COUNTERFEITS.

As Kunkel's Bitter Wine of Iron is the only sure and effectual remedy in the known world for the permanent cure of Dyspepsia and Debility, and as there are a number of imitations offered to the public, we would caution the community to purchase none but the genuine article, manufactured by S. A. KUNKEL & CO., and has their stamp on the top of the cork of every bottle. The very fact that others are attempting to imitate this valuable remedy, proves its worth and speaks volumes in its favor.

The Bitter Wine of Iron is put up in 75 cent and $1.00 bottles, and sold by all respectable druggists throughout the country. Be particular that every bottle bears the fac simile of the proprietor's signature.

This Wine includes the most agreeable and efficient Salt of Iron we possess; Citrate of Magnesia combined with the most energetic of vegetable tonics, Yellow Peruvian Bark. The effect in many cases of debility, loss of appetite, and general prostration, of an efficient Salt of Iron, is most happy. THE FIRST DUTY OF A WIFE.

The first duty of a wife is submission, reverence and deference to the husband.

The Bible commands the husband to love his wife, but it does not say "one word of the wife's loving the husband; that is taken for granted."

She should acquiesce in the authority of her husband. She should have submission to the reasonable authority of the husband, not like that of the servant to the master, but a quiet submission which tends to her own advantage more than her husband's.

Some women are weak enough to marry husbands to rule them. Such marriages are always unhappy, as the wife acknowledges she marries a fool, and is obliged to do so after all her life, and in the end finds she has less advantage over him than she supposed.

Women should submit as our first mother Eve had the sentence passed on her that her husband should be her desire, and should rule over her. A woman should not, however, be submissive in divine matters, but differ in a meekness, leaving God to decide.

The second duty is real and "high respect to husband. If her husband is no model in the eyes of the world, he should be in a wife's; and when she later thinks meanly of her husband's appearance or talent, the next thing is contempt. When this begins, the delicate sentiments that belong to the relationship of man and wife is gone forever.

If a woman marries a man of stupidity, whom she can't respect, she is more foolish, and breaks that holy vow to honor, love and obey. A wife should respect the husband when she can't the man; and should never complain of his imperfections, because a seal should forever be set on the improprieties of the husband, which when broken, destroys the family circle, and makes the wife and husband no longer one.

She should not even confide in a mother, for concealment is the true path, and these faults should be hidden, and, though it bring her to her grave with a broken heart, they should be covered up in her coffin.

The third duty is gentleness of spirit. A wife should be cheerful and unmurmuring, and should acquiesce with the husband in the management of the family affairs. He should locate the residence, regulate the family expenses, and have the power of deciding such matters; or him the responsibility rests to keep the wolf from the door.

A wife who complains to her husband because she cannot go to such expense, as some other woman is, at once man, ungenerous and cruel. She should have the control of her own tongue, knowing how to say the right word just in season. She should not try to have the last word, or to talk a husband down, for like that of an ancient General, another such victory will be his.

The fourth duty is that she should be a helpmeet. A helpmeet was necessary in the days of innocence, what is it now? She should be wise and judicious in the management of the household affairs; and should follow the commands of the third chapter of Solomon, which more than many modern wives do. A wife should be a helpmeet to her husband, and should be a helpmeet to her husband, and should be a helpmeet to her husband.

She should have the control of her own tongue, knowing how to say the right word just in season. She should not try to have the last word, or to talk a husband down, for like that of an ancient General, another such victory will be his.

THE NEW MILITIA LAW.

The following is a summary, for general use, of the new law recently passed at the extra session of the Legislature.

The citizens exempt from enrollment are those physically disabled, members and officers of the Legislature, heads of State departments at Harrisburg, judges and clerks of courts, sheriffs, recorders of deeds, registers of wills, notaries, and district attorneys. Militia officers who have served seven, or volunteers who have served three years.

The enrolled militia must drill by companies, battalions, and by regiments at least twice a year. The penalty for non-attendance is five dollars per diem for officers, and three dollars for privates.

The State is divided into twenty militia Divisions. Each county is a separate Division, except Philadelphia (which is the 21st) and Berks (which is the 22nd).

The enrolled militia must uniform themselves. The State allows for each uniform $6. The penalty for neglect of uniform is $25.

