Army Correspondence.

Kingston, Ga., June 3, 1864, Camp of 79th P. V. V.

This is the greatest campaign of the war, and the whole nation patiently awaits the result of the next few months with intense anxiety. The movements of regiments participating in the great struggle, to the immediate friends becomes doubly interesting. The first Laucaster County Regiment, after a pleasant stay of six weeks at home among friends who did all that friends could do to make home attractive and the visit agreeable, returned to the "front:" none knowing the meaning of that word better than the men composing with its iron veneering, its bristling willingly, if not more so. bayonets and glittering artillery. These men have again gone forth from your midst "to battle for our Union," resolving to come home when this rabellion is crushed, or come home never.

When the regiment returned to Chattanooga they found their old commander elevated to the chief command of the may rest assured the people are tired of armies of Uncle Sam; and more particularly directing the movements of the them in such great numbers has added brave but unfortunate "Army of the nothing to their comfort. l'otomac;" though in his stead we found the brave, energetic and indomitable General Sherman. The army was moving southward and after receiving a partial out-fit of clothing at Chattanooga (the maid of Lookout,) we hastened to join our brigade; and strange as it the lustre of General Sherman will be may seem, joined it before the same rebel stronghold-Buzzard's Roost-that we left, to enjoy the fruits of veteranizing, in February last. The regiment had been in the front but a lew hours when the line was ordered forward, and while passing over an open field it received a most terrible shelling from the rebel batteries on the hills. Colonel Hambright was wounded in the side by a niere of shell; not severely as he is agaid in command. He remained in bed but a faw days and returned to the regiment when scarcely able. The rebel sition being too strong to be taken in

This bridge is three hunthree and cars running to the front having recuperated its strength by several days rest again moved forward: the enemy sullenly but gradually gave way until he gained his entrenchments point he is strongly posted and our assaults for a week past have failed to dislodge him. Our army is slowly gaining on the rebel flanks and soon he will be compelled to yield his position or submit to a capture. General Thomas has his head quarters at Dallas, twenty-five miles north-west of Atlanta.

The rebels retreated so hastily after the battle of Resaca that they left many of their dead on the field unburied .-While the army was passing through Resaca, the 79th received an order to remain and bury the dead and gather

Resaca is a small place, on the north bank of the Oostenaulee river, of some twelve or fifteen trame buildings, surrounded by a circle of strong rebel earthworks. A fine large the date of this list, and pay one cent for admansion was soon converted into a hospital and the beautiful lawn surrounding the building soon filled with soldiers lying on their blankets in the shade of the trees. Never have we seen so many soldiers with amputated limbs; some without an arm; others minus a leg, and not a few with both an arm and a a leg gone; and yet all cheerful. If the people of the north could see how patiently these men bear their sufferings they would more easily comprehend the divinity of the cause for which we are fighting. And is there a man among you who is so much less than a man as to call these noble defenders of liberty "hirelings?" Yes, there are such; and could the soldiers in the field bring ring the warmest weather. These Refrigeratheir guns to bear on them, instead of the veteran 79th. We have at last carried the war into Georgia, and bitterly the people feel it. The rebel government for three years has been a heavy drain on its citizens, requiring the tenth of the product of the farm and in many instances called for the remaining nine tenths. You the war, and the Union army coming to

No doubt many think the brilliant achievement of the "Army of the Potomac" has far eclipsed the success of General Sherman and his army, but when the smoke of battle clears and the importance of the victories is contrasted,

The roar of the artillery of the Wilderness was heard in the echo at Resaca; and while General Grant, is thundering at the gates of Richmond, General Sherman is closing in on Atlanta. S. E. W.

We find in the last number of the Mount Joy Harald a letter from Sergeant Edward W. McElroy of this borough, dated at Port Royal, Virginia, from which we make the following extracts:

During the period of my absence, I trough both was flanked by the army, with the sometimes feel lost here among thousion of one corps, moving around ands of strangers, not one face in the on or one lace in the battalion seeming familiar. At this order to "fall in" is given, as usual, you will hear some fellow rip out an oath about as long as the regiment, at the same time throwing down his knapsack, swearing he will not go much farther.

> I must explain to you how I came here. I was in Convalescent Camp and while there an order came to have all the convalescents that were fit for duty formed or organized into battalions. This is the way I came to get in the 3d Provisional Battalion; and a gay affair it is. As soon as I see the old 45th P.

> V., this boy will be missing at roll call. I don't want you to think that I am slandering either of the two towns that I am about to mention, but I have traveled over a small part of this globe and for country towns I have not come across any that suit me half so well as Mount Joy or Marietta. I scarcely know why it is, but as the old saying is, "there is no place like home." I have been through many of the cities of the Southern States, and every lady that I saw looked to me as if she was consumpted, while our Pennsylvania Dutch Girls, as they call them, are of that good old style, as thick as they are long. Those are the kind that suit me. I don't know what your choice may be, but I want you to reserve a Lancaster County Dutch Girl for me until the war is over, (and that won't be long,) for old U. S. Grant is giving them fits from all points.

It may seem strange that Holloway's Pills should be recommended for Dysentery and Flux, many persons supposing that they would increase the relaxation. This is a great mistake, for these Pills will correct the liver and stomach and thus remove all the acrid humours from the system. This medicine will give tone and vigor to the whole organic system however deranged, while health and strength follow as a matter of course. Nothing will stop the relaxation of the Bowels so sure as this famous medicine-

Nothing that is not wholesome, genial and restorative in its nature enters into the composition of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Fever and Ague patients, after being plied with quinine for months in vain, until fairly satu rated with that dangerous alkaloid, are not un frequently estored to health within a few daysby the use of Hostetter's Bitters.

The weak stomach is rapidly invigorated and the appetite restored by this agreeable to-nic, and hence it works wouders in cases of Dyspepsia and in less confirmed forms of Indigestion. Acting as a gentle and painless appe-rient, as well as upon the liver, it also invariably relieves the Constipution superinduced by irregular action of the digestive and secretive organs. Persons of feeble habit, liable to nervous attacks, lowness of spirits and fits of language of the control of gour, find prompt and permanent relief from the Bitters. The testimony on this point is most conclusive, and from both sexes. The agony of Bilious Colic is immediately assuaged by a single dose of the stimulant, and by occasionally resorting to it, the return of the complaint may be prevented.
