There is a sort of general eruption of business all over the town. Quiet neighborhoods, never accused of the least life or activity, are suddenly invaded by armies of men with hods, trowels, shovels, pickaxes, etc., and straightway dwellings become bazaars for the sale of almost everything. Very many of these establishments are occupied by concerns which are entirely new, or else have been hidden in some out of the way place.

For the Presbyterian Banner Cortland Van Rensselaer Institute.

The friends of the late Dr. Van Rensse laer are desirous of erecting some monument to his memory. They would have it not only perpetuate his name, which is as "ointment poured forth," but also com-memorate his labors in the great cause of Christian nurture and training, and be expressive of the gratitude of our Church, for his eminent services in the promotion of her highest interests. This they con- genuine without the signature of ceive cannot be worthily done in sculptured marble or granite. They propose to establish and endow for this purpose, an Intitute of learning, which shall bear his honored name, and which shall be administered with reference to the ends he loved to accomplish, and in which his life of love and works of mercy shall be repeated. They would call it the Cortland Van Rensselaer Institute. They would have it a Christian home for the sons of our Foreign Missionaries. They would provide in it a through ic training, in whole or in part, gratuitous as may be found practicable, for canditates for the Gospel ministry. They would locate it at Burlington, New-Jersey, where Dr. Van Rensselaer spent his later and most laborious years, and where he died.

Such an institution will supply a want most deeply felt by all the intelligent claims to the Spanish crown in a letter to the friends of education in our Church for the Eondon Times. He affirms that a revolution is friends of education in our Church for the last thirty years, and by none more deeply than the late Dr. Van Rensselaer himself. Their plan is now submitted to the Church. They require for the foundation and the success of their scheme a minimum of $100,000. They ask prompt, general, and liberal cooperation. Their argument is, First, love to the Master, whose grace on Faith," teeming with the glorious truths first fitted and adorned, then gave, then sustained his honored servant, Dr. Van. Rensselaer, in the service of our Board of Education. Nothing is aimed at, nothing desired but for the glory of his blessed name. Second, love to the brethren. "Bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." One burden of our brethren in the foreign field has never been adequately appreciated, or at least provided for by the Church, and that is the education of their children. No heavier trial meets them while living and laboring, and no keener pang is felt when dying, than arises from the thought that their sons and daughters > education and Christian nurture. The attempt is now made to meet this want by providing a Christian home for the sons of all our Foreign Missionaries. Our third argument is a grateful remembrance of the Rev. Dr. Van Rensselaer. No servant of the Church, we are persuaded, ever served her with purer, more disinterested fervor, and none was ever better appreciated by the Church at large. To that Church we now appeal to rear up an Institution, such as is here indicated—such as would seem best in keeping with the benevolent aims of his whole life. Let it be worthy of the Church, and worthy of him

Garibaldi is said to have been wounded at the battle of Volturno. His total losses at that en-gagement are stated by the Paris Patrie to have amounted to 4,500 men, while that of the Royalists was not so great.

Among other incidents of the battle it is recorded that at the most critical monents of the

The Count was not seen afterwards, but it was hoped that he was among the prisoners. A great many of the wounded on the field of Volturno died for the want of ambulances.
There was a cannonade under the walls of Capua, on the 9th, and the Garibaldians gained fresh positions. Hostilities were afterwards suspended for twenty-four hours to bury the dead. The cannonade recommended on the 10th, and continued till the 11th. A decree is published ordering a vote on the 21st of October by universal suffrage on the following question: Do you wish Italy to be indivisibly united with Victor Emmanuel as constitutional King and his egitimate descendants.

The statement that Prussia and Russia have issued protests against the Sardinian policy, iden-tical with that of Austria, is denied, but is neverheless adhered to by some authorities. The Paris correspondent of the London Herald alludes to the probability of a Congress on the affairs of Italy. In the Sardinian Chamber of Deputies, the order of the day, proposed by the Committee, rendered homage to Garibaldi, and unanimously expressed their approval of the project, and the law for the annexation was agreed to by 290 votes against 6. The vote was preceded by a speech from M. Cavour, defending his policy. He urged union, and said he desired Rome for the capital of Italy, and uttered a menace against Venetia.

CONSTITUTING, WITH THE NOTES, A MEMOIR Edited by the Rev. John Hall, D.D. 2 vols., 12mo. With two Portraits. Price $8.00.

From the Princion Review. These letters, extending over so long a period, constitute not only a history of his inner life, but a history of his times as viewed from his position. There is scarcely an important event in Church or State—scarcely a noticeable production of the press which is not the subject, of remark: His pure English, diction, his scholarly attainments, his zeal for truth and religion, his sound judgment and syurm feelings, as here manifested, give not only an exalted opinion of the writer, but add a lasting value to this publication as a record of personal, ecclesiastical, and literary history.

From the Christian Review (Baptisti)!

A correspondence begun in boyhood, and continued for forty years, is one of the rarest occurrences. The constancy and congeniality required for it are not the gifts of ordinary mortals. The letters are destined to be widely read, and must awaken respect for the indust y, honesty, and attainments of the author.

