Lib. funds raised

The Mount Joy Library is in the midst of a fund-raising drive which is progressing well. Letters have been sent to local residents and users of the library asking for their support, and the response has been encouraging. Local service clubs and industries will be contacted soon, to ask for their help.

Mindful of current inflation and unemployment, the Library Board has been holding their costs at previous levels although providing some new services.

Anyone wishing to help in the financial support of the various services of the Library, should send his or her contribution to the Mount Joy Library Center, 22 East Main Street, Mount Joy, 17552, care of Mr. William Eby, Treasurer.

The library board, which met last Monday evening, March 15, would like to make the public aware of various new services provided by the Lancaster County Library and available through the Mount Joy Library.

Through the Mail-A-Book service, homebound people can borrow books of their choosing through the mail, without any charge for postage. Catalogues of books to choose from are available by calling the Mount Joy Library, 653-1510.

The library is collecting oral history by interviewing older people and tape-recording their recollections. Much historically valuable information is being assembled, describing by-gone industries, schools, mills, customs, etc. Anyone wishing to contribute to this program or anyone who knows of an older person with knowledge of the old days, is encouraged to call the library. Nothing from the interviews is published or kept without the respondent's permission.

In May, the Mount Joy Library will have free copies of a useful booklet entitled, Where To Call. The booklet is being printed in both English and Spanish and contains telephone numbers to be called to get help for a wide variety of family problems or emergencies (for example, a drug problem, emotional difficulties, medical emergencies, poisoning, etc.) Where To Call is a booklet which ought to be kept with the telephone directory beside the telephone.

This summer, a Consumer Exhibit will come to the Mount Joy Library, prepared by the County Consumer Agency in collaboration with the County Library. A speaker from the Agency will be on hand to explain the exhibit, aimed at making people wiser consumers. The Exhibit, with a speaker, is available to all community centers and organizations.
