CRITTENDEN'S PHILADELPHIA COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, N. E. corner of 7th & Chestnut Sts., PHILADELPHIA.

This Institution, which was established in 1844, and is now consequently in the eighteenth year of its existence, numbers among its graduates, hundreds of the most successful Merchants and Business Men in our Country. The object of the Institution is solely to afford young men facilities for thorough preparations for business.

The Branches taught are, Book-keeping, as applicable to the various departments of trade; Penmanship, both plain and ornamental; Commercial Law, Mathematics, Navigation, Civil Engineering, Drawing, Phonography, and Modern Languages.

The System of Instruction is peculiar; no classes or set lessons are made use of, but each student is taught individually, so that he may commence at any time, and attend at whatever hours are most convenient.

Catalogues are issued annually after the 15th of April, containing names of the students for the year, and full particulars of terms, &c., and may be obtained at any time by addressing the Principal.

In extensive accommodations, wide-spread reputation, and the lengthy experience of the Principal, this Institution offers facilities superior to any other in the country, for young men wishing to prepare for business, and to obtain a diploma, which will prove a recommendation for them to any Mercantile House.

Great Indian Herbal Tea, For Females.
DR. ENGLISH'S INDIAN VEGETABLE EMMENAGOGUE.
This Celebrated Female Medicine possesses virtue unknown of anything else of the kind, and proving effectual after all others have failed; it is prepared from an Indian Herb peculiar to Northern Mexico, and Texas, and is used by the Natives in producing the most salutary results. It is designed for both married and single ladies, and is the very best thing known for the purpose, as it will remove all obstructions after other remedies have been tried in vain. It is a pleasant tea, containing nothing injurious to health, and a cure can be relied upon in all cases.

It is especially adapted to the following complaints: Prolapsus Uteri, or falling of the Womb; Floes Albus, or Whites; Chronic Inflammation, or Stretting of the Womb; Incidental Hemorrhage or Bleeding; and disease of the Spine. It is especially adapted to the relief of Ladies in the early stage of pregnancy, and acts as a powerful agent against the use of this tea, as it will produce miscarriage.

Prepared and Sold by DR. G. W. ENGLISH, No. 729 Race-st., PHILADELPHIA. Price $1.00 per package, (with full directions for use) sent by Express or Mail to any address.

Dr. E. can be consulted in all obstinate Female Complaints, in person or by letter, and will furnish the Gutta-serena, Female Syringe—highly recommended by the Faculty of Medicine for special purposes. Also Radical Cure and other Trusses—Improved Lotary and Spinal Abdominal Supporters—Shoulder Braces—Electric and Leco Stockings—Spinal Apparatus, for Weak and Curved Spine—and Instruments for all Deformities. THE SOLDIER'S DREAM.
Our bugles sang truce—for the night cloud had lowered
And the sentinel stars set their watch in the sky;
And thousands had sunk on the ground overpowered,
The weary to sleep and the wounded to die.

When reposing that night on my pallet of straw,
By the wolf-scaring jagot that guarded the slain;
At the dead of the night a sweet vision I saw,
And thrice ere the morning I dreamt it again.

Met thought from the battle-field's dreadful array,
Far, far I had roamed on a desolate track;
'Twas autumn—and sunshine arose on the way
To the home of my fathers, that welcomed me back.

I flew to the pleasant fields traversed so oft
In life's morning march, when my bosom was young;
I heard my own mountain-goats bleating aloft,
And knew the sweet strain that the corn-reapers sung.

Then pledged we the wine-cup, and fondly I swore,
From my home and my weeping friends never to part;
My little ones kissed me a thousand times o'er,
And my wife sobbed aloud in her fullness of heart.

"Stay, stay with us—rest, thou art weary and worn,"
And faint was their war-broken soldier to stay;
But sorrow returned with the dawning of morn,
And the voice in my dreaming ear melted away.

Death-bed of President Jackson.
On Sunday morning in the year 1827, as General Jackson and his wife were walking toward the little Hermitage church, she entreated him to take a decided stand as a Christian, and to unite with the church. He replied:

"My dear, if I were to do that it would be said, all over the country, that I had done it for the sake of political effect. My enemies would all say so. I can not do it now; but I promise you that when once more I am clear of politics I will join the church."

On the 23d of December, 1828, Mrs. Jackson died. It was a terrible blow to her husband, who had loved her for her singular fervor and constancy; he never quite recovered from the shock.

His spirit became very much subdued, and he gave up entirely the use of profane language, to which he had been awfully addicted in his younger days.

