

VILLAGE RECORD. WAYNESBORO. Friday, January 30, 1863.

Forever float that standard sheet! Where breathes the foe but falls before us, With Freedom's soil beneath our feet, And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

OUR TERMS. The following are our terms for subscription, advertising and job work, to which we will strictly adhere...

PUBLIC SALES.

We invite special attention to the sales in our advertising columns, to come off as follows: Jer. Spenser, January 27; John Chize, 28; John Senger, 30; H. E. Wertz, 31; Brotherton & Sellers, 31; Synthe Stoops, February 2; George Stamy, 2; Wm. Ridenhour, 4; Andrew Senger, 7; John Singer, 8; Wm. Sarbaugh, 9; Leander King, 11; Hezekiah Shank, 13; Jacob F. Hess, 14.

LAST NOTICE.—We have yet upon our books the names of many subscribers who have not paid us a dollar on their accounts for several years.

A THOROUGH.—We have been compelled of late to give our attention almost exclusively to job work. This must be our apology for deficiencies in the paper until our busy season shall have passed around.

SALE BILLS.—Our rates for sale bills are from $2 up to $6.50, according to size. A small advance on old prices.

BANK ELECTION.—On the 10th inst. the following gentlemen were re-elected Directors of the First National Bank of Waynesboro' to serve the ensuing year: W. S. Amersbach, Alex. Hamilton, Geo. Besore, Geo. Jacobs, John Price, Samuel Frantz, Daniel Mickle, Henry Good, Jas. H. Clayton.

THE LADIES' FAIR.—We are informed that the ladies realized by their Fair held during the holidays the handsome sum of $348 26, net, which has been forwarded to the Christiana Commission at Philadelphia for the benefit of our gallant soldiers in the field.

EAGLE SHOT.—On Friday evening last Daniel Stover shot near this place a Grey Eagle which measured from the tips of its wings 6 1/2 feet. A rare bird in this region.

FARM FOR SALE.—It will be seen by reference to our advertising columns that the farm belonging to the heirs of Israel Senger, dec'd., offered at private sale for several weeks, will be exposed to public sale on the 30th inst.

SOLD.—The house and lot, property of John W. Harbaugh, dec'd., was sold by G. V. Meigs, auctioneer, on Saturday last to John Stover, for the sum of $900.

It is a fact of no little significance that Richardson, who has for two years past disgraced the State of Illinois in the United States Senate, did not even receive the compliment of a "complimentary vote" from his party friends at the recent Senatorial election. Two years ago he was regarded as the leader of his party, now "none so poor as to do him reverence."

Don't forget, good reader, to notice the sales which appear each week to week in the Record.

See advertisement of Jas. Philips, Esq., agent for the Pontiac Fire Insurance Company.

A CHANGE OF SCENE.—In front of the Court House in the City of Savannah were taken, says the Lancaster Examiner when our army entered, the usual evidences of Southern civilization, thick heavy oak tables, used as addition-blocks. On these addition-blocks all slaves sold at public sale in the city, were exposed to view, when sold at auction. These, for over half a century, men, women and children, met for the last time in this world. There the father would for the last time look on his wife and children, as he was marched off by some kind master to the rice swamps; and his wife handed over to the tender mercies of some equally kind master, who held that "niggers" were much better without being married than with families. The children some other son of "chivalry" would take too, as a great and exemplary southern christian gentleman, who had no doubt but what God had made these young "niggers" on purpose for him to buy. The reader will bear in mind; also, that all these "chattel" things combined all ages, all sizes and all colors. From the ebony African to the lily white, or delicately tinted yellow. From these blocks all the anguish and agony the human soul is capable of enduring, went up almost daily, calling on the Great God to avenge their sufferings and wrongs. At last it has come. It came when Gen. Sherman and his noble army of abolitionists entered Savannah. They had swept the soil of Georgia as with a whirlwind, and when the men—the soldiers who carried their muskets across a continent, came within sight of these damnable auction-blocks, an insult to decency and humanity, they burnt them up—the tests of blood and anguish they sent heavenward, with the flame and smoke of the burning embers. This, is, indeed, glorious! The American soldier, wherever he has gone through Georgia, has struck off the shackles of the slave and destroyed every evidence of the infamous institution. The slave and the auction-block have alike shared the same fate; and we believe that men, women and children, have been sold in Savannah for the last time. And we hope to see the day, when the last slave shall have shaken off his shackles, wherever our flag floats. What a grand work. Who dreamed four years ago, when Abraham Lincoln had to steal his way into Washington city, the Capitol of the Republic of which he had just been elected President, that these things would during his day cease in Baltimore; let alone Savannah. Yet look at it! Baltimore, New Orleans, Nashville, St. Louis, Savannah, Vicksburg and Memphis, all free cities. States are shaking off the vile thing; and millions of bond-men are looking up from their lowly nothingness into the clear light of freedom.

