

VILLAGE RECORD.

WAYNESBORO.

Friday, May 31, 1867.

Surratt's trial, which was to have taken place on Monday in Washington before the civil authorities, has been postponed until June 10, in order to procure the attendance of important witnesses.

The Copperheads are congratulating themselves on their solid column of seventy-one thousand voters in Kentucky. The country will be apt to remember that Kentucky sent just about seventy-one thousand muskets into the Confederate army.

A large number of American priests have gone to Rome to celebrate the 1800th anniversary of the Martyrdom of Peter, and carry out funds for the Pope's empty pocket. Bishop Woods, of Philadelphia, carries over thirty thousand dollars in gold, besides many rare presents for the Holy Father.

It is again rumored from Washington that the removal of General Sheridan from the command of the Fifth Military District, and the appointment of General Thomas to the vacancy is contemplated by the President. Of Mr. Johnson's many unpopular actions this would not be the least, and it would not only be unpopular, but, we believe, unjust. To remove Sheridan now would be as wild an act as if the order had been issued when he rode down the Shenandoah Valley to turn defeat into victory at Winchester.

The news from Mexico is important. On Monday Secretary Seward received despatches, which are confirmed from several sources, of the fall of Queretaro, the Liberals defeating the Imperialists, and the capture of the Austrian Archduke Maximilian, Miramon, and other Imperialist officers, Maximilian surrendering unconditionally. A Matamoros despatch says that President Juarez has ordered that Maximilian and the Generals surrendering with him be shot. A New Orleans despatch states that Juarez in response to an appeal from United States Minister Campbell in behalf of Maximilian, recounts the grievances of the Liberals at the hands of the French and Maximilian, and declines to promise his safety in the event of his capture. At the latest accounts the Liberals were moving upon the City of Mexico and Vera Cruz.

THE END OF THE EMPIRE.—The Philistines says the Emperor of Austria was probably a little premature when he assured us, a few days ago, through the ocean cable, of the safety of his brother. Before that time, in all human probability Maximilian had knelt, with bandaged eyes, on an uncovered coffin, the target for a squad of Mexican patriots, clad in rags and chattering bad Spanish.

The Latin kingdom of Napoleon has fallen, carrying with it loss and sorrow to the house of Lupsburg. The mirage of an American empire has dissolved, we hope forever. The end is tragical and mournful; but it seems, after all, to be the triumph of severe justice, bloody and savage though it be. From the tenor of our despatches it is almost certain that the execution of the unhappy Emperor followed his capture with signal rapidity. Maximilian has himself recognized this brutal common law by ordering the execution of native Mexican general officers simply for defending with arms their native land. Can he, at best but a foreign adventurer, expect a different treatment? He came to Mexico merely out of over-powering ambition, whether his own or another's matters not, to seize a government by robbery. He has played and lost.

This country will regard his fate with deep pity and commiseration. A gentleman and a brave soldier, the dignity and chivalrous demeanor of his closing hours have challenged our admiration and won our sympathy. He faced his dark fate manfully, feeling honor to be more precious than life, and a stain worse than a wound. His name will never go down to posterity linked with millinery and mantua making. He would have scorned to have found life under a petticoat. However bad his cause, and opposed to all our ideas, it is to be said for him that he has borne himself with fortitude and undaunted courage. He has lived like an emperor, and to the last flung defiance in the teeth of Death.

The distress of the South is shown in the fact that Virginia raised $40,000 for the comfort of Jeff. Davis and his family. North Carolina contributed $20,000 or $30,000 for a monument for the rebel dead. The State of Mississippi appropriated $20,000 to test the constitutionality of the reconstruction act. Memphis can raise large sums of money to get courtesans, and, indeed, whenever there is an occasion for honoring the rebel dead, or of testifying regard to living traitors, there seems to be no lack of funds, and no difficulty in raising what is required. This to say the least, is a little remarkable.

Horace Greeley and John Minor Botts have both made public explanations about their signing Jeff. Davis' bail bonds. The former said he did it because the counsel for the prisoner deemed it important, though he does not know their reasons. Mr. Botts wanted to exert a harmonizing influence and show his magnanimity toward Davis, who had thrown him into prison without cause.

ONE OF THE SECRETS OF HIGH PRICES.

