The "unterrified" had quite a demonstration on Wednesday night. A large delegation from Columbia, carrying torches headed by a brass band, assisted to enlarge the procession. A very peat and tastefully arranged speaker's stand was erected in front of the Donegsl House. Col. Eagle had his residence illuminated with Chinese lanterns and a transparency bearing the name "Clymer." After marching through the town, the crowd was "brought up" in Market square, where Congressman (?) Sam Reynolds and a Lieutenant Mc-Clune addressed it. Various little fights took place and pistols were 'reely brandished. The "Donegal House" was also illuminated. On Thursday morning we observed, in passing the speakers' stand, four empty lager beer casks under the stand. Query, were they emptied on the stand during the meeting?

We understand that Dr. Hinkle has yielded to the strong pressure of our peighbors at Columbia, and has located at that place. We are exceedingly sorty to luse the Doctor, but have no doubt there is a wider field there for his usefulness and skill. He will, however, daily visit our place and can be found at his old office from 12 to 2 o'clock, to attend to his old patients. His office tours in Columbia will be from 8 to 10 a.m., and from 7 to 9 in the evening.

The last grand rally will take place on Monday evening, when there will be a grand torchlight procession. Delegations are expected from nearly all the neighboring towns. Zonaves from Columbia and Manheim have notified their willingness to be present. Stevens, Clinton, Lloyd, General Fisher and others will speak.

There was quite an impromptu neeting in the town hall park, on Tuesday evening, at which Robert Carroll, jr., presided. Col. Gregg of the Pa., 45 Regiment and John M. Chase, of Clearfield county, spoke. Under the circumstaces, the very short notice, the audieoce was very large.

& Charles J. Loughead, a brakesman on the Pennsylvania railroad, fell of the Cincinnati express on Wednesby night, and was instantly killed. Tas accident happened near Mount Joy. He leaves a wife and one child.
