RICHMOND OURS!-The news we publish to day is of the most thrilling interest, and has occasioned an exultation of joy throughout the country unexampled in its history. The last Rebel stronghold occupied by the gallant defenders of our flag, and the boasted insurgent army of Virginia almost annihilated, with the traitor LEE and a remnant of his disorganized forces flying before GRANT'S victorious legions. Glorious, thrice glorious news! Well may the loyal of the land rejoice and sympathizers with treason hang their guilty heads in shame,-For such the day of retribution draws nigh. Up to the last moment, some of these craven-hearted creatures, who prescribed this office at the commencement of the rebellion and instigated its demolishment by the rebels in 1863, boasted that Richmond was impregnable and all assaults by the "Yankee army" for its reduction would necessarily prove futile. How sadly they have been disappointed is apparent from the despatches published to-day. All of the enemy that retain anything like organization have gone north of the Appumattox and are apparently heading for Lynchburg, their losses having been very heavy. The houses through the country are nearly all used as hospitals for wounded men. In every direction I hear of rebel soldiers pushing for home, some in large and some in small squads, and generally without arms. The cavalry have pursued so closely that the enemy have been forced to destroy probably the greater part of their transportation, cannons, and munitions of war. The number of prisoners captured yesterday will exceed 2,000. From the 28th of March to the present time our loss in killed, wounded, and captured, will probably not reach 7,000, of whom from 1,-500 to 2,000 were captured, and many but slightly wounded.

I shall continue the pursuit as long as there appears to be any use in it. U. S. GRANT, Lieutenant General.

GEN, SHERMAN'S ARMY.

The Victorious March to Goldsboro.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Senator Sherman has just returned from General Sherman's army, at Goldsboro, N. C., leaving there on Saturday morning. He says the entire army is being reclothed and refitted with ample stores of supplies of all kinds, and will soon be ready for a new campaign. The men arrived there after a march of five hundred miles, ragged and shoeless, but in admirable health and condition. There was but little fighting in South Carolina .-The chivalry made a feeble resistance. The recel accounts of the battles of Averysboro and Bentonville are ridiculous gasconades .-At Averysboro they made a stand, but fell back before a single corps. At Bentonville they concentrated all their scattered forces under Joe Johnston, and struck the advance of Slocum when on the march. They fell back until a line of battle was formed, when Slocum's army withstood repeated charges dead and wounded.

read of so foul, so black, so inhuman a murder as that for which you have been just tried and convicted. The hearts of all that heard the testimony in your case must have sickened and saddened, as they heard detailed the barbarities you committed upon that poor unoffending boy, as he ran, terror-stricken by your side that hot day, to the spon where you, without a single metive but a thirst for blood, and instigated by the Devil, sent him without a moments warning, and without mercy upon your part, mealled unbidden into the presence of his God, and his Judge. These are some of the facts, that proved your guilt, and I do not reherse them to harrow your feelings, or to cause you one pang; but to exhibit to you, how clear your. guilt, how just the verdict in your case,-God knows I would not plant another thorn in your pillow, or another arrow in your guilty consciences. The solemn duty I am about to perform, in sentencing you to an ignominious death, is to me one of the most painful acts of my life, and I would gladly shrink from it, but as the organ of the law, through which it speaks, the occasion must be met, and my duty must be performed .-But before doing so, permit me to counsel you, at once to abandon all hope of this life, all hope of this world, and prepare at once to meet that just and righteous. God before whom you must so soon appear. Unlike poor Edward Gladfelter, whom you sent without a moment's preparation into the presence of his Judge, you will yet have an interval in seeking for that comfort and peace of mind which the Christian religion alone can give of the enemy, inflicting very severe loss and you.
