Willie, the Drummer-Boy. "He was a brave little soul," said the sergeant of the 19th, as he hastily dashed a few tears away. "His father was our captain, and Willie never flinched in the thickest of the battle."

always calls you. I hope you will come back home, for her sake. "My dear boy, keep up a good heart. I hope before Summer comes again this dreadful war will be over. Then you can plant the garden and tend to your little apple-trees, that seem to miss Willie."

mond, and are not likely to meet the enemy in force sufficient to fight a battle, until we have reached fifteen to eighteen miles, which bring us, practically, within ten miles of Richmond. Our largest line of land transportation would be from this point twenty-five miles, but with the aid of the gunboats, we can supply the army by water during its advance, certainly, to within twelve miles of Richmond.

between Washington and Richmond, and covers Washington from any attack by the enemy. The political effect of the withdrawal may at first be unfavorable, but I think the public are beginning to understand its necessity, and that they will have more confidence in a united army than in its separate fragments; but you will reply, "Why not reinforce me here, so that I can strike Richmond from my present position?" To do this you said at an interview that you required fifty thousand additional troops. I told you that it was impossible to give you so many.

Correspondence Between Generals Halleck and McClellan. (Official copy.) BERKLEY, Va., August 4th, 12 M. To Major-General Halleck, Commander-in-Chief.

Your telegram of last evening is received. I must confess that it has caused me the greatest pain I ever experienced, for I am convinced that the order to withdraw this army to Aquia Creek will prove disastrous in the extreme to our cause. I fear it will be a fatal blow. Several days are necessary to complete the preparations for so important a movement as this, and while they are in progress, I beg that careful consideration may be given my statement. This army is now in excellent condition; we hold a debouché on both banks of the James River, so that we are free to act in any direction, and with the assistance of the gunboats, I consider our communications as now secure.

Washington, August 6, 1862. To Major-General McClellan, Commander-in-Chief, Berkeley, Va.

General:—Your telegram of yesterday received this morning, and I immediately telegraphed a brief reply, promising to give you a full and complete answer. I am, however, so busy that I cannot do so at present. I am, however, so busy that I cannot do so at present. I am, however, so busy that I cannot do so at present.
