become a mother, was not discouraged about the uncertainty of her husband's fate, but prepared for her own safety. Self-preservation could not suppress her womanly instincts, so far as to ignore the feeble cries of an infant only fourteen days old, left to perish by its distracted parents; but, regardless of her own state, she plunged, with her self-imposed charge, into the sea. For two whole days did this brave young girl support herself and the infant on the remnant of a ship's spar, without food or water, sustaining the infant's life by the moisture of her own

Late on the second day the same yessel in which her husband was saved, having ceased cruising, without hope of rescuing more life, fell in with this heroine, and saved her and her little charge. Eventually the family OF THE AGE. were landed at Havre, France. The Prussian Consul at that port took the charge of the infant, as its parents were supposed to have been lost with the wreck.

Many ladies at Havre interested themselves to enable this brave young creature, with her husband, again to venture to cross the Atlantic in search of a western home.