Political economists (says the Harrisburg Telegraph) are pushing themselves to a certain and counteract, if possible, the cause of the present high prices, not only of the necessities of life, but of other products and of real estate. There is not much to be gained in such an investigation by cyphering. It has but one secret, and a fact is all that is necessary to divulge it. Our high prices are caused by the desire of two persons to live off the labor of one, or to put it in plain or language, while one hundred men in a community are toiling, digging, mining, ploughing, sowing, reaping and manufacturing, there are two hundred men who are speculating, grasping and holding the products of the minor, garnering what the farmer reaps, warehousing what the manufacturer produces, and, solemnly folding their arms, awaiting a panic in the market to sell or buy, or calculating on the necessities of the consumer to tax him to the fullest extent of his ability. Such is the disposition of American trade and merchandising at this time, and it is folly to disguise the fact that it is bearing the business and financial interests of the country to difficulties from which the nation cannot escape without being roughly handled. The Government cannot remedy these evils. Legislation is impotent to control the influences which produce them. The Secretary of the Treasury has not the power, nor does any one man alone possess the ability to cope with those who are engaged in these speculations, in this disposition to live from the labors of others. These combinations are too formidable to be reached and counteracted by ordinary means. Their cure can only be effected by reaction, and the remedy can only be reached by passing through the most dreadful revolutions in trade. Unless this disposition to speculate is arrested—unless the feverish desire for the accumulation of sudden wealth, to live from the labor of others, is at once counteracted by a healthy action in legitimate trade, by fair production and a satisfaction with just profits, we must have a fearfully destructive financial revolution. Whatever the Government may do to relieve the people will be of no avail, unless the people, in the particular to which we allude, reform themselves. What is needed is more producers, more honest labor, more extensive tilling of the soil, more mining and less speculation. The secret of the starvation in the South is that the great mass of the white men there are too proud, too lazy and, in some respects, too ignorant to work. Our 'hard times' in the North are traceable to the fact that too many of us are too fond of speculation, too prone to fold our arms in sublime indifference or criminal idleness (call it by what term you please) waiting for something to turn up. The 'turning up' may be fatal. Honest labor, production without speculation, can only avert such a calamity.

Farms, in some portions of Texas, yield from 150 to 300 bushels of sweet potatoes, of excellent quality, to the acre.

The Release of Jeff Davis.

(From the London Star, May 15.) Jefferson Davis is again a free man. After a detention of just two years, the authorities of the United States have restored to liberty one of the most unscrupulous and implacable enemies, one of the least excusable rebels, who ever helped to plunge a country into civil war. Nominally Davis is released on bail, to come up for trial next November; but in reality it may, we presume, be taken that the ex-President of the Southern confederation is relieved of all further responsibility for his political offences. The United States have here once again given an example of magnanimity and mercy by which the Old World may well profit. They have given an example of political wisdom, too. Jefferson Davis, executed on the scaffold as a traitor, might have left a bitter and even a dangerous name behind him; Jefferson Davis contemptuously dismissed to the obscurity of private life will soon fade out of memory altogether. We do not grieve thus from any wish to throw additional weight on a fallen man. But it is a duty we owe to a great cause and to a brave man, to remind England that this is the man who was the idol of what are called our governing classes three years ago—the man in answer to whose appeal journals and speakers in this country clamored for war against our own kindred, and against the principals of human liberty and the Christian doctrine of human rights. While men of England, too, are crying out even now for the life blood of some petty and powerless Irish rebels, it is right to show how grievous were the crimes of Davis against the United States, and how the United States have punished them. We are glad that Davis is set free. His life has been happily for mankind, a failure, and the best thing that can be hoped for him is that the world may soon forget him, and history only give a few passing lines to his name.

The strict observance of the statute prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sundays, which we found prevalent yesterday in all our walks, made a marked change in the appearance of the streets. As showers were dropping at intervals after the hour of noon, the usual corner loungers dispersed themselves under awnings, while the class of people who have been in the habit of spending their sabbaths in bar-rooms were compelled to join the corner standers or go to their homes. Nowhere did our reporters see a tavern open, either in front or rear; not a child or man did we see with pitcher of ale or noggin of whiskey. The closing of the drinkeries seemed to be universal. It will remain for another week or two to test the temper of the people of Philadelphia as to the question of submission to the new edict.—Gazette of Monday.

While the North is paying the enormous public debt that has accumulated in the effort to prove that there is no such thing as treason, while from all parts of the South misery has stretched its gaunt hands towards us to beg for support, while we have freely opened our treasure to prevent their starving, we see but little inclination on the part of the leading Southern people to make an equal effort. On the contrary, fifty thousand dollars has been presented to Jeff Davis, which he is about to invest in a summer residence near Montreal, where he can coolly watch the follies of the Northern people and ponder over the fact that in the great Republic there is no such crime as treason.—A. Y. World.

LOCAL MATTERS.

LAST NOTICE.—Persons indebted to W. H. Brotherton will find an important notice among the new advertisements in to-day's paper.

W. M. R. R.—We understand the work grading that part of the Western Maryland railroad between Hagerstown and the Monocacy has been commenced.

A PURSE.—A Purse found on Main Street, containing some money and other valuables, has been left at this office. The owner can get it by describing contents and paying for this notice.

W. & A. Yingling, Dry Goods merchants Hagerstown, have opened out another supply of new goods. Their advertisement will appear next week.

A RELIC.—A short time since we were shown an Indian Tomahawk which has been in the possession of the Snowberger family of this vicinity for about one hundred years.

THE FRUIT.—We regret to learn that much of the fruit in this region, such as cherries, pears, peaches, etc., have been very much damaged by the late frosts and heavy rains. The prospect for an apple crop is good however.

CONFECTIONERY.—We call special attention to the advertisement of Mr. S. J. Strite, who has opened out a first class Confectionery and Bakery in Greencastle. Persons from this section visiting that place are requested to not forget friend Strite's establishment.

