PATENT SELF-REGULATING GRAIN SEPARATOR, CLEANER AND BAGGER

AND THE Latest Improved Thresher and Triple Gear Horse Power, driving either by Gear or Belt, all furnished complete, ready to be put on Wagons.

I, the undersigned, desire to call the attention of Farmers and Threshers of Franklin and adjoining counties to this. This Machine has been before the public for seven years, during which time it has given general satisfaction, and the patentee having made some very important improvements which render it still more complete, both for clean separating and cleaning, and also for ease of draught and fast threshing. I take pleasure in recommending it to the public, knowing that it will give the best of satisfaction. I am manufacturing three different sizes, as follows:

No. 1 is 8 horse Power, will thresh and clean from 200 to 500 bushels per day.

No. 2 is 6 to 8 horse power, will thresh and clean from 150 to 300 bushels per day.

No. 3 is 4 to 6 horse power, will thresh and clean from 100 to 200 bushels per day.

These Machines are warranted to do the above, and do it much better in every respect than any other machine in use.

Grain having much light chaff in it cleaned on this Machine is worth from 2 to 3 cents more per bushel than when separated on any other separator, or the common way of cleaning on hand fans. For this reason there is not the eighth part of light matter in the grain as when cleaned on the riddle principle. The blast acts freely on all the grain as it leaves the shutes, whereas, when cleaned with riddle that advantage is lost.

This machine does not return the tailends as most of the separators do. By returning finely tailed ends alternately it is impossible to make merchantable grain. Another important feature in this machine that others of the kind have not, is the Self-acting Key Water Lubricator, which removes all difficulties in bad cleaning, blowing grain in the chaff in high speed or irregular driving, which cannot be avoided in cleaning grain by horse power.

This Machine is also more durable and less tedious to manage than any other Separator and Cleaner, or the common machine with shaker.

Orders to insure their being filled until harvest should be sent in immediately.

I am fully prepared to make to order and on short notice Portable and Stationed

STEAM ENGINES,

GRIST AND SAW MILL GEARING, SHAFING AND PULLEYS,

IRON BRIDGES, CAST IRON WATER WHEELS, IRON KETTLES, &c.

Stoves and Flow castings, cast iron and wrought iron pipe for steam or water, and Brass castings of every description; in a word, I am prepared to do everything usually done in a foundry and machine shop.
