

The Local Mariettian.

MARIETTA CAR HOURS. The several passenger trains will leave the "Upper-station Depot" as follows: Morning train, East, at ten minutes before 8; Mail train West, 11:35; Harrisburg Accommodation train, East, at 9 minutes after 6; the same train West, at five minutes before 7 in the evening.

MARIETTA, SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1863.

The Fourth was very gloomily spent in this borough. The promised military display was prevented by the withdrawal of Col. Frick's troops, temporarily stationed here, from which the principal military feature was to be derived. They left on the morning of the fourth for Harrisburg, and the intended pageant was abandoned. The juveniles however, kept up their pop gun batteries all day and until late in the evening, and the little canon, stationed in front of the White Swan Hotel, boomed forth at alternate periods. The church bells, town hall and pioneer hall bells were rung. Thus passed the 87th anniversary of American Independence in Marietta. The fighting at Gettysburg and the uncertainty of the result lent anything but an inclination to the usual "Fourth of July sports," but toward evening good news from the battle field reached us, but as good news had so often been followed by bad news, during the present war, that the more prudent counsel against any demonstration.

The "Cadets of Temperance," on Tuesday evening last, elected the following, to fill the different offices:

- William McMichael, W. A. David Bucher, V. A. S. Milton Roth, Sec'y. George F. Stibgen, A. S. T. Joseph Spangler, T. Simon Bear, A. T. James L. Lindsey, T. Elbridge Wisner, A. W.

They also adopted the following preamble and resolution: Whereas, Rudy Sullivan, one of our most faithful members obeyed the call of duty and gone to the defence of his country, thus depriving himself of home comforts. Therefore

Resolved, That we endorse his highly patriotic motives and wish him a speedy and safe return.

On Saturday afternoon last, Henry Shank, who keeps the tavern at Shenk's Ferry, below Safe Harbor, on the Susquehanna river, was accidentally drowned. He had taken a cold into the river, which became unmanageable, and threw him. Being injured by the fall or unable to swim he was drowned before assistance could be rendered him. He leaves a wife and child.

A Lancaster correspondent of a New York paper says that Major Clymer of Reading called on Ex-President Buchanan on Sunday, and that Mr. B. expressed his firm devotion to the Union, but strongly denounced the method adopted in conducting the war; and was particularly severe on arbitrary arrests.

The Susquehanna rose on Monday last to fine running condition, and some twenty or twenty-five rafts from Lock Haven and above, passed this port. On Thursday, however, it began to fall rapidly, and by last (Friday) evening was regarded as too low for safe running.

Emanuel Erb, son of Jacob Erb of West Earl township, enlisted in a company and went to Harrisburg on Friday. On the evening of the same day, while lying in a tent at the camp at Harrisburg, he was struck with lightning and instantly killed.

Some sixteen full companies of volunteers have, up to this time, been enrolled in this county. They are doing duty along the line of the Susquehanna, with the exception of the Cavalry companies which are stationed at Harrisburg.

Geo. M. Franklin, son of Thomas E. Franklin, has been appointed to a position on the staff of Gen. W. B. Franklin. The latter has been ordered to report to Major Gen. Banks, at New Orleans.

Our merchants having ordered the return of their goods and opened out again; the town begins to look as of old. The long "Sunday look" everybody and "the rest of mankind" appear to be glad is at an end.

Col. Franklin's Regiment has just been organized by electing the following officers: Bmlo Franklin, Colonel; Thaddeus Stevens, Jr., Lieut. Colonel; Captain Ridsicker, Major.

A very interesting letter will be found in this week's paper, from Quartermaster McClure, of the Pennsylvania Forty Fifth. This regiment is now in Vicksburg.

The funeral of the late Maj.-Gen. John Fulton Reynolds, took place from the railroad depot, Lancaster, on Saturday last—July fourth.

Dr. James Cushman, late Quartermaster of the 135th P. V., who has been ill ever since his return to his home, in this borough, is now convalescent.

Quite a number of our citizens left here on Monday last, to pay a visit to the battle fields at Gettysburg. The descriptions some give are truly horrible.

From a Mariettian at Vicksburg.

HEAD QUARTERS, 45th P. V., Milldale, Warren county, Miss., JUNE 24th, 1863.

