He served in Mexico as an engineer, and obtained distinction at Monterey. Since that time he has been constantly in the service, and the rebellion found him in the army, having risen by the tedious and lingering process to the rank of captain. When the great Pennsylvania Reserve Corps was organized he assumed command of the third brigade, and very soon obtained the same of being a just, severe, and accomplished officer. We may claim General Meade as a Philadelphian, for although born in Spain, while his father was residing temporarily at Cadiz, he is a member of an old and highly-respected Philadelphia family, his grandfather, George Meade, being one of our most opulent and generous citizens, while his father, the late wealth. General Meade married the eldest daughter of the late Hon. John Sergeant, and is a member of the Episcopal Church. There are few officers in the army who possess more military experience, and in addition to this, he is a just, honest, high-minded man, intensely loyal, and devoted heart and soul to the cause. He has obtained the confidence of the Army of the Potomac by his valor and his stern but carefuldiscipline, and we feel assured, from what we know of him, that he will justify the highest expectations of the coun-
