The War. Our war tidings this week, are joyous A kind Providence favors our arms, and permits us to cherish the hope that soon we may be allowed to record the victory destined to be the immediate precursor of

We had supposed that the success at Gettysburg, together with the flood in the Potomac, insured the crushing of the rebel army of invasion, and with it the destruction of the enemy's main power. But it was not quite so. The body of the army has escaped. Gen. Lee got his beaten and diminished, but still organized and powerful forces, across the Potomac, on Monday the 13th. He crossed at Falling Waters and Williamsport, Md., partly on bridges hastily constructed, and partly by fording the river, which had then fallen to a depth of about three and a half feet. He had managed with great skill to concentrate his columns and to keep his rear well posted. and with a show of strength which indicated an assault upon our pursuing army. rather than a retreat. Gen. Meade, aware of Lee's skill and power, pressed firmly but cautiously. On Tuesday he had every arrangement made for battle, and his orders issued to the corps commanders to engage the foe early. They advanced, but no foe of the above cheap and excellent Dictionary of was there.

The escape of Gen. Lee is deeply regretted. But still, we should not murmur. We should rather rejoice that he was beaten and made to fly. How happy are we that a powerful, proud, and insulting foe, was so soon checked in his progress, and humbled, and expelled. He lost more than a third of his splendid army; and the residue is dispirited. We thank Gen. Meade. We thank his fellow-officers. We thank the army of the Potomac. We thank the President, and Governor Curtin. And we especially and heartily thank the Ruler of all.

The escape of Gen. Lee into Virginia we do not regard as securing his safety. He can be followed there, and rebellious Virthe morning of the 11th an attempt was made to ginia be made still the seat of war. THE NEW ATTACK on the defences of Charleston, seems to be both scientific and Grigsby. vigorous. It commenced on the evening of the 6th, when Gen. Gilmore sent a small detachment of troops and took possession of the South end of Morris Island. These were followed by others, the next day, and the whole Island was in their possession on the 8th, except Fort Wagner (Cummings' point). This was vigorously assailed, but the assault was repelled. Up to the 14th it was still held by the enemy. The possession of this fort would enable Gen. Gilmore to take an important part in the assault on Fort Sumpter. The Charlestonia ans are exceedingly alarmed, as we see by their papers. They call for men. They say that Gilmore must be driven from the Island, or he will certainly capture Fort Wagner, then Sumpter, and then the iron clads will get to the inner harbor, and Charleston must fall. Their grief would be our joy. Secession began in South Carolina. The war was commenced at quarters: Charleston. Charleston deserves to feel Morgan's raid into Indiana and Ohio, has come to grief. It was a bold movement, but more reckless than brave. Seven thousand well armed and desperate men, can do much when they invade a peacoful country; but in States so densely populated as are Ohio and Indiana, and by people as energetic as the men of those States are, the invaders should have made sure of a means of retreat. A repulse they must certainly meet. Most of the raiders are either killed or captured. They did great injury, but it was all a loss to themselves and their cause.

Immense quantities of salt, sugar and molasses were also found, together with sixty thousand pounds of bacon. The prisoners, numbering twenty-seven thousand, were paroled, but to remain in Vicksburg until exchanged. Col. Hoffman, Commissary-General of Prisoners, estimates the number of rebel prisoners now in our hands at sixty-five thousand. This includes the captures at Vicksburg and Gettysburg. The rebels held between twelve and fifteen thousand of our men unexchanged.

The following estimates have been made by competent judges of Lee's losses since crossing the Potomac: Killed, 5,000; wounded prisoners, 9,000, and 9,500 uninjured prisoners. It is known that 6,000 wounded has since been carried quite correct: On hand at Memphis, 4,000; at Fort Delaware, 5,000; taken by Meade, at Gettysburg, in cavalry fights since, and at Williamsport, 26,000; by Gen. Grant, 31,000; by Gen. Banks, 7,000; by Gen. Rosecrans, 4,000; by Gen. Sherman, 2,000; by General Prentiss, 2,000; making in all a total of 81,000-72,000 of whom were taken on and since the 3d of July. The rumors of an intention to supersede Gen. Meade by Gen. Grant, are entirely unfounded. July 19 .- There is nothing definitely known about Lee's army. He is making his way to Culpepper and Gordonsville with all possible speed. July 20.—Gen. DIED—At the Hospital at Nashville, Tenn. April 13th, 1863, Mr. JAMES ALBERT NEAL son of John and Eliza Jane Neal, of Rural Val ley, Armstrong County, Pa., aged 19 years, 5 months, and 28 days; a member of Co. A, 78th Reg't P. V.

Albert is gone from earth, we fondly trust, to heaven. But he still lives fresh in our memories. He died far from home, and among strangers. Those who loved him fondly, and who watched over him; in the tender years of childhood, were not permitted to be with him in his last moments. Little is known of his dying thoughts, more than that he knew he was going to die.

An intimate soldier companion of the deceased writes: I know he often had serious thoughts Almost every time we were together, we con versed with each other on the subject of religion The last time I saw him, he was more serious than usual." We cherish the thought that the weapons of earthly warfare have been laid aside for the palm of victory and the white robe.

His death casts a gloom over the community, but on none does the stroke fall so heavily as upor kind and loving parents. They fondly looked forward to him as one on whom they should lean, when age and its infirmities should come them. But this prop is knocked away. He was strongly impressed (as his diary shows,) on leaving home, with the belief that he would not be permitted to return. Bidding adieu to his fellow-students in the Academy, he writes: "Farewell, until we probably meet at my country; but I hope it may be done honora-bly." He asked forgiveness if he had injured one or wounded his feelings. Such was any one, or wounded his feelings. Such was us 25 cents.

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through distrust of their ingredients and effects; I yet know of no sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes himself to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to Hoofsand's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for many years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I am indebted to my friend Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouragement to try them, when suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and restoration to a degree of bodily and mental vigor which I had not felt for six months before, and had, almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them.
