PITTSBURGH, DECEMBER 30. 1863.

The War.

The only part of the field in which much activity is reported, the past week, is South-Western Virginia and North-Eastern Tennessee. The successful raid of General Averill to Salem, Va., was one of the most brilliant enterprises of our military leaders. He cut the Virginia and Tennessee Railroad, destroyed three depots, containng 2,000 barrels flour, 10,000 bushels wheat, 100,000 bushels shelled corn, 50,000 bushels oats, 2,000 barrels meat, several cords of leather, 1,000 sacks salt, 31 boxes clothing, 20 bales cotton, a large amount of harness, shoes and equipments, tools and various other stores, and 100 wagons The telegraph was destroyed. Five bridges and several culverts were destroyed. Over an extent of fifteen miles a large quantity of bridge timber and repairing materials were also destroyed. His return was exceedingly difficult. Six commands under rebel Generals endeavored to intercept him; but by penetrating woods, climbing mountains. and swimming over rivers, he eluded them all; he got back to his station in West Virginia in safety. The object of this enterprise was to intercept communications between Gen. Lee and Gen. Longstreet. It was supposed that thus, Longstreet's retreat being cut off, he might be captured. He, however, turned, as we stated last week, upon his pursuers, and inflicted severe damage. We have not the particulars from our own army; but rebel accounts say that they Harris, of Maryland, was the only one vofought a severe battle, on the 14th, at Bean Station, East Tennessee, and drove our army back toward Knoxville, capturing 27 wagons and several hundred prisoners; and losing on their side 800 men in killed and from that quarter.

THE GRAND CONCERN in military affairs. just now, is the recruiting of our armies. Congress took up the Conscription Act with seeming vigor, intending to give it efficiency, but the members took their holidav's rest without doing their work. A modification of the act is deemed to be essential. The law as it is, failed, lamentably. The second and third of these amendments we would advocate. The first we would oppose. The Government must be careful to maintain its acceptability with the peonle. Burdens too numerous and too heavy must not be laid upon them.

We are so "old-fogyish" that if the matter were left to us we would return, in part, to the old system; that is, we would call for volunteers, in companies and regiments, for a year, or more, as they might choose: we would increase the regular army by enlistments; and we would DRAFT men for nine months, to make up, fully, all deficiencies. And we would repeat the draft in time to have the new men brigaded and ready for active service, in due season. This system would be far more effective than the present, and it would cost but little more. It would more equally distribtributive to the permanent interests of the honor and advantage return to it. country. For a year's service, many would enlist; and a nine months draft the counment, would advance steadily into rebel-

York, offered a resolution to the House, to send Commissioners to Richmond with peace propositions. It was instantly laid on the table by a vote of 98 to 59.

On Wednesday, 16th, Mr. Rollins, of Missouri, submitted the following:

Resolved, That, prompted by a just patriotism, we are in favor of an earnest and successful prosecution of the war, and that we will give a warm and hearty support to all those measures which will be most effective in speedily overcoming the rebellion and in securing a restoration of peace, and which may not substantially infringe the Constitution and tend to subvert the true theory and character of the Government: and we hereby reiterate that the present deplorable civil war has been forced upon the country by the disunionists in revolt against the constitutional government: that in the progress of the war Congress, banishing all feelings of mere passion or resentment, will recollect only its duty to the terfering with the rights or established institutions of those States, but to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution and to preserve its honor with all the dignity, equality and rights of the several States unimpared; that as soon as these objects are accomplished, the war ought to cease.

A motion was made to lay this also on tertained with favor.

On Thursday, 17th, Mr. Smith, of Ken- | North and South. We ask no superiority which the following is the first, viz.:

Resolved. That as, our country and the very existence of the best Government ever instituted by man, is imperilled by the most causeless and wicked rebellion that the world has ever seen, and believing as we do that the only hope of saving the country and preserving this Government s by the power of the sword, we are for the most vigorous prosecution of the war antil the Constitution and laws shall be enforced and obeyed in all parts of the United States, and to that end we oppose any armistice, or intervention, or mediation, or proposition for peace from any quarter so ong as there shall be found a rebel in arms against the Government; and we ignore all party names, lines and issues, and recognize but two parties in this war-patriots the force of law to public opinion. and traitors.

Mr. Cravan moved to lay the resolution on the table, which was disagreed to, 60 against 100.

The above resolution was then agreed to by a vote of 93 Yeas to 64 Nays A vote was then taken on Mr. Smith's next resolution, which was as follows: Resolved. That we hold it to be the duty of Congress to pass all necessary bills to supply men and money, and the duty of the people to render every aid in their power to the constituted authorities of the Bovernment in crushing out the rebellion. This resolution was agreed to by 152 yeas, only one vote against it viz., Benjamin G. Harris, of Maryland. The last resolution in the series read as

Resolved. That our thanks are tendered to our soldiers in the field for their gallan try in defending and upholding the flag of the Union, and defending the great principles dear to every American patriot.

From this action it appears that nearly three-fifths of the House are opposed to the making of any overtures to the rebels. while they are in arms; that more than wounded. We hope soon for better tidings three-fifths are opposed to "any interfereence with the rights or established institutions of the States:" and that all but one man are in favor of supplying the Government with the means of "crushing out the rebellion."

