And left one dog behind. He stole away the last old goose, He ate the brindle cow, He did not spare the spavined horse,

He took all but one sow. He used up all the oats and corn, He fed up all the hay, And when the Yankees came in sight, Old Wise he ran away.

He ran so fast he could not stop For valley or for hills He had no time to call around To pay his washing bill.

But when old Gabriel blows his horn, And the devil claims his own, May he throw open wide his arms To welcome old Wise home.

And when he takes old Wise below, With Jenkins and his host, May he with fear and trambling, No longer swear and boast.

When Floyd comes home to greet him, As he is sure to do, May the devil and his ancels, Put both the traitors through.

But, good devil, you be careful, And give them all they need, Or, by the great old Moses, They'll both again secede.

Watch Floyd in every movement, Be sure to guard him well; For if you don't be careful, He'll steal Wise out of hell.

A Patriot Mother and a Rebel Son.

A few days since, Mrs. Tilghman, accom panied by her daughter, Mrs. Lowry, came to Boston and put up at the Revere House, for the purpose of visiting Gen. Tilghman, the rebel prisoner at Fort Warren. There was some difficulty in obtaining the required permission, but on Saturday, says the Gazette, the mother and sister were allowed to visit the Fort and have an interview with the prisoner. The first exclamation on meeting him was, "Oh, my rebel son!" and during the conversation she said, "When I heard you were taken I thanked God that you had been rescued from secession in uences, and were I to hear there was any chance of your being exchanged, I would go on my knees to the President to prevent you from again joining the rebels, for I had rather have you remain here during your life than to know you were among the traitors of the country.

She never Leaves Him

Look at the career of man as he passes through the world; that man visited by misfortunes! How often is he left by his fellow man to sink under the weight of his of-flictions, unheeded alone! Ore friend of his own sex forget him, another abandons him, another, perhaps, betrays him; but wouldn, fathful woman, follows him in his afflictions with unshaken affections; braves the changes of feeling, of his temper embit tered by the disappointments of the world with the highest of all virtues; resigned pa-tience ministers to his wants, even when her own are hard and pressing; she weeps with him, tear for tear, in his distresses, and is should but one light up his countenance in the midst of his sufferings; and she never leaves him in his misery while there remains one act of love, duty or compensation to be performed. And at last, when life and sorrow end together, she follows him to the tomb with an ardor of affection which death itself cannot destroy.

Rules for Life.

1. Choose the path of virtue, and imitate a high pattern.

2. Do all the good in thy power, and let every action be useful.

3. Cultivate thy mind carefully-it will be a store of pleasing reflection. 4. Be diligent in thy business, and strictly upright in all thy dealings. 5. Investigate affairs closely, and engage in them cautiously.

6. Lay thy plans with prudence, and be prepared for emergencies.

7. In all difficulties be patient, and overome them by perseverance. 8. Do that first, always, which needs dong most.

9. Have a place for everything, and everything in its place. 10. In all these things be economical without meanness, and combine utility with elegance.

UNSUCCESSFUL IN HIS LIFF.-I confess that increasing years brings with them an increasing respect for those who do not succeed in life, as those words are commonly used. Heaven is said to be a place for those who have not succeded upon earth; and it is surely true that celestial graces do not best ficulties in bud cleaning, blowing grain in the chaff in high speed or irregular driving, which cannot be prosperity. Ill success sometimes rises from superabundance of qualities in themselves good-from a conscience too sensitive, a taste too fastidious, a self forgetfulness too romantic, a modesty too retiring. I will not go so far as to say, with a poet, that "the world knows nothing of its greatest men," Mrs. Tilghman received her permit to visit but there are forms of greatness, or at least see Fort direct from Secretary Stanton whom excellence, that die and make no sign; there stake; there are heroes without the laurel

1, the undersigned, desire to call the attention of Parmers and Threshermen of Frankling and adjoining counties to it. This Machine has been before the public for seven years, during which time it has given general satisfaction, and the patentee having made some very important improvements which render it still more complete, both for clead separating and cleaning, and also for ease of draught and fast therebing. I take pleasure in recommending it to the public, knowing that it will give the best of satisfaction. I am manufacturing

No. 3 is 4 to 6 horse power, will thresh and slean from 100 to 200 bashele per day. These Machines are warranted to do the above. and do it much better in every respect than any ther machine in use.

Grain having much light filth in it cleaned on this Machine is worth from 2 to 3 cents more per bushel than when cleaned on any other separator, or the common way of cleaning on hand fans. For this reason there is not the eighth part of light matter in mands of the people he hopes to retain and secure the grain as when cleaned on the riddle principle. The blest acts freely on all the grain as it leaves the shues, whereas, when cleaned with riddle that ad-
