Marietta park is restored

The Federal Housing and Urban Development agency has completed restoration of the Marietta War Memorial Park, where trailers were parked during the 1972 flood, Marietta Civil Defense director William Breckline reports.

The borough has received 5 red oak trees, 5 pin oaks, 3 sweet gum trees, 4 dogwoods, and 5 cherry trees, all about 7 feet high, from the federal agency.

"The park is just about back in the shape it was," Mr. Breckline says.

Grading has been done, and 150 lbs of grass seed from HUD have been sown.

The new picnic tables should be installed in 3-4 weeks.

Mr. Breckline also reports that the Marietta street sweeping program is now in full swing. Any areas that were missed will be swept at a later date.
