MARIETTA CAR HOUSERS. The several passenger trains will leave the "Upper Station Depot" as follows: Morning train, East, at ten minutes before 8; Mail train West, 11:38; Harrisburg Accommodation train, East, at 9 minutes after 9; the same train West, at five minutes before 7 in the evening.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1863.

An interesting article will be found on the first page from the pen of a Mariettian now under General Rosecrans. Read it.

Old Keesey-Glatz Ferry has passed into new hands. The present proprietor, Mr. —, is busy as a nailer these times, ferrying.

Capt. Samuel G. Miller of the "Marietta Braves" is lying ill at Washington. The Captain has been ill for some time. Since the above was in type, we learn that the Captain has arrived at his home, at the St. John House, in this borough, and is still suffering, but convalescing.

The Patriotic Circle will meet on Friday evening next at the residence of Mrs. Barr Spangler.

The river business may be said to be almost over. Very few timber rafts remain here. With the immense amount of lumber which arrived here this spring, it is surprising how fabulous the prices remained.

S. Patterson Sterrett, esq., has been appointed by Governor Curtin, notary public for this borough. We regard this as a most excellent appointment.

Col. Franklin's 122d Regiment was in the late battle, and covered itself with honor, for its courage and pluck. The regiment was commanded by Lieut.-Colonel McTavern, Col. Franklin acting Brigadier-General and commanding the brigade.

The 122d regiment, Col. Emmon Franklin, has arrived at Harrisburg, awaiting to be mustered out. We had a pop visit from Joseph C. Kaufman, who at one time was engaged on this paper; he is in this regiment; he looks much tanned, but is in fine health and spirits. He was in the first battle of Fredericksburg, but escaped unscathed.

Drum-Major Shindle, of the 122d, is said to have died at Harrisburg, on Wednesday night, of hemorrhage of the brain. The Lanester Express says: He was in the service on the first call of the President for troops, and served throughout the three months' campaign, in the band of the First Pennsylvania Regiment. He afterwards went with the band of the Seventy-ninth, and remained with that gallant regiment until the band was mustered out, in accordance with a general order of the War Department. Immediately upon his return from Tennessee, he was offered and accepted the position of Drum Major of the 122d and remained with the regiment during its term of service. In this regiment he organized a splendid corps, which is universally admired. He is, or was an excellent teacher of martial music, and withal, jovial and good natured, and the very life of the camp.

A Jew taken in and done for by a Yankee. A few days since a young Baltimorean, who had established himself for the first time, in the clothing business in this borough, and who imagined himself as sharp as generally found—having been raised in a large city and always, as he thought, exhibited a keenness not often found in so young a man, for a sharp business transaction, hooted at the idea of being sold by a green yankee; however, "red shirt" called in the store, and after selecting some garments—the price selected—promised to pay, which being all right, the young clothier endeavored to make the friendship of "red shirt" in order to secure his influence for more customers amongst his friends, and took him out "to see the town," when "red shirt" got a little short—"sharp" immediately lost him a couple of dollars to continue their acquaintance; when he, all at once, "red shirt" was missing, and "sharp" minus two dollars and a new hat just purchased a few days before. Our young Baltimore clothier has concluded that some of the up-river-men are a little unprincipled. Another season here will considerably brighten him.

A most distressing accident occurred on Wednesday afternoon last, as a freight train was backing into the siding at Musselman's furnaces. It is the habit of boys to jump on the cars and ride from one end of the town to the other, when the train is going sufficiently slow to possibly effect getting on; and we have often wondered that many more accidents have not happened. Thomas Grady, a lad of eight years, got on and after the train had started, he jumped off, one of his feet getting under the wheel, crushing it in a terrible manner. Drs. Fahnestock, Landis and Boane were called in and amputated the leg just below the knee. There is a sad warning to boys.

An engine and boiler is offered for sale very cheap. See advertisement.

Army Correspondence.

Camp "Dick Robinson," Ky. April 27, 1863.