McCORMICK'S REAPER.—We direct the attention of Farmers to the advertisement of Mr. Flanagan who is agent for the sale of McCormick's improved self-raking Reaper, and also for his two-wheeled Mower, something new and said to answer the purpose admirably.

THE CROPS.—The weather for the past few days has been of a most delightful character. Vegetation of all kinds is growing rapidly. The earlier wheat is already beginning to head. An aged farmer in this vicinity remarked the other day that he had not witnessed in the last forty years better prospects for a good wheat harvest. Our prayer is that his anticipations may be fully realized.

WOOLEN FACTORY.—A couple of weeks since we visited Chambersburg and whilst there curiosity prompted us to visit their much-talked of Woolen Factory. We was surprised to find the Company driving the manufacturing business so extensively, from eighty to one hundred hands, male and female, being in its employ. The machinery in the building is of the finest order, and their goods embracing cassimeres, all qualities and styles, fully equal if they do not surpass those purchased in the Eastern cities. Being a home manufactory merchants and the people of the country generally should patronize it.

THE CONCERT.—The Blind Family, consisting of three brothers and one sister, gave a concert of vocal and instrumental music in the Town Hall on Saturday evening last, which is represented as one of the finest entertainments of the kind given here for many years. Three of the number are entirely blind being destitute of eye balls, the fourth being blind of one eye. These unfortunate brothers and sister are certainly deserving of public patronage and we are gratified to be able to state that Waynesboro' gave them a full house.

QUERY.—Have our School Directors abandoned the idea of a public building for school purposes? We hope not, for the condition of our school houses at present render such a step a public necessity.

A friend who is interested in the cause of education suggests that a stock company be formed to purchase the ground and put up a building sufficiently large for the accommodation of both town and country. The idea we think a good one and if a few enterprising citizens could be induced to take the matter in hand it would succeed. Waynesboro' being noted as a healthy locality there is no reason why a permanent and flourishing institution of learning might not be kept up if the necessary provisions were made for it. Such an institution would vastly benefit the community at large in an educational as well as a pecuniary point of view.

P. T. Barnum's (patent) Elastic Strap and Buckles for pants, Vests and Drawers is a little invention which will commend itself to every gentleman who desires good fitting clothes without feeling restrained in his movements, and to persons who tear the straps and buckles from their garments it will be worth double the cost. These straps are very durable, neat, and of a variety of styles, colors and price, to suit all. An agency for the sale of them here would be very profitable. See advertisement.

NARY DROP.—We understand Smithsburg, Washington county, does not contain a public bar or restaurant licensed to sell spirituous or malt liquors. The Good Templars must be revolutionizing things down that way. This state of affairs must be truly hard on the rumies.

PROLIFIC.—A cow belonging to J. S. Hershey, of Manor township, Lancaster county, has given birth to five calves within the past year. So says the Examiner.

We learn from the Spirit that C. W. Ashcom, Esq., recently appointed Collector of Internal Revenue for this district, intends personally, and will visit the country at stated periods for that purpose.

By the burning of two stables, the property of Abram Warwick, about five miles from Richmond, Va., on the night of the 10th inst., sixteen horses, including two fine stallions and several valuable mares, were burned to death.

BIG HAUL.—Thirty-five thousand herring were taken at one haul from the looks of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, at Delaware City, on Monday morning. It is estimated as many escaped on account of the tide being very high.

One of the wealthiest and ablest lawyers in New York has instituted suit for divorce from his wife, who is one of the most noted women for beauty and accomplishments in the city. The suit is based on inhuman conduct to the gentleman's mother.

A second shock of an earthquake visited Nebraska City on the morning of the 3d inst.—It was longer and more violent than that of April 24th. Storepigeas were tumbled down, bedsteads moved, and houses rocked like ships at sea. It is getting to be very shaky-out West.

One of the wealthiest and ablest lawyers in New York has instituted suit for divorce from his wife, who is one of the most noted women for beauty and accomplishments in the city. The suit is based on "inhuman conduct" to the gentleman's mother.

The richest member of the Connecticut Senate is an Irishman, whose property is valued at $2,500,000, and whose daily income is $1,000. He made his money from an oil farm in Pennsylvania, which he purchased for $2,500.

The Richmond Whip has gone over into the Radical camp. This is the first fruits of the Wilson campaign, and it comes quick and with startling effect.

On the Sunday preceeding Easter a collection of $85,000 in aid of the Pope was taken up in the Catholic churches composing the diocese of Philadelphia.

James W. Campbell, sheriff of Jefferson county, Va., and the man who hung John Brown, died at Charlestown, West Virginia, recently.

A subscription is on foot in Kentucky to purchase a home for the family of the traitor John C. Breckinridge.

NEW YORK, MAY 28.—A woman in Brooklyn, yesterday, gave birth to four children, weighing in the aggregate 24 pounds. Mother and children doing well.

John E. Hayes Esq., of the Savannah (Ga.) Republican, who was sentenced to fine and imprisonment for libeling a Rebel, has been pardoned.

They have a beautiful young lady in Memphis seven feet high.

PHILADELPHIA MARKETS, Tuesday May 28, 1867.—The Flour market continues in the same apathetic condition.
