PITTSBURGH, SEPTEMBER 20, 1862

The War.

The skies have brightened much during the last week. The rebels, pressed in their - rear by Gen. M'Clellan, and seeing forces gathering rapidly before them, under the energetic action of Governor Curtin, turned aside, and declined to pollute, except by a few scouts, freedom's soil, in Pennsylvania. From Frederick they executed a flank movement, by way of Boonsboro', toward Hagerstown and Williamsport. But they were overtaken and sadly beaten. General M'Clellan's dispatches on the occasion, are as follows:

The action continued till after dark, and terminated in leaving us in possession of might so move, or so develop power, as to the entire crest.

Surrender of our Forces at Harper's Ferry-Another Desperate Battle.

BALTIMORE, September 16.—The American's pecial, dated Frederick, Sept. 16, says: We regret to have to announce the surrender of Harper's Ferry, with all the forces and stores there, to the enemy, at 9 o'clock this morning. The enlisted men and some officers have been paroled and arrived here. From them I gather he following particulars: The rebels commenced the attack at Friday noon on our forces on Maryland Heights. Skir mishing continued throughout the day, and was renewed on Saturday. The enemy was driven back with considerable loss. They came up sev-eral times and were repulsed, when it was disovered that they were approaching in overvholming force. An order was given to spike the guns and throw them down the mountain. The whole force from the Heights then retired in safety, the guns from Camp Hill shelling the enemy when they attempted to pursue our re-on Sunday morning a party of our men again scended the Heights and brought away the field pieces, which they had left there unspiked On Sunday at noon the rebels appeared in great force on Loudon Heights. Col. Miles shelled them from point to point. Some of their guns were dislodged, but they still managed to keep up a brisk fire from some of their batteries, which were run back out of sight and loaded. Can nonading was kept up all day Sunday, without doing much damage; the firing ceased at dusk, and was resumed again on Monday morning at daylight, and kept up till 9 o'clock, when Col. Miles ordered a white flag to be raised.

There was considerable fog and smoke, and the enemy did not see the flag, or would not see it, and kept up a heavy fire for three-quarters of n hour. About ten minutes after the flag was up, a shell struck Colonel Miles, shattering his right leg. It was amputated before the prisoners were paroled.

There were about 2,300 cavalry in the com mand, all of whom but about forty escaped about eight o'clock on Monday night, and cut their vay through to Greencastle with but little loss The balance of the troops, numbering from 6,000 to 8,000, with Gen. Intelligence from the front this morning is of the most cheering character, notwithstanding the bad news from Harper's Ferry. M'Clellan was pushing them with a vigor most destructive. He pursued them on Monday morning with his reserves and a large body of troops. The enemy took the road toward the river at Harper's Ferry and at Shepherdstown, and he was pur suing them and shelling their retreat with great

On the Trent affair, Lord Palmerston, at a meeting at Melbourne, said: "We had lately a question with the United States of America, which threatened in its outset, to bring on events which we should have deeply deplored; but that question was settled in manner consistent with the honor, the principles, and the dignity of both parties; because, while on the one hand the American Government granted that satisfaction which was demanded, on the other hand they could not have refused the satisfaction without departing from those principles of international law which they themselves had always maintained, and considered essential to their own interests as a nation. [Cheers.] There was, therefore, no triumph to either side—the only triumph was the triumph of truth and of justice, which each party was equally interested in maintaining." Lord Brougham, in a speech at Wigton, Cumberland, referred as follows to the question of

"I have heard people of late unwisely recommend that that civil war should be put a stop to by our taking a part, so far as to recognize one of the contending parties. I think that in recognizing the South in that odious and horrible quarrel would only make the thing worse and continue it, instead of putting a stop to it. [Hear, hear.] Absolute neutrality, non-intervention, in every sense of the word, is not only the only security for our own comfort and peace, but it is the best possible contribution that we can make to puting a stop to that odious quarrel."

Those who emigrate—and they can emigrate at a mere trifle each—benefit themselves, and will, immediately after arrival, be in a condition to relieve the friends and relations they have left behind them. [ANNOUNCEMENTS, GRATIS; ADDITIONAL REMARKS, FIVE DIED-In Beaver County, Pa., August HENRY REED, Esq., (father of Rev. Alex. Reed,) in the 69th year of his age.