Dear Fred: As a leisure hour is afforded this morning, and all is quiet in camp, my thoughts are turned homeward; and thinking a line from a fellow townsman might be acceptable to you. "The Mariettian" does not reach this department as regularly as it did while we were in the land of Cotton, or on the Potomac; but trust our worthies in the Post Office Department will soon learn our whereabouts, so that we may get the home journals regularly. Nothing of note has occurred in the 45th since we left Newport News, Va., more than while at Paris, Ky., we kind-a-set the girls a-winking and a-bobbing during our short stay there. The ladies, God bless them, were very kind, and visited our camp daily; and were always present to see us on dress parade, which cannot be taken down by any regiment in the service. Our worthy Colonel has no occasion to strain his voice in giving the commands, for we turn it off by the tap of the drum. Quite a heavy correspondence is kept up by our boys with the ladies of Paris, and should our friends at home be put off awhile in our communications, I trust they will bear with us, and not feel sour towards us, for the girls in Paris are so sweet, and I think the boys in Co. B make a favorable impression. The Marietta boys can hold their own, as you know they always could do; they say some of the boys shed a few tears when we left, but I don't believe it; there were a few silent tears shed by the ladies, but as they all know how to weep without much effort, so we would not think them sincere, in these war times, without dropping a tear or two on such a sudden leave. The regiment was drawn up in line in the city, to have a photograph taken. I had the pleasure of seeing it, the other evening, and could not, for the life of me, tell it from the first South Carolina Volunteers, but we must take the will for the deed and especially in this case. Our friend Willie Child has been promoted to a Sergeant; he has earned it. Co. B is about as well officered as any company in the service; when on inspection they generally bear off the palm for tidiness. Co. C, of which Captain Trout is in command, shares largely in praise for cleanliness, in fact, all of our companies will stand the test with the best. I know some will turn up their nose and say, hold on, Capt. Bragg; but it's no use of fising, for we don't think the 45th a little less than you do; just ask General Tom, and see if he don't confirm all we have said. He hasn't forgot us, although he wears a star on each shoulder; for I think there is not a day but that he visits our camp; and in fact, all the camps in his command; and if things are not exactly right we get to know it; not in a flaming order or in a set speech, but on the Johnny Kugle principle, "Spits it right square out." This camp, "Dick Robinson," has become noted in the history of our troubles, having been held by both the Federal and Rebel troops; and the people around here can suit themselves very well to either party; so that when massa Dick is here, they shake him by the hand, and when massa Debel is here, why they shake his hand too. From the looks of things this morning, I think we are going to bid adieu to camp "Dick," and wind our way towards the mountains, perhaps into East Tennessee, for orders have been issued for sixty rounds of buck and ball, herd tack and fresh beef, with the horns and tails on, so that we can eat as we march. Some of the boys are dreadful uneasy to-day, for if marching orders were to come before Wednesday morning, they would (maybe cry), for these is a grand ball, to be given to the officers of this brigade, on to-morrow (Tuesday) evening, in the Masonic Hall, at Bryansville, about one mile from our camp. Lieut. Gailbaugh is a heavy stockholder in this last arrangement, which makes him floor manager. Capt. Trout has given all his energies to it too, and I don't doubt will receive his reward; of course, our privates and non-commissioned officers can't smile; but it don't spite me much, for I can't dance anyhow; and my wife always said that the ball-room never fit me; so we cannot do less than wish them a gay time with the corn-sucker ladies.

We are all well and ready for any order that Gen. Welsh may have for us; he has a very decent command; five regiments of infantry: 45th and 100th Pennsylvania, 36th Mass., 26th Mich., 8th Tenn., and batteries L. and M.; and with this force the General can make a "hole in the wall," for this county abounds with stone walls, and the rebels have a peculiar fancy for squatting behind them, especially when Union bullets are whizzing around anywhere. Now, Fred, I must close, and should you hear from us before I write again, I trust that the news will be good, and that not only the 45th but all the army will soon have made a hole in the rebel lines as will drive them out of Dixie, and we all see the withering hand and tattering frame of this rebellion fall. Kentucky, I think, is safe, notwithstanding her non-combatant ideas, and the half-way measures of some of her leading men. What a delightful county this is, Lancaster county, the so-called "Garden of America," is no where compared to this region. We presented our new Colonel, John J. Curtin, with a fine horse, and your humble friend did the presentation, and you may know he did it well, too—the present was so unexpected that the Colonel was taken so a-back that he could make no response to the presentation address. Let me say again, that the boys are all well and doing well.

