affairs. Our "slow" generals are maving. | fenceless." General MCCLELLAN took the veteran troops who had been beaten, discouraged, and almost demoralized under another commander, and with these and some raw recruits, assailed Gen. Lee in Maryland, beat him in two hard battles, and drove him over the Potomac. Gens. GRANT and ROSECRANS, who were seriously reproached for inactivity, have won two famous battles one at Iuka, and the other at Corinth. Gen. BUELL, whose name had become almost a synonym for inaction, has accom plished an immense journey from Huntsville to Louisville, reorganized his army, driven back the rebels, overtaken them at Perryville and beaten them in a hard fought battle. All these victories and movements we regard as but a new beginning. They are of far more promise than were our successes last Spring. They are won from vastly increased armies of the enemy. They are the results of experience. They are won on the field, without gunboat aid. They are gained by armies still increasing, in numbers. They will be followed up by forces adequate to obtain new victories.

Politics interfere sadly with the energetic carrying on of the war. We may have a little relief on this score after November 4th, when the Congressional elections will have been completed. But the respite will be short. Another two years is to bring on a Presidential election, and already the aspirants for appointments and contracts are at work, to bring forward some available man and secure him as their patroa. A free country must ever suffer in this way Such evils are part of the price of treedom ; but freedom is well worth even such a price.

The rebel raid into Pennsylvania mortifies us. But it did not much injury. It tailed in its main object, which was to take Frederick in the rear and destroy our large medical and military stores. And it may do us some good. It has awaked still more ardor; and it teaches us that in a divided country, with such an enemy on our borders, we could have no true peace. The shop and five fine locomotives. war must be waged to a full and complete victory.

"Russia," he says, "entertains a lively sym-pathy for the United States of America, based on mutual friendship and common interests. Their prosperity she deems necessary to the general equilibrium. The maintenance of the Union is the condition of that power and happiness which she desires for the American Nation. We are in a position to affirm that the friendly and onciliatory views of the Imperial Cabinet have not undergone the slightest change. On the contrary, the events which have taken place, the sad experience of war, of its calamities, its burden its exhausting results, have tended rather to confirm than to weaken their force."

PRINCIPAL. This School has been in successful operation under the same Superintendence for more than thirty years. It is well and favorably known. It was the design of its founders to establish an Institution on Christian principles, whose aim would be to give not only thorough culture to the intellect, but the religion of Christ to the heart. In this aim, God has greatly blessed them. During its entire history the favor of the Holy Spirit has rested upon it. But it means that this is the established order, and is not to be deviated from, except the danger is imminent and the necessity obvious. We have hence been pleased to see the President, while energetic in meeting the country's wants, scrupulously conscientious in bounding his actions by the Constitution and the laws.

We are also pleased to see, with, doubtless, the entire approbation of the President, the following general order from the head of our largest army :

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF POTOMAC,) Camp near Sharpsburg, Md., October 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDER. No. 163: The atten tion of the officers and soldiers of the Army of the Potomac is called to General Order. No. 138. War Department, September 24 1862, publishing to the army the President's Proclamation of September 22d. A proclamation of such grave moment to the nation, officially communicated to the army, affords to the General Commanding an opportunity of defining specifically to the officers and soldiers under his command the relation borne by all persons in the military service of the United States to ward the civil authorities of the Government.

The Constitution confides to the civil authorities, legislative, judicial and executive, the power and duty of making, expounding and executing the federal laws Armed forces are raised and supported simply to sustain the civil authorities, and are to be held in strict subordination thereto in all respects. This fundamental rule of our political system is essential to the security of our republican institutions, and should be thoroughly understood and observed by every soldier. The principles strong reconnoisance directed. upon which, and the objects for which, armies shall be employed in suppressing rebellion must be determined and declared by the civil autnorities, and the Chief Executive, who is charged with the administration of national affairs, is the proper and only source through which the views and orders of the Government can be made known and attack the enemy's left, but it was impossito the armies of the nation. The remedy for political errors, if any are committed, mong the number of killed. is to be found in the action of the people at the polls.

In thus calling the attention of the army to the true relation between the soldier and the Government, the General Commanding merely adverts to an evil against which it has been thought advisable during our whole history to guard the armies of the republic, and in so doing he will not be considered by any right-minded person known as casting any reflection on that loyalty and good conduct which has been so fully illustrated upon so many battle-fields.

In carrying out all measures of public and 14 Colonels and Lieutenant-Colonels. The number of killed and wounded is admitted by policy, this army will, of course, be guided by the same rules of mercy and Christianity that have everywhere controlled its conduct toward the defenceless. By command

 Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects; I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.
 I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. O. M. Jackaou, of this city, because i was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indetted to my friend Robert Shoemker, Esg, for the renoval of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encourage-ment to try them, when sufficting from great and long con-tinued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was iollowed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor whigh I had not fait for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them. J. NEWTON BROWN.
