President in a vigorous prosecution of the war; he adhered to that resolve, and saw nothing in the proclamation of the President, or in the acts passed by the last Congress, to alter that determination. He approved of the act giving the President full control of the purse and the sword, and cited a precedent in the act passed in 1839, on the occasion of the occupation of Maine by the British, when similar power was conferred, with full approval of the Democracy and of the nation at large. There was no outcry then against " extraordinary powers," nor should there be now, except by those who wanted to see the rebellion prosper, and the Federal Government weakened. In regard to the Proclamation he did not question its constitu-tionality, but doubted its utility. "Iam," said Mr. Van Buren, "for a vigorous prosecution of the war. I am for a prose-cution of the war until this rebellion is wholly overthrown. I am for destroying Chillicothe. this usurped government that has been set over several States of this Union, known Chickasaw, ... as the Confederate Government; and until that is done, I hold all propositions for peace to be entirely preposterous and ab-Essex, (below). surd." [Applause, and cries of good.] Carond "Now, being for the war, I am necessarily with everybody that is for the war; and being opposed to peace, I am necessarily opposed to everybody that is for a peace." He reviewed the course of the leaders of the rebellion, and pronounced their conduct to be without the shadow of excuse. Every fair-minded man in the United States would bear in mind that, up to the moment of their withdrawal from the Union. not a hair of their heads had been injured; no right of any Southern man had been invaded. History would record that the world never heard of a rebellion against governmental authority before this, where the people who rebelled could not lay their finger upon a thing which showed that either their property, their liberty, or their laws had been in the slighest particular impaired. James T. Brady and Charles P. Daly, prominent Democrats, spoke in a similar strain. To find leading men of the two great parties thus cooperate is a hopeful sign.

The meeting declared itself a Union League.

Two of the resolutions were as follows: Resolved, That the conduct of the disaffected persons, claiming to be citizens of the United States, yet zealous in their attempts to embarrass and impede the action of the legally constituted authorities, and in the utterance of treasonable sentiments, deserves, and should receive the condemnation of every loyal citizen.

Resolved, That this meeting, under solemn convictions of duty, and in a firm reliance on the justice of that Providence which guides and guards governments and peoples, does hereby resolve itself into a Loyal League of Union Citizens, pledged agricultural inportance. to an unconstitutional support of the Government in all its constitutional efforts to suppress the rebellian, and an uncompromising opposition to treason in whatever form it appears.

Whom Shall we Believe. The recklessness of political writers from the army, and of "special" reporters from The steamers at Cincinnati were seized in the Washington, in regard to truth and falsehood, is a painful evil, and perhaps incurable. For ourselves, we put no confidence in any of them. Just take an instance of their character.

Ship building on the Western waters has long flourished, but the capacity of our works has proved to be even beyond anticipation. The yard of Mr. Eads, at St. Louis, is one of the largest and most complete in all appliances, that is in the United States.

The present strength of the Mississippi fleet, under Admiral Porter, may be set down as follows :

Soon after the fearful rebellion broke out, in which this nation is engaged, this young patriot, with the dew of youth still resting upon his brow, as well as his father, (exempt from draft,) heard their country's call in the hour of need, and buckled on their armon and hastened to its rescue. Although father and son were in the same service, yet they belonged to different regiments ; and Louis was called to die, among strangers, a speciality, and, taking into account Variety, Quantity, and Quality, our stock of Vines and Plants, of with neither kind father nor loving mother, nor affectionate brother or sister, to wipe away the cold sweat in the hour of death, or speak a word of comfort to him when about to exchange worlds.

Gazette, of February sta, 1005: We have now practising in our city one of the most skilful and accomplished Physicians and Surgeons in the country—Johannos A. Jones, M.D., of New-York City, whose fame is spreading rapidly through the community in conse-quence of the remarkable cures which he has already effect-ed. Dr. Jones will not remain long in any community with-out having living witnesses to testify to his skill. He is a thoroughly educated Physician—his Diplomas are suspended in his office. The afflicted are received in a gentlemaily man-er--not charged for examination—if their disease is IN-CURABLE, THE DOCTOR TELLS THEM SO.

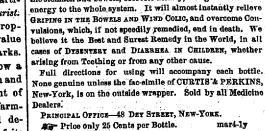

Extract from the Pittsburgh Daily Dispatch, of February 13th, 1863 :

18th, 1863: Upon invitation we visited Dr. Jones' office at the St. Charles Hotel, on Wednesday, to see an operation for blind-ness upon an elderly lady. She had been blind a number of years with cataract. The operation requires the skill of a master in his profession. Dr. Jones was equal to the task —the lady saw distinctly for the first time for years, after the operation was done. The same day the Doctor operated on a young lady and a young man with crocked eyes, ren-dering their eyes patural in appearance and sight imme-diately. Dr. Jones has cured many cases of a difficult na-ture, of which we have evidence. He holds Diglomas, from four of the best Medical Schools in America and Europe. He has the most complete set of Surgical Instruments we have ever seen. have ever seen.

Editorial extract from the Pittsburgh Beening Chronicle, February 10th, 1863 :

DR. JONES.

We take pleasure in directing public attention to this gen-tleman. The Doctor, though but a few days in the city, has accomplished a number of important cures. Aged men have called on him who were deaf for many years, yet under his skilful treatment, they have entirely recovered their hearing, called on him who were dest for many years, for thear installed a skilled itreatment, they have entirely recovered their hearing, The Doctor is a thoroughly educated Surgeon and Physician. and that there may be no mistake, his Diplomas from in Hye and Ear College, Hospital, Homeopathic, and an Allapable Motiosi.