Truly your friend,
A PRIVATE IN "CO. B."

FROM GEN. ROSECRANS' ARMY.
Murfreesboro, Tenn., May 8, 1863.

Editor Mariettian: Sir: The quietude of our camp was broken on Sunday, the 19th ult., by the issuing of five days' rations, said to be for the purpose of going on an expedition to the front. At five o'clock in the afternoon the 79th was ordered to fall in line when the order was countermanded; joy was depicted on every countenance, for soldiers very much dislike night marches. The next morning the third brigade was ordered to be ready to move at nine o'clock with six days' rations, and the men to carry their shelter tents and gum blankets. The men were promptly in line and moved at the appointed time. The morning was lovely beyond description. The sun rose in all its majesty; the birds caroled among the green branches of the trees, and the air was mild and fragrant. The boys enjoyed the surroundings as much as though they were going to a "pic-nic." That their mission was one of death to traitors did not, apparently, enter the minds of any. Gen. Thomas was the prime mover of the expedition, and placed it under the immediate command of Gen. Reynolds. The expedition consisted of three brigades of infantry, one of which is mounted, three batteries of artillery, and 1000 cavalry. The advance surprised the post of McMinnville at 3 o'clock on Tuesday morning and captured the provost guard and a quantity of army stores. The dash into the town was led by the 7th Pennsylvania cavalry. When some of the first Middle Tennessee soldiers (Union), who were prisoners and under guard, heard the yell of the cavalry, they threw up their hats and shouted "There comes the 7th, good for the Pennsylvania boys;" and returned the compliment by taking the arms of the rebels and escorting them within our lines. The guerrilla chief Morgan made good his escape by the fleetness of his horse, though hotly pursued. The object of the expedition was the first of the kind—seemed to be to destroy everything that gave the least aid to the rebels. A large cotton factory, some 200 bales of cotton, and fifteen tons of bacon, was burnt at McMinnville and several grist mills in the neighborhood. The cavalry succeeded in cutting the railroad between Manchester and McMinnville, thus capturing and destroying a train of cars. The expedition was gone eleven days, and captured and sent in 300 prisoners. The rebels mistook the move for an advance of Gen. Rosecrans' army, and immediately strengthened their right at Manchester. There is a strong Union sentiment in the vicinity of McMinnville and Liberty. While we lay encamped near the latter place the citizens came in numbers to visit our camp and seemed to be pleased to have the yankees in their midst. They all bore the marks of poverty. The poor throughout the south are loyal. Is this not proof that this war may justly be called the slaveholders' rebellion? When the expedition returned to Murfreesboro, a motley crew followed in the rear. Some on horses and many on mules; the latter often being compelled to carry double. They had regarded us with favor, and expected upon the return of the rebels to have all their property destroyed, and thought they had better emigrate farther north to the "land of plenty and peace." One man had just built a house and had a fine farm with all his crops left all, and placing a few personal effects in a wagon intends to travel to Illinois and there settle. Are these not evidences that there remains a union sentiment in the south which two years of oppression has failed to crush? Many of the prisoners took the oath of allegiance and the remainder were paroled. They were indeed a pitiful looking set; many were shoeless and costless. They very much resemble the cause for which they are contending. The more frank they acknowledge the scarcity of food, and the destitution of the south, while the obstinate contradict the statement.