Col. Baker: Our departure from Kentucky was sudden and hurried, for just before we received orders to march back to Lebanon, we were expecting to move forward and give battle to the enemy, who were hovering on the banks of the Cumberland river; in fact, only a few short hours before we took up our march, the rebels made a dash into Jamestown, but they dashed back again quicker than they came in. General Welsh came up and was preparing for a forward movement, the order to leave did not please him much, I know, but obedient to orders, we packed knapsacks and beat a hasty retreat to Lebanon, which was sixty miles distant, and which we paddled in twenty-nine hours, through a cloud of dust; here we spent the Sabbath, and got our tin, preparatory for a long journey; and here we got an inkling of our intended trip; with cheerful countenances we hurried on board the cars, and set sail for Louisville, crossing the Ohio at midnight, and getting on board the cars at Jeffersonville, Ind., before daylight, and off to Seymour, on a double quick, our iron-horse puffing and squealing as he flew swiftly along; and in a few hours reached Seymour, changed cars again, and went it at a snail's gallop all night, halting in Vincennes next morning, for breakfast; then we crossed the Wabash and put through for Sandovia, a junction on the Illinois C. R. R., where we again changed cars and went to Cairo; on shopping 'round here for an hour or two, we found a Mariettian, John Leeson, who is trotting his iron-horse over the prairie hills and plains. Our trip through Illinois was a pleasant one; for at every stopping-place we were hailed by men, women and children, sharing their good things with us; such as pies, posies, cakes and good things generally; and among these dear people we saw the tear start and steal silently down the cheek, we concluded it was from a fond sister, an intended, or a devoted wife; at any rate, it made us feel for the loved ones at home, and, if possible, a more earnest desire for our bleeding country. At Cairo we took, in ten day's stock of edibles, such as hard-tack and a little good pork, in the shape of ham, and away we went on board the Sallie List, for Vicksburg; but just before we set off we heard it was taken, and concluded we would go down and hold it. From this point we saw nothing to excite our curiosity, save an abandoned camp, until we reached Columbus; we were steaming by, about as saucy as yankees would do, when, to our surprise, a blank shot from the shore, betokened us to stop, but the Colonel commanding didn't mind the blank, but in a few seconds more, a twelve pound pill passed close by the bow of the flag ship, and I tell you, Col., we all rounded too in a hurry, went through the usual red-tape ceremonies and steamed off again down the mighty, muddy and crooked river, and cast anchor at the mouth of White river, by tying a huge line to a big tree, where we lay for the night; all soon became silent as death on board, and we soon turned in to share in nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep. Next morning we tied our gallant ship loose, coiled up our anchor, and away we went, promising our eyes a good view of the country; but, to our utter astonishment, we found nothing but heavy wilderness on either bank of the river, save an occasional cabin, hardly as good as our old fish house, (Keesey's, Haines & Co.) We grow weary and said in our hearts, that ten miles along the old Susquehanna were worth five hundred along the Mississippi. By ten o'clock at night we reached Memphis, looking beautiful indeed with her gas lights studded all over the city; we turned in for the night and early the next morning commenced looking 'round and found the city infested with Jews; in fact, if I had not called to mind some of my geography lessons, I would have concluded it was Jerusalem; they are doing nearly all the business, and if the city would fall suddenly into the hands of the enemy, they would make a good haul, for they have heavy stocks on hand. At this place we lay some five days; Gen. Welsh did not come up for a few days, and after he did, he kept us a few days longer; but while we lay here we came across some Pennsylvanians, and some of intimate acquaintance; first was Sergeant Gans, who has charge of a squad of orderlies acting for Gen. Hulbert; next was Mr. Sypher, who helped to shell the rebels out of here, and is now enjoying citizenship; next was G. Smith, from Hempfield; and others from the county and State. We had a good time with these, our friends; but among some, whom we have not mentioned, we found the scent of rebel and we eschewed their friendship. Last and best of all, through the kindness of Sergt. Child, we were introduced to a grand-daughter of Mr. Cooke, who was one of the founders of Marietta, and a daughter of G. W. Cooke, his son. She married in Iowa and came here with her husband some five or six years ago; her husband, F. Katzenbach, in an intelligent and highly educated German. Mrs. Katzenbach, who is all life, and, by-the-by, one of the strongest Union ladies I have ever met with, gave us a history of things as they occurred in Memphis; I will not attempt to describe, but will say that the hours I spent in this family were full of pleasure and interest. Col. Curtin accompanied us, he was highly pleased, and we promised to call again; but the next morning we were on our way here. Our journey from Memphis was neither exciting nor interesting; the country along grew more settled, and on the last day's ride we passed some fine plantations, filled with negro huts, but a stock of cotton, and but very few of corn. At Snyder's Bluff we disembarked, after being cramped up nine days on a very dirty boat; and as I was going to say, with a scotch crew; but as the boat is in government employ, they ought to be all right. On reaching here we found quite a number who were formerly from the Old Keystone and they were glad to see us; but found the major part of this army very jealous of the Eastern Army; asking how we like to build pontoon bridges, and the like; we bit our lips and said nothing, for we were delighted to see this army so jubilant and cheerful, and in good health, certain of victory. They count on Vicksburg as a sure pop, and trust the invitation to celebrate the Fourth will come off, and if anything very gay occurs, and don't get too much south on the brain, I will tell you of the celebration. The boys are well and in good trim, and if Grant will give the 9th corps a chance, they will prove to our western brethren that we can fight, and that our fighting has been in reverses as well as victory. Dr. Warren McChesney and N. Wyko from Columbia, paid us a visit to-day; they are in the 6th and 8th Mo. regiments and are in the front. The Doctor says we are losing on an average twenty men per diem, and says that they have changed commanders in the city. Pemberton is reported in prison. We have heard, through official sources, of the capture of Port Hudson, and ere this reaches you I think Vicksburg will either have surrendered or been captured. The rebels are giving our transports some trouble above us; the last boat in was fired into, several horses killed and one lieutenant wounded. We are now entrenching on the different roads leading from the Yazoo and Big Black rivers; so if General Johnston tries his hand in this direction he will find these hills and nob's too well fortified to move in the direction of his friends, in Vicksburg. Good bye, for this time. Yours truly, JOHN MCCLURE.