Mr. Nicholas P. Trist, of Virginia, was private Secretary of President Jackson. On one occasion, it seemed necessary for him to enter the President's apartment after he had retired, for the night. He found the President in his night dress, sitting at a table, with his wife's miniature propped up against something before him, and between him and the miniature lay his wife's well-worn prayer book; from which, according to his invariable custom, he was reading a prayer, before he slept.

About this time there was a season of special interest in Washington. The pastor of the church which the President attended, and from whom the writer has the anecdote, called at the White House, and entered into conversation with the President upon the subject of personal religion. He replied:

"No man respects religion more than I do or feels more deeply its importance. I promised my wife that I would attend to the salvation of my soul as soon as the election was over, but now the cares which engross me are so overwhaling, and my cabinet in such a divided state that I have not a moment's time to think of anything but the urgencies of the passing hour. But I am resolved, as soon as I leave the Presidential chair, and retire to the seclusion of the Hermitage, to take up in earnest the subject of religion. It was the old excuse; go thy way for this time; when I have a convenient season. The hour of retirement came, and still the General did not keep his promise. To one who addressed him on the subject, he wrote, in August, 1838, 'I would long since have made this solemn dedication to Almighty God, but knowing the wretchedness of this world, and how prone many are to evil, that the scoffer of religion would have cried out, 'hypocrite! he has joined the church for political effect,' I thought it best to postpone this public act, until my retirement to the shade of private life, when

Advertising for a Wife.
The Watchman of March 23th, published at Greenport, on the east end of Long Island, gives the following history of a hasty marriage, occasioned by advertising for a wife in the newspapers:—

An affair, somewhat novel and exciting, took place in the village of Cutchogue, a few days since. It appears that Joseph Baker, of that place, and late of Greenport, went to New York a few weeks ago, for the purpose of obtaining a wife. His first move was to publish a notice, in the New-York Sun, stating that a young widower, about 25, years of age, having one child, and a farm at a short distance in the country, wished to enter a second time into the matrimonial state, with some respectable lady, of about his own age.

This notice attracted the attention of a young girl in the city, aged some 18 or 19 years, by Joseph's notice. This was followed by an interview between the parties.

According to the account which the girl gave at Cutchogue, Mr. Baker represented himself to her to be a gentleman of character and respectability, in the community where he lived; that he had a valuable farm on Long Island, with a good house, pleasantly situated, and all the necessary improvements and appurtenances; that he kept cows and other stock, together with a horse, carriage, &c.

After a negotiation of several days, a matrimonial engagement was entered into, which was finally consummated in due form, by a clergyman of the city, on Saturday morning last. After the marriage ceremony was solemnized, the parties, accompanied by the mother of the bride, immediately left the city, and took the accommodation train to visit the splendid establishment of Mr. Joseph Baker, at Cutchogue, on Long Island, with high hopes and pleasing anticipations, no doubt.

On arriving at Mr. Baker's handsome country residence, behold, it was not there! Nothing but a little shanty, situated in a lonely, out-of-the-way place, with every indication of indolence and poverty, instead of an neat, comfortable dwelling, presented itself to the astonished strangers. The poor girl and her mother, after taking a fair view of the premises, and discovering the imposition; and the manner in which the daughter had been duped, overwhelmed with disappointment, mortification and disgust, at once decided to return to the city.

They found a friendly shelter at the house of Mr. Hallock, at no great distance, and after making proper inquiries respecting the character, habits and circumstances of the said Joseph Baker, as they were understood in that community, they declared that the marriage was brought about by false pretences, misrepresentations and hypocrisy. A lawyer and justice were called in, to untie the matrimonial knot which had so recently, and so imprudently and foolishly on the part, the girl, been formed by the parties.

Writings were duly executed, by which the young lady relinquished all claim and right of dower to any property which the said Joseph Baker might have, with a consent on his part that the marriage contract, to all intents and purposes, might be dissolved. The mother and daughter, took the cars on Monday, and returned to the city.

We understand that Miss Craig, now Mrs. Baker, is an industrious respectable girl—a tailoress; in New-York, and of respectable connections; and that the matrimonial alliance between herself and Baker was the advice and consent of her mother, who, it seems, gave too much credit to fair protestations without proper proof. The girl, we apprehend, has learned that answering an advertisement of that description is a silly and somewhat dangerous practice.

Pain is life's sentinel. It gives warning to danger. It is nature's monitor. It says, "Take care—you have violated the laws of health; you have wounded yourself—desist or die!" But when the wound is mortal beyond hope, the sentinel gives no challenge. Pain is of no use then. The victim must die, and usually he suffers little. Pain, therefore, if it be a penalty, is also a mercy. It is designed only to tell us of danger and to make us avoid it.