The enemy have advanced their line of outposts on the Manchester and Shelbyville roads, and at present our pickets are within three miles of the rebel outposts, and skirmishing along the line is of frequent occurrence. The success with which our arms have met under Generals Hooker and Banks have inspired the men with new energy, and may result in a forward move before a great while. Gen. Rosecrans is fully prepared to strike whenever the time comes. We have supplies in abundance. A few days ago the army turned over their large tents and drew shelter tents: these are intended for two men, and are divided into two parts, one of which is to be carried by each man. The boys say "they are the best arrangement in America." Three of the old tents for the field and staff officers, and one for the officers of each company were retained. This reduction of baggage will make our wagon train much shorter. Col. Hambricht and Capt. Gumpf, of Company K, returned last Monday, well pleased with their visit, and much improved in health and appearance. Capt. Druckenmiller of Co. B, resigned a few days ago on account of his health. All were sorry to part with him, for he has been one of the most faithful officers of the regiment.

The most pleasing feature in this country is the early spring which can be appreciated by those of us coming from where the seasons are later. The trees are covered with thick foliage, producing a cool shade in the mid-day sun, and the fields look beautiful in their garb of green.

Pain, disease and exposure, with a hot climate, muddy water and bad diet will be unavoidable. But armed with Holloway's Purifying & Strengthening Pills you can endure all these and still retain good health. Only 25 cents per box. 220

THE EARLY PHYSICAL DEGENERACY OF AMERICAN PEOPLE. JUST PUBLISHED BY DR. A. STONE, Physician to the Troy Lung and Hygienic Institute.

A TREATISE on the causes of early Physical decline of America's people! The cause of Nervous Debility, Consumption and Marasmus. This work is one of high moral tone, written in chaste, yet thrilling language; and appeals direct to the moral consciousness of ALL PATRONS and guardians especially, detailing scientific and reliable aids, and treatment for cure.

It will be sent by mail on the receipt of two three cent postage stamps. Parents and Guardians! Fail not to send for this book. Young men! Fail not to send and get this book. Ladies you should at once secure a copy of this book.

A word of solemn conscientious advice to those who will reflect. A class of maladies prevail to a fearful extent in the community, amounting to at least 100,000 youth of both sexes annually, to an early grave. These diseases are very imperceptible at first. Their external manifestation, or symptoms are Nervous Debility, Relaxation and Exhaustion; or Marasmus or wasting and consumption of the tissues of the whole body; or a sense of breathing or hurried breathing on ascending a hill or flight of stairs; great palpitation of the Heart; Asthma, Bronchitis and Spasmodic Cough; shaking of the Hands and Limbs; aversion to society and to business or study; dizziness of the Head, or Memory, dimming of the Head, Neuralgia, Pain in various parts of the body; Pains in the back or limbs, Lumbar Gage, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, irregularity of the bowels, deranged secretions of the Kidneys and other glands of the body; as Leucorrhoea of the Female, &c. Like-wise Epilepsy, Hysteria and Nervous Spasms.

Now in ninety-nine cases out of every one hundred, all the above named disorders, and a host of others not named, are the result of the Lungs and that most insidious and virulent form of Consumption of the Spinal Nerves, known as Tubercles, Dorsales, and Tubercles mesenterics, have their seat and origin in diseases of the Pelvic Viscera. Hence the want of success on the part of all school practices in treating symptoms only.

Dr. Andrew Stone, Physician to the Troy Lung and Hygienic Institute, is now engaged in treating this class of modern maladies with the most astonishing success. The treatment adopted by the institution is new; it is based upon scientific principles, with new discovered remedies, without minerals or poisons. The facilities of cure are such that patients can be cured at their homes; in any part of the country, from accurate descriptions of their case, by letter; and have the medicines sent by mail or express. Printed interrogatories will be forwarded on application.

Consumption, Catarrh and diseases of the throat cured as well at the Home of the Patients as at the Institution, by sending the Cold Medicated Inhalant Balsamic Vapors, with inhaler and ample directions for use, and direct correspondence.

Patients applying for interrogatories or advice, must enclose return stamps, to meet attention. The attending physician will be found at the Institution for consultation, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., each day. Sunday in the forenoon.
