Glen Leib

Glen Leib likes to see students enjoying themselves

by Melody Mumma

"I guess you could say I enjoy seeing students enjoying themselves," says Glen Leib, Donegal High School's band director. Judging by the activities and achievements of Donegal Band members in the past nine years, one can see that Mr. Leib has many opportunities to "enjoy himself."

As a senior at Dover High School, Dover, PA, he made the decision to study music education in college. Throughout high school, he had played trombone in band and stage band and sung in the chorus. He had also been selected to participate in both District Band and Chorus festivals. It was his private trombone instructor--Dave Thoman, however, who motivated him to pursue a career in the field of music.

Mr. Leib graduated from West Chester State College in 1964 and received his masters from West Chester in 1966. For two years after graduation he directed a band at Eddystone High School near Chester. Then in September of 1966, he began teaching in the Donegal School District. Since then he has attended musical workshops at the University of Indiana, Ind., Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore, and Marywood College.

During the 1974-75 school year, Mr. Leib took a sabbatical leave-of-absence. The needs to broaden his interests and to gain new insights into teaching prompted his decision to spend a year traveling and taking additional courses.

From mid-October through mid-February he, his wife, and daughter traveled across the United States in their camper. New Mexico, California, Arizona--these were only a few of the states they visited. The Painted Desert, the Petrified Forest, and the Santa Fe Governor's Palace were particularly interesting to him. A visit to schools in Indianapolis also proved to be interesting.

During the 1975 spring semester, he took courses a Marywood College.

As a musician himself, who does Mr. Leib feel are outstanding contemporary musicians? During college he was influenced largely by Stan Kenton as far as stage band music was concerned. Another current musician whom he respects highly is William Revelli, band director at the University of Michigan. He became acquainted with Revelli by attending Peabody Conservatory.

Although music is definitely his thing, Mr. Leib does have some hobbies on the side. For the past three years, he has been helping his wife in her craft business. They have been selling stained glass ornaments at Smoketown Dutch Country Market, Park City Farmers' Market, and in their home.

Mr. Leib is also an antique car buff. He has had a '33 Plymouth and a '39 Chevy since high school. He sells antique auto parts and attends the Manheim and Hershey auto auctions annually.

As band director of both the high school and the junior high, Mr. Leib encourages students to keep music as an avocation if they are not planning to enter a musically-related field.

"Whether or not one uses music is unimportant. It is the discipline and spirit of team work demanded of band members which aids in the learning and maturing processes."

Mr. Leib's enthusiasm and dedication have encouraged many students to either enter a musical career or keep music as a hobby. In addition his attitudes have helped to create a feeling of unity and friendship among the members of his 100-piece band.

Mr. Leib resides at R. D. #1, Bainbridge, with his wife, Joanne, and daughter, Debbie, age two.

Draft board shuts down

The State Director of Selective Service for PA has announced the closing of all local draft board offices in the State by the end of February.

Local boards will not take any further classification actions. The offices will be closed and all records transferred to appropriate Federal Records Centers. Replacement draft cards are no longer being issued, and new information about individual registrants should not be sent to Selective Service.

Selective Service registrants are not required to have a draft card in their possession. All registrants, irrespective of any previous classification, are now considered to be in Class 1-H with the exception of a few registrants who may be in violation of the Military Selective Service Act. Selective Service registrants do not have any responsibility under the current provisions of the Military Selective Service Act.

Sr. citizens' play matinee

The Junior Class of Donegal High School will stage a special matinee of "Cheaper by the Dozen" for all Senior Citizens of the area on Thursday, March 4, 1976 at 1 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The special matinee is being presented in the same manner as the senior class production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" was presented for the Senior Citizens in November. There is no charge for admittance. Come and bring a friend!
