Saturday Morning, April 28, 1866.

In Andrew Johnson's speech at Washington on the 3d of April, 1865, he made this declaration: "You, my friends have traitors in your very midst; and treason needs rebuke and punishment here as well as elsewhere." It can scarcely be doubted that he intended to high, contain sixty-five tons of granite, apply these words to the men who ap plauded his late vetoes and who approve only such portions of his policy as tend to make treason respectable instead of "odieus," and to endow it with power and wealth instead of mosting out punishment and impoverishment.

Auton Probet, charged with the murder of the Deering family, was brought into court on the 18th. He said he did not desire any counsel, nor to make any defence. After counsel had been assigned him, he said he would accept them. The bills of indictment. eight in number, were read to him, and he stood mute. His counsel were granted until Wednesday to plead, when the trial was proceeded with, and should no legal barrier be interposed, will soon be

A bill was before the Legislature at its last session, making 7 per cent. the legal rate of interest in Pennsylva nia. This bill was at first defeated in the House by a small majority, but afterwards the vote was reconsidered, and the bill passed. The measure however, failed in the Senate, as did also a proposition allowing Banks to charge 7 per cent. interest on discounts. The legal rate of interest, therefore, remains at 6 per cent. as it always has been.

A POINT ON WHICH ALL PHYSICIAN AGREE. Out of ten thousand regular physicians you cannot find one who will not say that stimulants and invigorants are absolutely necessary in medical practice. And yet in bygone years humane practitioners have hesitated to administer them, because the fiendish ingenuity of wretches who make merchandise of human infirmities had so polluted and deteriorated them that the remedy was deemed as dangerous as the disease. This perplexity ts happily done away with.
