June Wolgemuth at Johns Hopkins

June Wolgemuth has been accepted as a special student for the 1976-77 academic year in the International Health Program at The Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, MD in the School of Hygiene and Public Health. She will specialize in the planning of health care services for developing countries.

Ms. Wolgemuth is currently enrolled at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY as a Ph.D. degree candidate. Her year of special study will be sponsored by the Babcock Chair of Food Economics of Cornell University. Her areas of study at Cornell include agricultural economics and international nutrition.

She received a B.S. degree from Drexel University in Philadelphia and a M.N.S. (Master of Nutritional Science) from Cornell University under a National Institute of Health traineeship. After earning the Masters degree, she was employed by Virginia

Polytechnic Institute and State University, Blacksburg, VA in both the departments of biochemistry and of nutrition.

During that time Ms. Wolgemuth served as a special consultant on loan to the U.S. Agency for International Development in Manila, Philippines for close to one year following the devastating typhoon of the summer of 1972.

She has also had extensive professional experience in Africa and Latin America serving as a health program evaluator and educational expert.

While in residence at VPI/SU she designed in five courses related to international health and nutrition teaching at both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Ms. Wolgemuth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abner Wolgemuth of Donegal Springs Road, Mount Joy, PA and the granddaughter of Mrs. Katie Geib of the same address.
