"I Will Give You Rest."
In life's fall, sunny morning,
I hope to see thee and be dead,
The clouds of grief and sorrow
Father dear overhead—
The heart grows faint and weary,
Sick of sin and sore distressed,
How cheering is the promise,
Come, and I will give you rest.
Hands we love and fondly cherish,
Ah, how soon they pass away,
That whispered words of kindness,
Cooler in the grave to-day;
O'er hands are gently folded;
O'er sweet they found the promise,
Come, and I will give you rest.
O Saviour, we are weary,
Give us the weight of sorrow,
Gladly rest our heads with thee;
And when our hearts throbs are over,
In the mansions of the blest,
We there have a home forever,
Take us into perfect rest.

terms not unfriendly, and admits in plain words that the North has the Constitution on her side in this contest.
The telegrams of to-day give the rumor that the French Emperor will speedily recognize the Southern Confederacy, that course may come to France. If this be true, the consequences must be serious, indeed. The Commercial crisis in France is urged, and may precipitate what may have been with the Emperor a foregone conclusion and resolve.
THE AFFAIRS OF MEXICO have been occupying a considerable amount of public attention, not only from the heavy commercial and industrial robbery of treasure trains in that distracted country, but because of the terrible atrocities committed. A correspondent of the Scotsman gives some horrible details of the state of things in and around Mexico itself. He describes the slaughter of Frenchmen and Englishmen, including General Buge, (a tall, powerful and handsome Irishman,) Drs. Gibson and Duval, and others; including, also, General Valle, his French aide-de-camp, and several of his officers. Other cruel assassinations have taken place, including an infant dashed to death against a wall, and a young Englishman, (whose father had been provisionally assassinated), and a Frenchman shot to death in the diligence. And the question arises, Will there be no interference? Yes, Spain says she is ready, and Cuba will be her starting point. But who trusts in the distracted Mexico in such matters. France, England, and the United States, make a common demonstration—and to the principle of such a thing, it is affirmed, President Lincoln gives a cordial adherence—then there might be hope for Mexico's future. For my part, I heartily regret that the United States—besides the province of California, &c.—was not long ago an open Bible to the living Gospel, and security for property and life, would have been secured.

THE WEEK REGISTER for 1860 has been published, and as the whole year was an awfully stormy one, the havoc as sea was fearful in its extent. The total wrecks were 1,873; 146 more as casualties than in the next six years. The total loss of life was 826, whilst 2,152 persons were saved by life-boats, shore-boats, the rocket and mortar apparatus, and other means. The following summary is painfully suggestive:
The register furnishes, as usual, some curious facts relating to the total number of vessels wrecked in the past six years. Of the 2,795 vessels wrecked on our coasts during the last two years, 1,604, or more than half, were in the same time as in the year 1859. The total number of vessels wrecked last year, 554 were commanded by masters who were not required to have certificates of competency.
Of these our old friends the schooners hold, as usual, the pre-eminence for wrecking, 912 of them having during the same period gone to the bottom. Next to the schooners come the brig, with a total of 10,269 vessels in a similar fate. We find that of the 1,870 vessels wrecked last year, 554 were commanded by masters who were not required to have certificates of competency.
The direction of the wind which proved most destructive to vessels wrecked on our coasts last year is also given. One hundred and eighty vessels were wrecked during the prevalence of the wind from S.W., 128 from W.N.W., and 104 from N.W. Eight vessels were wrecked during fresh breezes, and 168 in a whole gale, 101 in a storm, and 139 in a hurricane.
We find that 21 wrecks took place from not having the tea in compliance; 35 from general negligence and want of caution; 39 from defects in the vessels; and 5 from defects in the crews.

During the past nine years the total number of all casualties on the coasts and in the seas of the British Isles are thus given:—1852 there were 1,116; in 1853, 892; in 1854, 937; in 1855, 1,141; in 1856, 1,183; in 1857, 1,143; in 1858, 1,170; in 1859, 1,416; and in 1860, 1,873—making a total of 10,269 vessels in a similar fate. that very year, and at the same parallel periods of Summer and Autumn, wet weather prevailed over the South, East, and West of England, and torrents of rain fell in middle and Southern Europe. Thus it was providentially—that the river which overflowed its banks, and covered the plains along which Austrian troops were advancing to attack Piedmont; thus time was given for the French troops to come to her help, and Solferino and Magenta, with the loss of Lombardy and the re-occupation of liberty in three-fourths of Italy, were the result of them, in two years, 1859 and 1861, in each of which the weather is precisely a contrast—in other words, Europe reverses itself. The regions pluvial and showery in 1859, have this year been parched and dry. We gather from this, I presume, that we cannot predicate a fine Autumn, or, at the very least, the present season is, or has been; or shall I say, that while we are to expect changes, there may be, after all, laws by which the seasons are regulated, and that by an induction of facts extending over many years, definite conclusions as to what these laws are, as bearing on a cycle of years, may possibly be arrived at, and we may possibly be able to predict, or shall I say, that while we are to expect changes, there may be, after all, laws by which the seasons are regulated, and that by an induction of facts extending over many years, definite conclusions as to what these laws are, as bearing on a cycle of years, may possibly be arrived at, and we may possibly be able to predict, or shall I say, that while we are to expect changes, there may be, after all, laws by which the seasons are regulated, and that by an induction of facts extending over many years, definite conclusions as to what these laws are, as bearing on a cycle of years, may possibly be arrived at, and we may possibly be able to predict.

