The War.

FROM TENNESSEE the reports are so variable that it is difficult to arrive at any atisfactory conclsion as to the state of affairs. The Government keeps all quiet, xcept its daily utterance, that Rosecran safe. This is always good tidings, but it ails to satisfy intelligent and inquiring inds.

GEN. ROSECRANS is still confined in hattanooga. The enemy has opened or e town from Lookout Mountain, 2,000 et high and two miles distant, but he is ery deficient in long range artillery. If a had (lilmore's batteries there, our troops ould soon be obliged either to fly or disdge him. And he is trying hard to obin such guns. The prospects, however, e, that he will labor in vain. His advance is at the Hiawassee. only a lay's march from Rosecrans.

GUERRILLAS still infest Tennessee, in everal places; and even Kentucky yet suffers from these lawless bands. "Central Missouri also is experiencing new calamities. Nothing short of a most rigid miliary rule, can suppress these banditti.

GEN. GILMORE and ADMIRAL DAHL-BREN are still active, preparing for proress. We have regretted to see the statements that these distinguished commanders were quarreling. Gilmore's Greek shells have produced a conflagration in Charleston, and that means reached Dahlgren.

THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC has been having a severe skirmish, near Culpepper Court House. This shows that the enemy still holds part of the country North of the Rapidan. His intentions were not, at last reports, fully indicated. Possibly he might be moving to flank Meade, as Pope was flanked last August; but probably this movement was intended to cover a withdrawal of his army to Gordonsville, and perhaps to Richmond. Reports of the 10th inst., state positively that such a movement was in progress; those of the 12th speak of heavy skirmishing.

Reconlistments in the army are said to be numerous. In this we rejoice. Men whose bravery has been tested in many battles, and whose constitution has become hardened by exercise, are the persons still to meet the foe. They have a nation's gratitude for their past achievements; and if they will still stand between us and danger, we will stand between them and want. While they protect the multitude in peaceful homes, home industry will supply their wants, and the people all will speak their

The Confederacy and Slaverv.

We have no doubt but that the Confedesubjugation. But they do not yet believe either one or the other to be a necessity. The pamphlet of M. Chevalier, to which we lately alluded, spoke of a French alliance as to result in the complete abolition of slavery in the Confederacy.

The Richmond Dispatch we see quoted as speaking thus of this matter:

"It is as well to put a stop to all calculations of this character at once. If Napoleon means to interfere with the question of slavery in any way whatever, or to ask anything else in consideration of recognition, we can have nothing do do with

The Richmond Enquirer says: "This (rebel) Government not only will not, but cannot, give or offer any sort of engagement to France or any other power to make ' concessions in favor of the negroes.' The whole subject of the negroes belongs exclusively to the States, and is outside the power and functions of the Confederate Government. President Davis and his Ministers not only cannot give any guaranty on the matter, but cannot so much as listen to one word about it from any quarter. Now, if the Emperor does not know that the negotiation here suggested is impossible, then it was Mr. Slidell's duty to inform him. It seems as if there were a conspiracy against somewhere—a deliberate design to place ever we might be made to suffer, she must were m us in the position not only of suppliants, receive a damage immensely greater. but of suppliants so beaten, and reduced to such extremity, that we are now willing to tate, if he will only step forward in mercy and save us from those terrible Yankees. Nothing will serve our agents in Europe but to invite foreign Powers to sit in judgment upon our domestic institutions, our social system, and whole way of life, and to pronounce what is to be our walk and conversation for the future. This will not do. We are not fallen so low. The Confederacy owes nothing to the Emperor of the French, just yet."

All this is big and positive. It intlnates, however, that it is possible for them to fall so low" that they might accept of the French terms. And we may note also that these two papers are not the authoritative mouth-piece of the rebels. It will be wise in us to guard ourselves against the movements of wilv foes. We must not needlessly provoke Napoleon; neither must we suffer the war to languish.