From these indications it may be hoped that neither radicalism on the one side, nor a factious opposition on the other, will seriously embarrass the Government in its main propositions of change are, to strike great work of putting down rebellion and establishing a righteous peace.

construction. The Hon. T. Butler King, of Georgia a theoretical Secessionist, and an ardent supporter of so-called Southern rights, seems to have some thoughts less unreasonable than many of his brethren. In a letter written in June last, and recently published, we find these expressions:

"War must end in peace; and sooner or later both parties must agree to terms upon which they will lay aside their arms. The events of the past two years should be sufficient to convince every reasonable man, both North and South, that it is impossible for the Federal Government to subjugate our people; and statesmen of the South cannot fail to perceive that the Federal Government cannot abandon the war, except on a restoration of the Union, without danger of a further dismemberment of

Mr. KING now asks for rights and security. The people of the South were never denied their "rights." This has been abundantly acknowledged by Mr. STE-PHENS, aud others of their statesmen. He was an example of industry, eminent for kindness, and one of the best of citizens. He raised a large family, sons and daughters, walking in their father's footsteps, and partaking largely of his spirit.

Mr. Riddle embraced the Saviour in the morn ing of his days, and duly signed the covenant in the sacramental service. His profession was maintained with great consistency. Many years ago he was chosen a Ruling Elder in the church Frankstown-now Hollidaysburg-where he served till he fell asleep in Jesus. DIED-Near London, Mercer County, Pa., December 8th, 1863, HARRIET D. W., wife of Mr. A. Scott Black, aged 31 years, 7 months, and 9 days.

The deceased was a woman of tender sensi bilities, of correct deportment, and of real worth. She was possessed of a lovely disposition, sprightly conversational powers, and a warm, generous, affectionate, and sympathizing nature. She loved her home, and endeavored to make it pleasant, cheerful and attractive. She was a gentle, kind and conscientious mother, a confiding, attentive, loving wife, and an excellent neighbor.

In 1857, during the ministry of Father Munson, she united with the church. No known inconsistency marred her profession of religion. Her Christian character was above reproach. Christian duties were performed. She loved the. house of God. The worship of the Most High. was her delight. Her piety was unobtrusive, but deep and sincere.

For months before her departure she suffered nuch; oftentimes intensely. Yet she bore all with Christian fortitude and resignation.

During the first part of her illness, she was ormented with gloomy doubts. Clouds came between her and her Saviour. But after several days, they were dispersed by the Sun of rightcousness. Her faith now became strong. She could trust all to Christ. She enjoyed peace. And as her sickness progressed, her confidence the U. S. Hospital at Nashville, Tenn., of chronic diarrhea, of which he suffered for over six months, JAMES CALVIN COULTER, in the 27th became more precious to her. became more precious to her.

At death's approach, she feared not. To her, the king had been spoiled of his terrors by her Saviour.

Jesus and heaven were favorite themes with her, both for contemplation and conversation. Shortly before she died, she talked sweetly, calmly and joyously on these subjects to her pastor. Among other things, she remarked "Jesus seems like a companion to me;" "] have seen him in two prominent aspects-in his kindness, and in his love."

In the final conflict, she triumphed. Jesus stood by her till the last. And now there is every reason to believe that she is at present among the blood-bought and blood-washed throng on high, participating in their honors, joys, and employments.

THE MOST THRILLING BOOK DARING AND SUFFERING:

HISTORY OF THE GREAT RAILROAD ADVENTURE. By Lieut. WILLIAM PITTINGER, one of the Adventurers With an Introduction by Rev. ALEXANDER CLARK, Editor of the "School Visitor." With an Introduction by Rev. ALEXANDER CLARK, Editor of the "School Visitor."

The whole nation was excited, last Spring, by the revelations made before the President and the Cabinet at Washington; by the survivors of Gen. Mitchel's secret Rail road Expedition, by the survivors of Gen. Mitchel's secret Rail road Expedition, sent into the heart of the Confederacy almost a year before. Of the twenty-two daring adventurers who penetrated the enemy's country, eight perished on the scaffold, and the others, after suffering untold hardships, finally succeeded in recrossing the lines and reaching the Union army. The survivors each received a modal of honor and other munificent rewards from the hands of the President.

The mavelous adventures of this band are recorded by one of their number, who is fully competent to the task. Their history, as nurrated by him, possesses the connected interest of an epic poem. The scene is granally developed, and the interest deepens from first to last. The reader will follow the daring adventurers, from their first midnight consultation, onward through their perilous journey, and will scarcely breathe during the progress of the terrible chase—the most exciting ever recorded in the annals of any country. The death-scene will draw tears from the eye of the sympathizing reader, while his check will burn with indignation at the cruellies practiced by heartless rebels. The style is a simple, unsfected one, rising with the occasion to the loftiest eloquonce, and abounding in the tenderest pathos.

AUTHOR OF "LIFE AND TIMES OF AARON BURR,"
"LIFE OF ANDREW JACKSON." ETC. Crown 8vo., with Steel Portraits and Maps. Cloth, $2.00; half calf, $3.50. "Mr. Parton is the best of book-makers," says a correspondent of the Springfield Republican in reference to this volume. He is certainly the best of biographers in these respect; he dares to tell the whole truth about his here, and has the power of clothing his narration with wonderful fascination. The New-York Tribune says: "It is needless to say that the volume combines the charms of a romance with the truth of history. It is perhaps the most readable book of the season. The Boston Post pronounces it "absolutely the most interesting novel of the day. Only it is not a novel, it is the truth." "Every page is full of interest," says The Commonwealth; and columns of commendatory notices might be quoted. Conclusive evidence of the value of this book is afforded in the fact that edition after edition is exhausted as fast as it comes from the press. Five editions have been called for in as many weeks. The sixth is in press. For sale by Mason & Hamein, Boston, and by book-sellers generally.
