The 30th of July, 1866, will be long remembered in Louisiana and in the whole United States. The bloody events of that day will do much to enlighten the Northern people on the true feelings of "reconstructed" rebels. We can only issue a small sheet today. But we have room, at least, to raise our voice in denunciation of the cold-blooded massacre of the day. The Memphis riots are thrown in the shade

ANOTHER REBEL OUTRAGE -A delega tion of Rebels from Tilghmanton, and Sharpsburg. Md, and Shepherdstown, W. Va, attended a Johnson meeting in Boonsboro, Md., on Saturday night a week, and becoming drunk, conducted themselves in a most disgraceful manuer. About fifty of them set upon Mr. Elias Cost and Mr. Jonas Davis, two of Boozsboro's most respected and peaceable Union citizens, and murderously beat them. These gentlemen having taken refuge in the U. S. Hotel, the Rebel ruffians attacked the Hotel with stones, clubs and pistols, completely acmolishing the front windows in the lower part of the building,-The windows of the Odd Fellow office were also broken in with stones. A Union meeting was being held the same night at Tilghmantown, and on the return of this guerrila band to that place, they commenced their abuse of the Union men there, and shouting for Jeff. Davis and Johnson, when the "boys in blue" went for them and completely cleaned them out.
