The Mariettian.

MARIETTA. PA:

Saturday Morning, July 13, 1867.

A soldier named Lorres, in Madrid, was on intimate terms with a tailor man, and frequently went to his house during the day. The husband finally began to suspect the fidelity of his wife. He came home one day, found the soldier asleep in his bed, sent his wife on an errand; and while she was gone; cut the throat of the sleeping man, killing him on the spot. On the return of his wife, he showed her the dead body and then, taking the sabre of the soldier, he inflicted several wounds on her ending by stabbing himself in the breast and abdomen. He was not expected to recover, and his wife was in a dangerous state.

A New Hampshire bachelor, after soveral unsuccessful attempts to enter the Benedictine ranks, finally persuaded an old maid to marry him, the consideration being a tifteen dollar watch. The ceremony over, he urged an immediate return home. "Home!" exclaimed the bride, who had been married in her father's bouse, "home!" This is my home, and you had better go to your'n. I agreed to marry you for the watch, but I wouldn't live with you for a town clock!"

In the town of Tyre, Mich., a few days since, one B. was turned out of doors by his wife and paramour. The latter continued to occupy the place of the husband till the community, feeling outraged by their shameful conduct, determined to wage war, and on the night of the 11th inst. a number of persons proceeded to the house and dragged the pair into the street, applied a coat of tar and feathers, and, mounting them on a rail, treated them to a little bit of an excursion.

Some of the leading southern politicians, with Gov. Orr, of South Carolina, at the head of them, propose to organize a new party, declining hereafter to act with the Democratic party of the North, which comes in for a round share of denunciation for all the troubles it has so industriously helped to get them into. They therefore refuse listening to their counsel in the future and mean to set up for themselves.

Independence-day was celebrated throughout the Union with much enthusiasm. Even in the late rebellious than for half a dozen years. In all the principal cities of Europe, the Americans held formal celebrations. At Paris two hundred and fifty ladies and gentlemen were present at a great banquet which was presided over by James Milliken, Esq., of Philadelphia.

Much fault is found at Washington with the Secretary of State for his slow movements relative to the intervening with President Juarez for the life of Maximilian. Elad prompt and proper measures been taken it is claimed that the result would have been different.

The Pittsburg Post, a Democratic paper, advises its party, in case Grant is nominated by the Republicans, to abandon their ideas and vote for him-a significant fact, foretelling the impending dissolution of the old worn-out Democratic organization.

Senator Sherman has sailed in the Steamship City of Paris from England. for New York on the 5th inst. He denounces Stanbury's opinion on the reconstruction law as an attempt to annul the acts of Congress.

The Mexican President, Juniez, conducted a small cigar factory in New Orleans from 1852 to 1855, and during that time is said to have acquired a thorough knowledge of our political system.

Longstreet was the only paymas ter who squared up his accounts with the government before he turned rebel. His past honesty accounts for his present sincerity.

John Quincy Adams delivered the 4th of July oration in Boston in 1793. His son, Charles Francis Adams, was the orator in 1843; just fifty years afterwards.

The wooden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Pickerd, Boston, was observed on Tuesday evening. The cards of invitation were very unique and beautiful, consisting of pieces of thin chip, about eight inches square, engraved in old English. Elegant wooden presents were received. The bride wore a light gray corded silk dress, trimmed around the skirt with two rows of black velvet; on these bands were placed large white, wooden stars, a few inches apart. The waist-was trimmed in the same manner as, the skirt, the buttons being something quite uncommon, being made of pine pink to resemble coral.

Our readers will scarcely have forgotten the terrible murder of Mrs. Kineley, and her female companion, in West Auborn, Maine, last winter, says the Hartford Times, of July 1st. These poor elderly women lived alone in a sparsely settled neighborhood, and were murdered during a terrible snow storm. one cold night in January last. The white man Verrill, has made a confession. He says he and Verrill got into. the house to rob it, but could obtain no. money. The outrage on Mrs. Kinsley. he says, was perpetrated by Verrill, who with a chair. The street was the sent

A jury in the Supreme Court of New York, have just declared damages to the extent of $5,500, in the case of a person who suffered injuries by falling down an insecurely-covered vault-hole. A Milwaukeean has sued a young married woman, who had received his attention while engaged to some one else, for a bill of $104.25 the amount he paid in her behalf, in taking her to concerts, operas, picnics, rides, and icecream saloons. As an offset he credited her with sundry kisses valued at $16,371; several squeezes of the hand, $3,371; an unreturned photograph and a ringmaking a total of $37.75. He recovered the bill, the Judge allowing the plaintiff the kisses at his own valuation. The case is to be followed up.

The Groendyke divorce case. Ohicago, is terminated. Its history is a singular one. Mrs. Groendyke sued for a divorce on the ground of cruelty. The jury found him guilty, but before the decree was rendered she was caught in South it was observed more generally flagrante delictue with George Warner. She excused herself, saying she was en gaged to marry him after her divorce. The husband filed a cross bill and obtained a decree on Tuesday. An hour afterward she married Warner

> An Ohio paper tells a novel love story. A young couple planned an elopement, the girl decending from her room upon the traditional ladder, but at the gate they were met by the father of the girl and a minister, by whom the young couple were escorted to the perlor, where to their surprise they found all their relatives collected for the marriage ceremony, which took place at once. It was a neat paternal freak.

A most brutal and distressing case of child-whipping recently occurred in Springfield, Erie county, Pa. For some triffling offence, a little girl of nine years of age was so terribly beaten, first by the father and then by the mother, that her life was despaired of for a numper of days. Ugly gashes completely covered the head and body of the child.

Morrow B. Lowry has again been placed in nomination for State Senator of the deceased; from words they came by the Republicans of the Erie district. He is said to be immensely rich. A correspondent of the Philadelphia In- stones, and knives were employed, to quirer says, that in wealth he ranks the wounding of 14 persons, 4 of them second only to Senator Cameron.
