A New Song to an old tune. Col. Baker-As many of your readers are familiar with the old song of "the Red. White and Blue," I suppose they would like new words to sing to the same tune, and therefore send you the following. Mr. Forman, their author, is Secretary to the Western Sanitary Commission, in which he has rendered much and very efficient service. He is also the popular Chaplain of the "Lyons Regiment" of Illinois Volunteers, and compiler and author of "The Soldier's Manual of Devotion," a work admirably adapted for public and private worship in the army, and containing a choice collection of hymns and patriotic songs and odes-some of them composed by Mr. Forman and Col. I. F. Shepard, commander of the "Lyons Regiment,"of the latter it is said that his "genius for poetry is only excelled by his talents as a military. officer." A. B. G.

THE FLAG OF THE RED, WHITE AND BLUE,

Additional verses to an old song. BY REV. J. G. FORMAN. Blest banner of Freedom, thy pinion Floats wide o'er the land and the sea ; The emblem of peaceful dominion, Our eyes turn with rapture to thee; Though war-clouds and danger are o'er us. Thy folds are still dear to our view : With the flag of our country before us. We'll march to the Red. White and Blue-We'll march to the Red. White and Blue-We'll march to the Red. White and Blue-With the flag of our country before us, We'll march to the Red, White and Blue.

The glorious ensign ne'er sever, Let it float in the ether above, Its stars, the bright symbol forever Of Union, and Freedom, and Love : May they never grow dim in their shining Nor fade from their colors so true, The Stars and the Stripes still entwining, Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue ! Hurrah, &c.

Though traitors shall meet and dissemble. And armies of rebels shall rise, Our banner shall cause them to tremble, As it waves in the bright Southern skies; And millions of patriot voices Shall the chorus of Freedom renew And shout, as the nation rejoice. Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue ! Hurrah, &c.

Though tyrants and despots assail it, And threaten our land to deform, To the mast-head and flag-staff we'll nail it, And bear it aloft through the storm. Our country no foe shall dissever, While the armies of Freedom prove true The flag of our Union forever. Hurrah for the Red, White and Blue ! Hurrah, &c. Benton Barracks, Mo., Feb. 10th, 1862.

The door was burst open in double-quick time: the master knocked down; the slave untied, and sent, before daylight next morning, to Kansas, with a treasury note in his pocket to pay his expenses.

the Editor of the New York Tribune has seen an extract from a private letter. dated New Orleans, Dec. 10, written by a gentleman of influence, which, speaking of the tendency of public feeling in that city, says: "There is a great deal of suffering in New Orleans. All the papers are issuing half sheets, There exists a large Union sentiment, and people are beginning to express their opinions pretty freely; there is no doubt that on the approach of the Federals the city will be surrendered without any fighting."

The tax question is destined to undergo a long and weary discussion .----Nearly every trade mentioned in the list has its representatives at Washington to keep the tax off its goods altogether, or else reduce it to a merely nominal rate. If the members of each Honse are only approachable, they will have a glorious time in fingering black mail. But it is hoped, for their own honor, that, in such a crisis as this, not one can be found to deviate from the the strict path of duty. The taxes must be levied, and the people must pay them.

Tt is believed in high quarters at Washington, that another fight between the Monitor and Merrimac is certain, and it is just as certain that if it shall take place the Merrimac will be sunk. Capt. Ericsson says she will not stand over the third shot; but then inventors and builders are always sanguine.

Two Union men who recently left New Orleans, declare that twelve thousand persons in that city belong to the Union clubs there, and are only awaiting the approach of the U.S. forces to rise. The greatest excitement and distress prevailed when they left. G On some of our troops visiting Ball's Bluff, where Gen. Stone allowed our troops to be so cruelly slaughtered, the bones of many of our brave soldiers were found bleaching upon the surface, the rebels not possessing the humanity to bury our dead. The bones were gathered together and inhumed with impresive ceremony.

1997 Jeff. Davis in his message abuses Buckner. Now, to be sure, Buckner is a bridgedestrover, a house-burner, a horse and cattle thief, a hog and sheep stealer, and very likely a coward, but we are for giving him fair play.
