HEADLEY'S HISTORY OF THE GREAT REBELLION!

THE late rebellion stands out peculiar and extraordinary in human events; and the magnificent scale upon which the war has peen conducted, constitute it one of the grand-est and most brilliant chapters of the world's history.

Mr. Headley, of all writers, is perhaps best qualified to portray the the stupendous features of the mighty contest. His previous works on less momentous themes have placed works on less momentus themes have placed him in the first position, as a graphic and powerful deleniator of war scenes and characters, and the magnitude and grandeur of the present subject, impart to his pen the fire and vigor of a yet more exacted inspiration, and fur nish ample scope for the highest exhibition of his peculiar genius for military description. Under his powerful pen the stirring scenes of the War pass in review with the vividness and distinctness of a present and living reality. the war pass in review with the vividness and distinctness of a present and living reality; while his great talent for condensation enables him to embody everything of importance in a compass just suited to the public want. From no other source can so clear and comprehensive an impression of the grand march of events be obtained, so easily and agreeably as from Mr. Headley's work.

Other histories have been issued before Grant's Report and other official documents were submitted to the government, and therefore unretiable; Mr. Headley has delayed the completion of this till those documents so essential to authenticity and correctness could be obtained. obtained.

First.—They are free from twine, which is affected by the lime, and liable to rot, causing the falling out of the bristles.

Second.—The bristles are inserted in the wood, or body of the brush, when green, which when dry, causes them to be held firmly in their place; any subsequent soaking or shrinking fails to affect them.