The militia is not liable to be called into active service, except in case of invasion, insurrection, riot, or tumult, made or threatened, or in obedience to the orders of the Governor. When in service the militia receive the same pay as United States troops, and the families of dead or wounded are entitled to pensions.

The Governor possesses all the powers to organize the entire State militia, and in addition has special power to organize as many regiments as he may think proper (not exceeding fifteen), to be called the Pennsylvania State Guard. The companies of this organization elect their own officers, but the Governor appoints the regimental officers.

This State Guard may be kept in service as long as deemed necessary, not exceeding three years, and the men may be raised by draft in the whole or any particular part of the Commonwealth. When drafted, either in the State Guard or the regular militia, the man must appear in person or by substitute, or else "suffer such punishment as a court-martial may determine."

The militia bill and the two supplementary bills comprehend a mass of details, and define the duties and powers of officers, enrollers, and assessors, the method of forming companies, etc. The bill is a very comprehensive aggregate of about two hundred sections, and will be printed by authority of the Legislature, at an early day.

JOHN WENTWORTH.

John Wentworth, at the late Chicago meeting, said:

Jefferson Davis entered Congress about the same year that I did. I have met him often and knew him well. But there was this difference between Jeff Davis and me. I paid for my education, Jeff didn't for his. He was taken at a tender age and placed at West Point, and your father and mine were taxed to pay for the instruction that rescued him from oblivion. We made the very common mistake of judging by his head rather than his heart, and did not notice the viper that was coiling there, and which we nursed into life to sting us if possible to death.

When his school-boy days were over, Jeff was sent out West—out West here at the Government expense—and spent a year or so surveying around Galumet, fishing, and lounging, and shooting grouse at Government expense and eating them himself. [Laughter.] He then married into the Government; his wife being a daughter of Gen. Taylor, who was supported by the Government; went to the Mexican war and returned to become Secretary of War and to vilify the gallant soldiers of Illinois for their part upon the field of Buena Vista.

For this Governor Bissell called him out, but on this particular occasion Jeff didn't come out. [Great laughter.]

A high private of extraordinary dimensions, lumbered into the presence of General Thomas and asked for a furlough; adding, "General, I wish to go home and see my wife." "How long is it since you have seen your wife?" inquired the General. "Why," he answered, "I haven't seen my wife for three months." "Three months!" remarked Gen. Thomas, "why, I haven't seen my wife for three years." "Well, that may be," rejoined the other, "but you see, General, me and my wife ain't of that sort." Of course the high private got his furlough after that rub.

An affecting incident occurred at the New Haven barracks the other day. A woman desired to see her husband—embraced him, began to sob and cry violently. Husband gave her his handkerchief to wipe her eyes, after which she emotionally manipulated it under hershawl and returned it to him. Husband took it as if it were a brickbat. Officer of the guard investigated, and found a bottle of old rye whiskey in the handkerchief.

True wisdom is a thing very extraordinary. Happy are they who have it, and next to them, not those many that think they have it, but those few that are sensible of their own defects and imperfections, and know that they have them.

Washington Irving was once asked about his health. "There is a streak of old age in it," he replied; "what a pity it is when we have grown old we could not turn round and grow young again, and die of cutting our teeth."

No triumphs are comparable to those of piety—no trophies so magnificent and durable as those which victorious faith erecteth; they do so far surpass the most famous achievements of pagan heroes.

"No the pure all things are pure."—Proverbs 1. Many a sparrow's nest drops gleams upon a filthy and bedridden way-side; many a worm grovels in native mud beneath an unspotted and virgin covering of fairest snow.

At the Winchester (Eng.) Sessions, four men were indicted for stealing beans. A gentleman present asked another: "What have they been doing?" "Been stealing," was the answer.

A young lady throws herself away, "I understand she is married for life; if she is," comfortably settled, "I understand she has married a wealthy old man whom she hates."

A French soldier recently went to a Paris exhibition, and wished to enter at half price because he had but one eye. Claim not allowed.

The press; the pulpit, and the pationist. The first spreads the news, the second the gospel, and the last spreads all over the sidewalk.

Tart words make no friends; a spoonful of honey will catch more flies than a gallon of vinegar.

When did Noah go into the wiper? He made port about forty days after the deluge began.