Death of Hon. Edward Everett. BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Edward Everett died this morning at four o'clock, at his residence in Summer street, of apoplexy. His age was seventy years and about nine months. Mr. Everett addressed his fellow citizens at Faneuil Hall on Monday last, in favor of sending provisions to Savannah, and during the afternoon of that day was present in court in reference to a claim for damages against the city of Charleston for the overflowing of a portion of his estate in Medford by the construction of a dam on Myrtle river. On Tuesday he became affected with quite a severe cold, but neither his friends nor himself deemed it serious. On Saturday evening he appeared almost as well as usual, and retired to bed, declining to trouble any one to remain with him. About 3 o'clock in the morning his housekeeper entered his room, and found him sleeping naturally. An hour later she was alarmed by hearing a heavy fall in his room, and found him lying on the floor, breathing heavily. A physician was promptly summoned, but, before he arrived, Mr. Everett died. The event was announced in nearly all the churches at the commencement of morning services, and treated a profound feeling of sadness. Shortly after noon the church bells of the city and suburbs were tolled.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—An order of the War Department requires that all military posts, forts, and arsenals display their flags at half-mast during the day following the receipt of the order; and as a further honor rendered to the memory of the late Edward Everett, all the Department buildings are draped with the usual insignia of mourning, to continue for thirty days.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The flags of the public buildings, New England Rooms, hotels, &c., are displayed at half-mast here today, in token of respect for the memory of the late Hon. Edward Everett.

BOSTON, Jan. 16.—The two branches of the Legislature to-day appointed a joint committee to report a suitable testimonial of gratitude and respect to the memory of Edward Everett.

LEAVENWORTH, Jan. 13.—General Lamb was to-day re-elected as United States Senator for six years, by a vote of 82 yeas to 11 nays.

TENNESSEE CONVENTION.

Slavery Declared Forever Abolished Throughout the State. CINCINNATI, Jan. 14.—The Commercial of this city has received the following despatch: NASHVILLE, Jan. 13.—The Constitutional Convention has unanimously passed a resolution declaring slavery forever abolished and prohibited throughout the State.

Also, a resolution prohibiting the Legislature from recognizing the right of property in man, and forbidding it from requiring compensation to be made to owners; abrogating the declaration of State independence as well as the military league made in 1861 with the Confederate States, and all laws and ordinances made in pursuance of them. All the officers appointed by the Acting Governor since his accession to office are confirmed. The propositions are to be submitted to the people for ratification on February 22d, and on March 4th the election is to be held for Governor and members of the Legislature.

Nearly three hundred delegates participated in the final vote. The greatest harmony prevailed throughout the proceedings. Parson Brownlow is the unanimous choice of the Convention for the next Governor. NASHVILLE, Jan. 14.—The Union Convention, in its session to-day, nominated W. G. Brownlow for Governor by acclamation. A delegate asked if he would accept the nomination, whereupon he responded in the following language: GENTLEMEN: I settle the controversy by my answering you that I will accept. [Applause.] I cannot be expected to do anything more; and certainly I ought to do no less than tender to you, as a convention, my sincere and unfeigned thanks for the honor and distinction you have conferred on me. I will not speak to you, gentlemen; but, what I will look in speaking, if the people should ratify the nomination, I will try to make up its deeds and acts, and, God being my help, if you will send up a Legislature to reorganize the militia and reorganize other necessary business, I will put an end to this infernal system of guerilla fighting in the State—in East, Middle, and West Tennessee—if we have to shoot every man concerned. [Loud and long-continued applause.] Rejoicings at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—Governor Fletcher issued a proclamation to-day, declaring Missouri a free State, in accordance with the emancipation ordinance passed by the State Convention. A hundred business houses and private residences are brilliantly illuminated to-night, and thousands upon thousands of enthusiastic citizens are congregated to witness the grand spectacle.

FREE MISSOURI.

Missouri Hails her Eldest Sister in Freedom, Pennsylvania. The following despatch from the Governor of Missouri, was received by the Governor of Pennsylvania, and may be regarded as the first announcement of the freedom of Missouri, the striking off of the shackles of slavery from another State, and its ushering into the sisterhood of free commonwealths. It will be remembered that the Constitutional Convention of Missouri is now in session, by which body the resolution declaring the State free was passed on Wednesday evening. Immediately on its passage, Governor Fletcher telegraphed the following: JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 11, 1863. Governor of Pennsylvania: Free Missouri greets her eldest sister.

