SYMPTOMS. The symptoms of Catarh are at first very slight. Persons find that they have a cold, that they have frequent attacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of temperature. In this condition the mose may be dry, or a slight onscharge, thin and acrid, afterwards thics and adhesive, may ensue.

As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are row thick and heavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The secretions are offensive, causing a bad oreath; the voice thick and nasal? the eyes are veak; the sense of smell is lessened or destroyed; deafners fic-quently takes place.

Another common and important symptom of Catarrh is, that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a suck or slimy mucous, which has fatten from the head during the night. When this takes place, the person may be sure that his lisease is on its way to the lungs, and should lose no time in arresting it.