The Eastern sky looks much more brilliant than it did a few weeks ago. Louis Napoleon has, doubtless, the same desires which he had, but he may not have the same purposes. Every victory gained by our armies, affects him. Every failure of the rebels to drive back our forces, tends to drive him back. Bragg's defective victory at Chickamauga, calls for a halt in French advances toward the Confederates; and if our armies are as successful as we confidently expect they will be, in massing together and beating the massed forces of Jeff. Davis, we may hope, though we cannot yet confidently predict, that the French Emperor will be very moderate in his pretensions. But, however that may be, our great interests demand an energetic warfare and a speedy suppression of the rebel-

In England our prospects have greatly improved. This appears in several ways. Earl Russell, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, made quite a speech, lately, in Scot- man that he was indebted to God for his land:

He referred at considerable length to the American question, justified England as recognizing the Confederates as belligerents, and answered some of the imputations brought by the people of the Sc. If so, how sadly he has fallen when he can call upon God to damn his soul besumner. He also replied to the complaint of the South in regard to the recognition of the blockade, and asserted that although self-interest demanded that England should break it, she prefers the course of honor, as it would have been infamous to break it.

While thus engaged, another man close by me, threw himself upon his bed, and called upon God to dam his soul to hell, if this was not the first night he had seen a bed for one week. It never occurred to that existence during that time, and that God had at in his power to make the bed upon which he then lay his grave. Probably that man had a pious mother, and had been taught each night before retiring to rest, to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven." cc. If so, how sadly he has fallen when

SATURDAY EVENING.

This evening I preached my first sermon to a large and attentive audience, made up entirely of soldiers, and I trust my labors were not without some good results. After service, four soldiers remained to have some conversation on the subject of religion. Two of these had once been church-members, but since coming into the army, had become wicked and profane. They were resolved, they said, now to retrace their steps and lead a different life, The other two had never thought seriously on the subject of religion, until now. I had a private interview with these persons afterwards, and am glad to report that they all are in earnest, and concerned about the salvation of their

SABBATH IN CAMP DENNISON. The Sabbath was a bright sun-shiny day, nd everything seemed as quiet as in one of our retired villages. After breakfast I called on some sick officers who had sent for me, and conversed and prayed with them. At ten o'clock I preached in one of the barracks, to cavalry soldiers lately recruited. These were not so quiet and thoughtin the chapel, to sing for the benefit of the soldiers. The house was full, and while the children were singing, the faces of many soldiers were bathed in tears. Some were reminded of their own dear children at home, whom they had not seen for many months, and whom they might never see Others were reminded of the Sabbath Schools they had left behind them, and the happy and peaceful hours they spent there. One soldier came up to me when the exercises were over, and pointing to a little light-haired girl, said, "I have a little girl at home about the size of that one. I have n't seen her for fourteen months, and fear I never shall see her again;" and the tears rolled down his coarse, brown face in a stream. Oh, how I did pity these poor soldiers! Sabbath evening I preached again in the chapel. The house seats five hundred, and was now filled to its utmost capacity. I have not preached to so large and attentive an audience for many a year. Deep sol-emnity pervaded the whole audience. I was particularly gratified with the singing. They have a good organist, who, by the way, is a common soldier. Then they have a choir of some ten or fifteen, all male voices, and good singers. At the close of the services this evening, I requested all to

"How tedious and tasteless the hours," &c. Every heart and voice seemed to be united in singing this hymn. There was not a silent tongue or motionless lip in the house. I felt it a great privilege to be there, I do not know that to Chattanooga soon, if at all; but if not, I shall not mourn. I trust my time has not been unprofitably spent here. I like to labor in such a field, and I hope God will bless my labors.

The great complaint among the soldiers is about the inefficiency of the chaplains in the field. Some say they have only heard one sermon in fourteen months. I fear there is too much truth in what they say. Should I continue here or go on to Chattanooga, you shall have from me again.

The subject of the above notice was the daughter of James Caldwell, of the Sewickley hurch, Redstone Presbytery. She was married to Philip Robbins, whom she survived. In her vouth she connected with the church, in which o the day of her death she manifested a lively interest. She was called to pass through many afflictions, but God was with her, and it is our hope that she sleeps in Jesus.

TAYSPEPSIA AND FITS.

A sure cure for these distressing complaints is now made known in a "Treatise on Foreign and Native Herbal Preparations," published by Dr. O. Phelps Brown. The prescription was jutnished him in such a providential manner, that he cannot conscientionsly refuse to make it known, as it has cured everybody who has used it, rever having failed in a single case. It is equally sure in cases of Fits as of Dyspepsia; and the ingredients may be found in any drug store. Sent free to all on receipt of one stamp to prepay postago. Address Dr. O.