T. C. FLETCHER, Governor of Missouri. The allusion above to the "eldest sister," is elicited by the fact that the Keystone was the first of the original Thirteen States which abolished slavery, the resolutions to that effect having been passed by the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1780. Governor Curtin, early yesterday morning, telegraphed the following reply to the Governor of free Missouri: PENNSYLVANIA EXECUTIVE CHAMBER, HARRISBURG, Jan. 11, 1863. His Excellency, T. C. Fletcher, Governor of Missouri: Pennsylvania, the first born of freedom, welcomes her disenfranchised sister States of Missouri. Redeemed in the agony of the nation, amid the throes of wanton rebellion, her offering to liberty comes baptized in her richest blood, and will be accepted by a faithful and free people, as one of the crowning tributes to their matchless heroism and sacrifices to preserve and perpetuate our common nationality. ANDREW G. CURTIN, Governor of Pennsylvania.

REBEL NEWS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Richmond Whig of Saturday contains the following: "Information has been received in this city of the arrest of ex-Gov. Henry S. Foote, at Ocean, in Prince William county. The charge upon which the arrest was made has not been published. It is understood to have been without instructions from the authorities in this city; whether, being made, it receives their approval, we are not informed. "Ex-Governor Foote has not occupied his seat in the House of Representatives for two or three weeks. In his last speech in that body he announced his purpose to withdraw from its deliberations and repose from the harassments of the times. In a few days after this he went towards the Potomac for the purpose of sending his family across that river, which might reach their home in Nashville. He has not since been in this city. We forbear comment on the arrest until the facts are better known. "There were no developments to-day relative to the mission of Mr. Frank Blair. His movements even are not revealed to the public. "The Petersburg Express of yesterday understands that one or two more casualties occurred on the line the day before yesterday, from the carving in of bomb-proofs, in consequence of the heavy and protracted rain of Monday night and Tuesday. "The enemy resumed his shelling of the Chesterfield batteries yesterday afternoon, and continued it with some severity. He invariably gains nothing by this practice, and no doubt receives much more than he gives, for skillful artillerists manage our battery fire, ever prompt to return the fire and drop their shells with increasing precision in the enemy's breastworks.

ESCAPE OF NEWSPAPER CORRESPONDENTS FROM REBEL PRISONS.

Narrative of their Experience and Adventures. New York, Jan. 16.—The Tribune has received the following special despatch: "NASHVILLE, Jan. 16.—Albert B. Richardson, of the New York Tribune, with W. E. Davis, correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette and clerk of the Ohio Senate, arrived here to-day. They escaped from the rebel penitentiary at Salisbury, N. C., on the night of December 18th, in company with James H. Brown, also of the New York Tribune. They came four hundred miles, through a very circuitous route through the mountains, before reaching our lines, fifteen miles from Knoxville. For the first fifty miles they were assisted by negroes and afterwards by Union men: They received the most devoted kindness, their goods friends secreting them in the woods and in barns, and sometimes in their houses, by day, and piloting them through secluded parts by night, along the entire route, at the peril of their lives. They found the snow a foot deep on the mountains, and suffered much from hunger and cold in regions where they dared not to build fire. When they were a hundred miles from Knoxville they joined large numbers of refugees, who were on their way to the Union lines, under the mountain pilots, but on the next night, at Keely Gap, they were surrounded by rebels and compelled, at a moment's notice, to separate into two parties. The horsemen were piloted in the darkness from the rebel camp by a young lady, and they rode by forced marches of such severity as to kill many of their animals. "Mr. Brown, with other footmen, under an excellent pilot, took to the mountain paths, and reached our lines on Saturday. "The Richmond authorities refused all proposals for their exchange, declaring they should be held during the war as hostages for retaliation. They left some thousand prisoners in Salisbury, suffering the greatest barbarities from the rebels. They represent there is the most earnest loyalty to the Government still prevailing in the rebel lines throughout Western North Carolina and East Tennessee, and that the people—many of whom have had sons and brothers murdered, and their houses robbed and burned by the rebels—are looking and praying for the advance of our armies. Hundreds of citizens are lying out in the woods in almost every county, waiting to enlist in the Union service."

LETTER FROM MR. LINCOLN.