Mr. Reed had been a member of the church about half a century, and an elder in the Pres byterian church in Mt. Carmel, Pa., about forty years. For the prosperity of this church he labored long, faithfully and prayerfully, his example constantly enforcing the interest he professed. But few men possessed such qualifications for a leader-modest, retiring, kind, persuasive, but full of energy; saying in his own unassuming way, let us try and do this, and then he would put his own shoulder quietly but powerfully to the wheel, and the enterprise would begin to move so easily that others would begin to wonder that they had not tried it long before and after it was done he let all share the gla of the work. There are but few such they Some men are willing to work and giving, and are noisy, and hoastful, and o but it was not

Though far advanced in life, he rose early and travelled five miles to be at Sabbath School; in which he felt a deep interest. and Bible Class teacher.

Although from the injuries he received in the accident that terminated in his death, he was unable to talk of his hopes beyond the grave, yet mind, his safety and peace beyond the grave. In life he had the witness of the Spirit that he was a child of God. And, though he felt if he was saved it would be a miracle of grace, it was the grace that God gives only to the regenerated that enabled him to feel so. We mourn his loss at a time when we can least bear it; but it is the Lord's will, and our duty is to say, "It is the Lord; let him do what seemeth right in his own sight."

"The earth may ring from shore to shore With echoes of a glorious name, But he whose loss our tears deplore Has left behind him more than fame.

"For when the death-frost came to lie Upon his warm and mighty heart, And quenched his bold and friendly eye, His spirit did not all depart.

"His love of truth too warm, too strong For hope or fear to chain or chill, His hate of tyranny and wrong, Burn in the breasts he kindled still."

DIED-In Ogle Co., Ill., September 9th, 1862, Mr. JOHN BULL, in the 71st year of his age. Mr. Bull was a native of Perry County, Pa., where he spent the greater part of his life. In 1851 he moved with his family to the West, and settled in Ogle County, Illinois. In early life he nade a public profession of religion, and joined in communion with the Presbyterian church of the Middle Ridge, in the Presbytery of Carlisle. He was a retiring, but an intelligent and steadfast believer in the Divine Redeemer. He was a firm adherent to the doctrines and order of the Presbyterian Church, resulting from clear conviction and cordial choice, and he was always ready with his worldly means to sustain her institutions at home, and extend them in the world. In his new home in Illinois, by his efforts and influence he succeeded in gathering around him his relations and other friends of the same religious persuasion, who have lately been organized into the flourishing little church of Middle Creek, by the Presbytery of Rock River. Mr. Bull's religion was not a mere form, but a substantial reality, leading him to maintain an upright walk and conversation through life, and affording him support and consolation when called to pass through the valley and shadow of death. In his last illness, when told that his recovery was doubtful, he manifested a cheerful resignation to the will of God, and expressed the most pleasing assurance that all would be wellwith him beyond the grave. He said his entire confidence was in the Rock of Ages—that he was a lost sinner, but redeemed and saved by sov reign grace. Thus in a good old age, full of peace and hope, he was gathered home, "like a shock of corn in his season." "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

THE ORIGINAL HOWE

SEWING MACHINES.

Established 1845. Perfected 1862. Mr. HOWE invites attention to the important improvements which he has recently made in his Sewing Machines, which enables them to do a larger range of work with less machinery, less noise, less trouble, and more perfectly than any Machine now before the public. The missing of stitches and breaking of needles, so common and annoying in other Machines, is entirely done away with in the Improved Howe. No trouble in making any garment worn by male or female, however delicate or heavy, with silk, cotton, or linen threads on the same Machine. We use a straight needle, and the stitch is elastic and alike on both sides. For Shirt Makers, Dress Makers, Tailors, Shoe Binders, Gaiter Fitters, as well as for every variety of Family Sewing, the Improved Howe Machine now stands far in advance of the Machines of the day, and they will be sold at a much less price than any other Machine capable of doing the same rang of work in as good a manner. No person should think of purchasing a Sewing Machine without first seeing this—the latest and greatest triumph of the original inventor of the Sewing Machine.