Abstract of the Minutes of the Synod of Wheeling, During its late Sessions at Wheeling, Va.
Synod met on Friday, October 18th, at 4 P. M., in the Second Presbyterian church, and was constituted with prayer by the last Moderator, Rev. A. S. McManis, D.D.
After the completion of the roll, Rev. T. R. Crawford was chosen Moderator, Rev. Wm. Mason, Permanent Clerk, and Rev. J. Sloan, D.D., Temporary Clerk.
A very large attendance was had, seventy ministers and over sixty elders being present. A number also were invited to sit as Corresponding Members.
Religious services of a varied and interesting nature were held. Dr. McManis preached the opening sermon on Friday night, on "Rom. XIII.—Showing the necessity of a good government, and the duties of the true patriot." On Saturday evening Rev. O. M. Todd preached on the subject assigned to him by the last Synod, viz:—"The relation of pastors and the children of their flocks." On Sabbath the pulpit in the city and vicinity were generally filled by ministers of Synod, and in the afternoon the ordinance of the Lord's Supper was administered, under the control of Rev. Messrs. Stratton, Crawford, and Sloan.
On Monday morning an interesting session was held by Rev. H. C. Cox, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, wherein the whole subject of the Church's duties to the several sections of beneficence was ably presented. In the afternoon an hour was spent in devotional exercises, with the reading of the Narrative, and at night Prof. S. J. Wilson, D.D., preached to an immense assembly, on the Christian's ground of confidence, taking as his text the words of Paul, "It is he that condemneth; it is Christ that died."

On Tuesday afternoon the Synod, by invitation, visited, in a body, Camp Carlisle, and a review of the troops under command of Col. Ansaenell, religious services were held—singing, prayer, and an address by Dr. Brownlow. It was an interesting occasion. Rev. W. M. Grimes preached at night in the First Presbyterian church. In this connection it is proper to note that the Synod was spent in devotional exercises every morning.
The following are some of the resolutions passed, and items of business transacted.
After the address of Mr. Cox, the following resolution was passed:
Resolved, That Synod has heard with interest the address of Rev. H. C. Cox, Secretary of the Board of Church Extension, and in recognition of his services, and in appreciation of the scheme of benevolence which he represents, to the enlarged Christian liberality of our churches.
The following paper was presented and adopted, on the subject of SYMBIOTIC BENEVOLENCE.
Resolved, That we earnestly request all our churches, which have not other fixed times for the purpose, to adopt the schedule of contributions, as set forth in the Minutes of the Synod of 1859, and to record the same on page 349 of the Minutes for 1861.
Resolved, That Synod will appoint a minister in each Presbytery, whose duty it shall be to visit all the churches, to secure from each church in that Presbytery, a contribution annually for each of the six objects embraced in the schedule of benevolence.
In accordance with the above, the following ministers were appointed:—Rev. B. V. Dolex, from the Presbytery of Washington; Rev. Alexander Swaney, from the Presbytery of Steubenville; Rev. O. M. Todd, from the Presbytery of New Lisbon; and Rev. W. R. Vincent, from the Presbytery of St. Clairsville.

Resolved, That we have unabated confidence in the Western Theological Seminary, and desire that they may be fully sustained in their efforts to promote the cause of the Gospel with punctuality and interest, and the probabilities of their conversion and salvation enhanced.
Resolved, That at the next Synod the several churches under the care of the Western Theological Seminary, be invited to contribute to the endowment of the Seminary, and that, in this regard, the contributions of their respective churches.
Resolved, That at the next Synod the several churches under the care of the Western Theological Seminary, be invited to contribute to the endowment of the Seminary, and that, in this regard, the contributions of their respective churches.