The following heretofore unpublished letter from President Lincoln will be read with interest, particularly by members of the Society of Friends. It was written by the President prior to his re-election, to Mrs. Eliza P. Gurney, the widow of the late well known Friend and philanthropist, Joseph John Gurney, who was one of the wealthiest bankers of London. Mrs. Gurney is an American lady, and since her husband's death has resided in Burlington, New Jersey: My Esteemed Friend—I have not forgotten, probably never shall forget, the very impressive occasion when yourself and friends visited me on a Sabbath forenoon two years ago. Nor has your kind letter, written nearly a year later, ever been forgotten. In all it has been your purpose to strengthen my reliance in God. I am much indebted to the good Christian people of the country for their constant prayers and consolations, and to no one more than to yourself. The purposes of the Almighty are perfect and must prevail, though we erring mortals may fail to accurately perceive them in advance. We hoped for a happy termination of this terrible war long before this, but God knows best, and has ruled otherwise. We shall yet acknowledge his wisdom and our own errors therein; meanwhile we must work earnestly in the best light He gives us, trusting that so working still conduces to the great ends he ordains. Surely he intends some great good to follow this mighty convulsion, which no mortal could make, and no mortal could stay. Your people—the Friends—have had, and are having very great trials, on principles and faith opposed to both war and oppression. They can only practically oppose oppression by war—in this hard dilemma, some have chosen one horn and some the other. For those appealing to me on conscientious grounds, I have done and shall do the best I could and can in my own conscience under my oath to the law. That you believe this, I doubt not, and believing it, I shall receive for my country and myself your earnest prayers to our Father in Heaven. Your sincere friend, A. LINCOLN.

A Catechism for Croakers.

From the Richmond Whig, Jan. 10. Can the croakers (says the Whig, after reciting tales of Roman heroism, and citing the example of the Virginia Legislature after the battle of Camden, during the Revolution) and half-submissionists, who are making night and day hideous around us, with their predictions of evil, think of scenes like these, and not feel ashamed of themselves. What do they hope to accomplish by their doleful lamentations? Was a country ever saved, was a people ever freed, was a cause ever supported, was anything great ever accomplished, by croaking and groaning, and sighing, and playing the Jimmy Dismal in all its phases and aspects? What good can it do? Can it stop the march of the enemy's legions? Can it defend a town? Can it decide a campaign? Can it redeem the currency? Can it supply the place of men? Cuckoo? What is the use of it? Is it any satisfaction to make the whole community as miserable, as despondent, as dismal as you are yourself? Is there no manliness left in you? Are you not ashamed to make yourself a spectacle and a by-word? Are you not aware that the very women turn up their noses in scorn of a "so-called" man who, in the hour of his country's danger, can do nothing but groan and moan, and make everybody more miserable than they otherwise would be? These croakers, these eternal prophets of evil, these creatures who can see no hope in anything, and who do see despair in everything, are the curse of the community. Many of them tremble for their wealth, which they prize far above honor and freedom. Most of them would bow to the Yankee god that smote them, and kiss the hand that held it. Out upon them, we say!

WILMINGTON!

VICTORY OF THE ARMY AND NAVY! CAPTURE OF FORT FISHER! Hon. C. A. Dana, Assistant Secretary of War: Fort FISHER, Jan. 16.—2 A. M.—After a careful reconnaissance on the 14th it was decided to risk an assault on Fort Fisher. Paine's division, with Col. Abbott's brigade, were to hold our line, already strong, across the peninsula and facing Wilmington, against Hoke, while Ames' division should assault on the west end of the land point, and 400 marines and 1,600 sailors on the east end. After three hours of a navy fire the general was made at 3 P. M. on the 15th. General Curtis' brigade led out as soon as it got on the west end of the land front, was followed by Pennybaker's, and later by Bell's. After desperate fighting, gaining foot by foot, and severe loss, at 5 P. M. we had possession of about half the land point. Abbott's brigade was then taken from our line facing Wilmington, and put into Fort Fisher, and in pushing it forward at 10 A. M. it took the rest of the works with little resistance, the garrison falling back to the extreme point of the peninsula, where they were followed and captured; among them General Whiting and Colonel Lamb, both wounded. I think we have quite 1,000 prisoners. I hope our own loss may not exceed 500, but it is impossible to judge in the night. Among the wounded are the commanders of the three leading brigades, General Curtis being wounded, not severely, but Colonels Pennybaker and Bell dangerously. The land front was a formidable one, the parapet in places being fifteen to twenty feet high, but the men went at it boldly and under a severe musketry fire. The marines and sailors went up gallantly, but the musketry fire from the west end of the land point was so severe that they did not succeed in entering the work. The navy fire on the work, judging from the holes, must have been terrific. Many of the guns were injured. How many there were on the point I cannot say, perhaps 30 or 40. C. B. COMSTOCK, Lieut. Col., A. D. C., and Chief Engineer.
