Mr. Headley, of all writers, is perhaps best qualified to portray the the stupendous feat-ures of the mighty contest. His previous works on less momentous themes have placed him in the first position, as a graphic and pou-erfui deleniator of war scenes and characters, and the magnitude and grandeur of the pres-ent subject, impart to his pen the fire and vi-gor of a yet more exacted inspiration, and fur nish ample scope for the highest exhibition of his pecultar genius for military description. Under his powerful pen the stirring scenes of the War pass in review with the vividness and distinctness of a present and living reality; while his great talent for condentation ena-bles him to embody everything of importance in a compass just suited to the public want. From no other source can so clear and com-prehensive an impression of the grand march of events be obtained, so easily and agreeably as from Mr. Headley's work.