"J. B. on the TRAMP."—A letter from Lancaster, Pa., says that Ex-President Buchanan was seen rushing through the streets on Monday morning of last week with a large tin box in his hand, probably containing his valuables. Notwithstanding all his eminent services in behalf of the rebels, the "old public functionary" evidently comprehends that they hold him in profound contempt, and would show him no more mercy than they showed the copperheads of York, whose doughy burgess, Mr. Small, the editor of that copperhead journal, the York Gazette, tramped eight weary miles to meet the invaders and surrender the town. Whether J. B.'s tin box, with which he was "a moving on," contained the "history of his administration, written by himself," which has so long been promised, or whether it was filled with title deeds and worthless greenbacks, probably an anxious public will never be permitted to know. Can any one tell us whether the scared ex-President is still on the tramp?

A HEAVY LOSER.—One of the heaviest losers by the rebel invasion into Pennsylvania is the Hon. Thaddeus Stevens of this city. Besides losing thousands of dollars in mules, horses and cattle, his extensive and valuable iron-works in Adams county were destroyed by fire. The loss of Mr. Stevens is estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000. This loss, calculated to soften the animosity of the bitterest enemy, only served to make the Copperheads of this city more venomous than ever. They gloated on it with fiendish malignity, and to them it seemed more important and welcome news, than the inglorious defeat of Lee's army.—Lancaster Examiner.

The draft commenced in Lancaster on Thursday, in the Orphans' Court room. The number required from this Congressional district is 2,082, but an excess of 50 per cent. is drawn to cover exemptions, making the whole number to be drafted 3,123. The day for the draft to reach Marietta, is Saturday next—July 18th—the number 72. The arrangements for conducting the draft are very complete and entirely satisfactory to all present. All the names on the slips are read out before they are put in the wheel; they are drawn out by a little girl about ten years of age, who is blindfolded, and as each name is read out one of the clerks at once fills up a notice to the man drafted, to report at the rendezvous in fifteen days. This system greatly facilitates the work, which is throughout conducted in such a manner that the most captious cannot take exception to it.

WHAT WE MUST EXPECT.—The Richmond Inquirer explains and apologizes for what it calls the "leniency" of Gen. Lee, by ascribing it to the necessity of a present policy. It says "it would not do for Gen. Lee to use harsh measures or allow his troops to plunder, until the Army of the Potomac is whipped, then it promises the adoption of a regular system of plunder, destruction and retaliation." This shows what we may expect if Lee should prove successful, unless we do our duty and arrest his further progress.

TABLE OF DISTANCES.—The following table of distances will be valuable for reference at this time:— DISTANCES FROM WASHINGTON. To Harper's Ferry, Va., northwest, 53 miles. To Winchester, Va., west by north, 71 " To Frederick City, Md., northwest, 44 " To Harrisburg, Pa., north by east, 110 " To Hagerstown, Md., northwest, 80 " To Hancock, Md., " 125 " Carlisle, Pa., is 18 miles west by south of Harrisburg.