The volumes are decidedly interesting, often spicy. The record of suck a man's readings, experience, opinions, and ife_traced, too, by his own hand in a familiar manner to a confiding friend, and covering forty consecutive years—could not be otherwise. Few men would appear to so good advanage, we apprehend, if placed before the public in similar incumstances. There are no entry, or higher the public in similar between the confidence of the STATE OF BY-SAME AUTHOR, IN SAME TO SEE

We have not seen a book that we can more cordially recommend to the children of sorrow than this. It seems to bring all the consolatory teachings of 60d's Word to a point; and no matter which may be the form of calamity under which his wounded spirit. It is a work for the head as well as for the heart; a work to be studied and digested, and not merely read; and they who are most instructed by it will be most comforted also. Dr. Alexander has rendered much good service to the cause of truth and plety; but we doubt whether he has ever done any thing which will be course for him the the has ever done any thing which will procure for him the gratitude of so many hearts as the sending forth of this volume.—Puritan and Recorder, Boston.

COOKERY, AND ALL OTHER BRANCHES OF DOMESTIC ECONOMY,

Language Saide OF the Ore

Containing the first Scientific and Reliable Rules ever made public for putting up all kinds of Hermetically-scaled Fruits, with or without sugar, in the cans or common bottles; also, Rules for Preserving Fruits in American and French styles; with titled Receipts for making Domestic Wines, Catsups, Syrups, Cordials, &c.; and Practical Directions for the Cultivation of Vegetables, Fruits, and Flowers; Destruction of Insects, &c.; &c. BY MRS. E. F. HASKELL.

It is not too much to say that every home in which this book is found will be much the happier for it; every meal in that home better, chosen and better prepared; every house-hould duty lighter and better attended to; and that inexperience, or even a general want of skill, need never be a cause of failure. The most minute directions are given upon every subject. subject.
Mrs. Haskell herself is an experienced housekeeper, and every rule that she lays down has been over and, over again tested by herself, and proved to be good. She does does not, therefore, give any more theories. Rewbooks, even upon the one branch of cookery, possess this advantage—as they are mostly mere collections of recipes gathered in every direction, and strung together without any positive knowledge of their correctiess or excellence.

Analysis of the Contents:

Part I: contains eight chapters including advice to young housekeepers upon selecting and furnishing a house; eystem and management, of servants; economy of cheerfulness economy of cooking well, and economy in small matters washing, ce, entertainments of company, and carving.

In the general instructions to the family, the young husband is not forgotten, and his part in assisting the young wife to form herself into a finished housekeeper, is clearly Analysis of the Contents: lenned.

PART II. treats of nutrition, elements of food, and man keting.
Part III.—Of general cookery—soups, fish, meats, poultry, vegetables; how to cook, store for Winter, and hermetically seal them; puddings and dinner deserts, pastry and pies, yeast, bread, and bissuit. This last chapter is one of pies, yeast, bread and biscuit. This last chapter is one of great importance; the rules are as perfect as is possible, and will insure good bread of all kinds, cakes, confectionary, tea, and coffee. The chapter on Coffee was prepared with great care from experience, and if followed, will insure to the family coffee that is perfect.

PART IV. contains five chapters upon breakfast dishes; hashes, eggs—to select, to preserve for the family and market, cook, &c.; economy in dishes; showing how to use the odds and ends; cold dinners and luncless.

PART V. contains six chapters, giving directions for gathering and preserving apples for market and the family; also, to hermetically seal, preserve with sugar, make cider, dry, and cook them. To select and preserve, dry, cook, and hermetically seal, seal, preserve with sugar, make cider, dry, and cook them. To select and preserve, dry, cook, and hermetically seal peaches, pears, plums, cherries, small and West India fruits. India fruits.

This part contains the First Scientific Directions made public in this Country, for Hermatically Scaling Fruits without Botton; Mrs. Haskell has put up fruits in this manner for the past eight years, with good success, and has reduced this art to scientific rules; so that any person can with ease preserve their own fruits.

Barr VI. contains four chapters upon making domest wines, beers, fruit, brandles and vinegars, cordials and experience of the contains and experienc whice, neers, irent, branches and vinegars, cortains and extracts.

PART VII. contains four chapters of directions for making cateings, saided, flavored vinegars, pickles, and mangoes.

PART VIII.—Five chapters, on gardening; kitchen, fruit, and flower garden, hot beds and insects.

PART IX.—Two chapters.—Curing meats, milk; cheese, and putter.

PART X.—Four chapters on the sick room—what it should

STEUBENVILLE FEMALE SEMI-NABY:
The Sixty-fourth Session of this Institution will open on the FIRST MONDAY OF NOVEMBER NEXT. Rev. C. C. BEATTY, D.D., Superintendent Prof. A. M. REID, A.M., Principal.

TUTE.

Parents in search of a school for their daughters, where health, science, morals, and religious training are combined, will find it in the above Institute; and as a parent instirully anxious about the welfare of my children, I think I know what are jour wishes in regard to a school for your daughters; and as the above named Institute is just such a one, I simply request you to come and examine for yourself, for I am assured that one half day spent in the examination will be of more value than all my advertisements. I therefore earnestly court it, as until such a visit I can only expect to be classed among those schools represented by the hundred in advertisements; but after such investigation, I know I shall be rated as among the first in the land. The Institute beloens for the Fall Session, NOVEMBER 1st, 1860.

TUSCARORA FEMALE INSTITUTE is located at Actionica, Juniata County, Pu. The cars of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad stop at the Mifflin Station, whence access is easy, and should the Principal be notified a few days beforehand, arrangements will be made to meet all visitors.
