Then weary worn they fay to rest.

Where Treason's vain end haughty crest.

Had wrung a sigh from many a breast.

The soldier's dying, knell.

Sleep on! brave martyrs to a cause That will restore a Nation's laws, While Europe's Despois wildly pause And trembling thrones quake. Sleep on! where Treason's legions trod The desecrated crimsoned sod Bequeathed by Nature's holy God The sovereignty of State.

All hail! thy mem'ry ever dear Though many a mother's blinding tear Has fell like dew upon the bier Of her heroic son. Yet will thy name forever be The battle-cry of Liberty, While every banner of the free Shall bear the fame you've won,

Rejoice brave soldiers you shall wear he laurels which no cowards share While matrons gray and maidens fair Unite to sing thy fame, Which like a temple towering high Yoward the azure star-elecked sky Will move each heart like yours to try To bless the Keystone's name.

Peace to the ashes of the dead Thrice honor to the hearts that bled The gallant hand that Stumbaugh led-Into the bloody-fray With loud and thundering peal on pear Which caus'd the traitors ranks to reel Before their bristling line of steel
They bravely fought their way.
